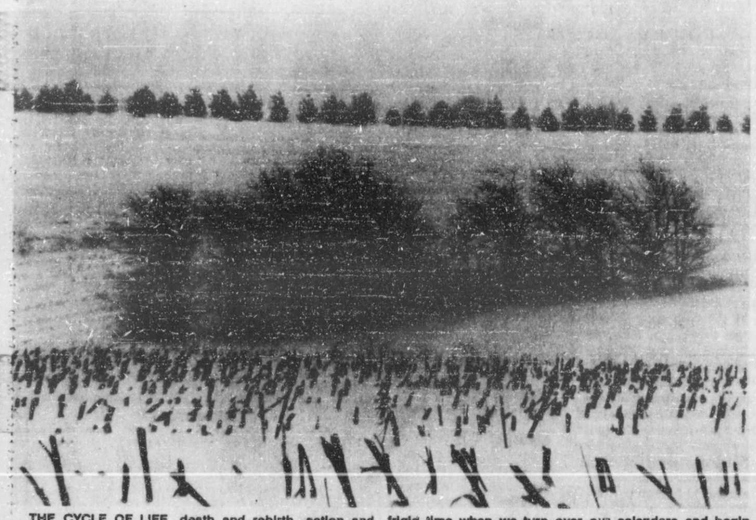
Happy New Year



THE CYCLE OF LIFE, death and rebirth, action and respite — all can be perceived in this scene. The harvested corn, the sleeping deciduous trees, and the stoic evergreens, perhaps symbolizing the changes and the constants in life. The cycle continues this week as it is the frigid time when we turn over our calendars and begin anew. The snow is falling and the wind is blowing. Winter is most surely here. It will most surely be followed by spring. Happy New Year to all. Photo by John McEwen

Snow Blankets Area; Crews Plow 'Round-The-Clock

After a green Christmas, Garrett County had its first significant snowfall of the season this week. With snow beginning to cover roadways Monday morning, crews have been consistently plowing.

Maryland State Highway Administration reported a 14-inch accumulation by Wednesday morning, at which time the snow continued to fall. "Our first crew went out at 7:30 Monday morning and two teams have worked round-the-clock since then," an SHA spokeswoman noted today (Wednesday).

Garrett County Roads Department and town employees in each municipality have also been out in force, keeping roadways throughout the county cleared.

Lee Thorne, director of the county roads department, said that day and night shift crews have been out clearing snowy roads nearly non-stop since the weekend. "Unless we have an equipment breakdown, we hit every road in the county twice during the day shift," Thorne said.

He described some of the current snow drifts as 4-5 feet high in certain areas. "The heavy equipment is out trying to knock these down," he stated.

County roads are not being treated with salt. There is instead an abrasive mixture applied. This will not cause melting, but will provide traction for vehicles on plowed road surfaces, Thorne noted.

What has made this storm difficult for road crews is the consistency of the fall, the SHA spokeswoman said. "Last year we had several storms about 10 inches each. But this one has not let up since it started, and it doesn't look like it's going to anytime soon," she said.

Winds have caused drifting and white-out conditions in several areas, while windchill factors were noted this morning at -13 degrees.

SNOWY ROAD CONDITIONS were cited as a factor in the collision Monday afternoon on Amish Road, Grantsville. The truck, driven by Timothy Sheetz, had crossed the center line and struck a vehicle driven by Sherry Hockman. Northern Rescue Squad and Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department responded to transport the injured to the hospital. (see story)

Wintery Weather Cited As Cause In Multiple Accidents

Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, responded to numerous accidents on county highways recently. Snow and ice were noted a factors in most of these incidents.

In several cases the occupants of the vehicles required emergency transport for medical treatment.

Failed To Reduce Speed

Timothy M. Sheetz, 26, Cumberland, was traveling on Amish Road around 2 p.m. Monday on a snowy road surface, allegedly at a speed too great for weather and road conditions. Sheetz crossed the center line and traveling into the oncoming lane.

He then struck a vehicle head on which was being driven by Sherry Hockman, 24, Grantsville. Both the driver and a passenger, Terry Hockman, 24, Grantsville, were transported to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where they were treated and released.

Sheetz was charged with failure to reduce speed in dangerous weather conditions.

Vehicle In Ditch

Sand Flat Road was the scene of an accident Dec. 22. Police reported that Mickie L. Sponaugle, 42, Weirton, W.Va., lost control of his vehicle near Paradise Point Road at 7:50 a.m.

While attempting to regain control of his vehicle, he collided with a vehicle driven by Karin L. Tyson, 29, Swanton, forcing it into a ditch, police said.

Tyson was taken by ambulance to Garrett Memorial Hospital for treatment.

No charges were filed in the incident.

Car Unable To Stop

Kimberly M. Durst, 25, Grantsville, was exiting a development on Route 40 at 3:30 p.m. on Monday, and was unable to stop on the icy roadway.

Unable to yield the right of way when entering onto Route 40, Durst's vehicle then slid and struck an oncoming vehicle driven by Jason C. Lennox, 36, Frostburg.

Durst was charged by police in the accident. Though injuries were sustained by the drivers, emergency medical transport was not required. Durst was charged in the accident.

Public Meeting About Economic Development Set

Delegate George Edwards, Senator John Hafer, and the Garrett County Commissioners have slated a public information meeting concerning economic development in Garrett County. The meeting is set for Thursday, Jan. 8, at 7 p.m. in the Continuing Education Building at Garrett Community College.

Edwards said the purpose of the meeting is to bring local persons up to date on information about current economic development activities in the county. All persons are invited to attend the session.

SCOUT TO MAINTAIN HIGH POINT PATH - The highest geographical point in Maryland is located in the southern tip of Garrett County along Backbone Mountain, and over the past year, attempts have been made by a Silver Spring couple, Gene and Lillian Elliott, to bring attention to the spot. Their efforts attracted the attention of local scoutmaster Paul Shogren, who suggested this summer that the walking path to the apex be maintained by the Boy Scouts. This led to the idea of Eagle Scout hopeful Robert Kortas making the path one of his main projects. He will begin working on the trail in the spring, clearing it of debris, controlling erosion, and keeping the markings up to date. The Elliotts continue to work at the state level to urge the county and/or state to purchase the portion of property where the high point lies. The property is currently owned by a West Virginia coal company. The company owners have allowed the Elliots and others to work on the path, part of which lies in West Virginia. Pictured as they take a break from their hike to the high point are, left to right, Gene Elliott, Shogren, Lillian Elliott, Robert Kortas, and his father, John Kortas.

Icy Roads Cause Accident That Takes Life Of Oakland Woman

Oakland resident Sandra Kay Shaffer, 45, was killed Sunday morning when she lost control of her vehicle on a snow-covered road.

Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, reported that Shaffer was eastbound on Bethlehem Road near Gorman Road around 6 a.m. when the accident occurred. Her vehicle skidded off the road, police said, struck and embankment, and subsequently overturned.

Shaffer was reportedly partially ejected on impact from her vehicle, which subsequently overturned on her, resulting in her death.

A passenger in the vehicle, Todd A. Tasker, 16, Swanton, was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett Memorial Hospital, where he was treated and released.

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office and the Garrett County Medical Examiner also responded to the scene.

Shaffer was born Jan. 30, 1952, in Oakland, a daughter of Roy F. and L. Lorraine (Wood) Elliott. She was preceded in death by her husband, Randall L. "Randy" Shaffer, in 1990.

She was a member of the Crellin Assembly of God Church.

In addition to her parents, she is survived by one daughter, Alayna Brooks Shaffer, at home; one son, Phillip Angelo Pepe Jr., McHenry; three sisters, Charlotte Friend, Morgantown, W.Va., Sherry Paugh, Keyser, W.Va., and Darlene Hartman, Oakland; three brothers, Clifford Elliott, Roy Darwin Elliott, and Daniel E. Elliott, all of Oakland; and two grandsons.

Friends will be received at the Stewart Funeral Home, Oakland, from 7-9 p.m. on Wednesday, Dec. 31, and may call from 2-4 and 7-9 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 1. A service will be held at the Crellin Assembly of God Church on Friday, Jan. 2, at 2 p.m. with the Rev. David Snodgrass officiating. Interment will be in Garrett County Memorial Gardens, Oakland.

Friends may call at the church one hour prior to the service.

Energy Funds Available For Those In Need

Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc., Maryland Energy Assistance Program (MEAP) is continuing to accept applications from those who need in paying heating bills.

Applications have been sent out to county residents who received MEAP assistance last year. The deadline for applications to be returned to the MEAP office at Community Action is March 31.

The income eligibility guidelines for assistance depends on household size and monthly income. For a

EYM To Hold Auditions For "Charlie Brown"

The Ecumenical Youth Ministry of Oakland will conduct auditions for the Broadway musical "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown," to be presented February 26, 27, and 28 and March 1, 6, and 7 in Oakland. The musical, based on the comic strip "Peanuts" created by Charles Schultz, features the beloved characters of Charlie Brown, Lucy, Snoopy, Linus, Schroeder, and Peppermint Patty.

Lynn Broderick, director of the EYM, said she chose this musical "because of its profound connection in form and content to the parables and stories in the Bible." Robert Short, in his books The Gospel According To Peanuts and The Parables According To Peanuts, explores the significance of many of the "life experiences" Charlie Brown and his friends confront as they play a baseball game, write a book report, fly a kite, or prepare a "suppertime" meal for Snoopy, Broderick explained.

"The music is upbeat and comical, toe-tapping and poignant. The lyrics, often comical on the surface, always hold a deeper meaning for those who listen more carefully," she said. Typical of productions and concerts performed by the EYM, the play will be enhanced by "exuberant" dance numbers and "a bountiful chorus of youth," accompanied by a live band under the directorship of Michael Broderick.

Students in grades six through 12 who would like to audition should prepare a one-minute song to sing. All auditionees should bring the sheet music for the accompanist to play or have tape-recorded accompaniment. A tape recorder will be available. Students are asked not to sing without accompaniment. Sacred music, songs from musicals,

Study Of Adventuresports Center Positive, Planning Will Proceed

A study initiated in late July concerning the feasibility of a National Adventuresports Center in Garrett County has been completed and reviewed by several officials, and, according to John Braskey, project officer for the Department of Natural Resources (DNR), the report is good.

"We have decided to move ahead with our plans," he reported yesterday, following a meeting with the following individuals: James Brady, secretary of the Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development (DBED); John Griffin, DNR secretary; Don Storck, Garrett Community College; James Hinebaugh, director of the Garrett County Office of Economic Development; Gary Yoder, DNR; Hans Mayer, executive director of DBED; and Delegate George Edwards.

"The numbers look good and we think there are far more positives than negatives," Braskey said. "There is enough in the study to move forward with the project to the next step. The appraisals of the land [450 acres atop Marsh Mountain] are back, and in a few weeks we will meet with developers to further discuss the project."

The center is to be built on the Marsh Mountain site and is to be a focal point for all adventure sports activities in the area. It will reportedly provide visitors with information about all outdoor recreational opportunities available to them in Garrett County. While several local private business owners were initially concerned that the center would only promote the adventuresports program at [illegible] organizers convinced them this summer that the center is for the benefit of all local businesses and is to house information about each and every outfit in the county.

Wilt To Take Chairman Seat

Commissioner H. Wayne Wilt has been selected as chairman of the board of the Garrett County Commissioners. He will serve in the position for the 1998 year. Wilt is taking over the chairmanship following the Dec. 11 death of his predecessor, Roger Glotfelty.

Wilt and Commissioner Gary Fratz remain at the helm of the county's fiscal authority, currently awaiting Governor Parris Glendening's appointment of the third individual to complete the three-person board. The Republican Central Committee has firstly recommended Wayne Johnson for the position, with Russell Sines as its second choice.

Glendening has until Jan. 7 to make his decision.

VFW DONATES TO HOUSE OF HOPE - Among the many who participated in the annual holiday collection of food for the House of Hope, coordinated each year by Garrett County Deputy Sheriff Chuck Nolan, were the members of Post 10077, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Deer Park, who dropped off a significant number of canned and other non-perishable items at the collection site in downtown Oakland on Dec. 20. Pictured above, from left, are: VFW members Dale Simpson and Claude Beckman, WKKS Radio's Cathy Clocker, post commander Paul Graham, Deputy Nolan, and Randall Kahl, also of the VFW. Nolan reported that the drive was, once again, a major success, as hundreds of pounds of food and many cash donations were received.

Juvenile Suffers Broken Leg When Struck By Car

A 14-year old Oakland youth remains hospitalized after being struck by a vehicle on High Street in Oakland at 8:30 p.m. Monday night.

According to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, Lindsey Gift of Oakland was walking eastbound in the roadway on High Street with two other boys during a snowstorm, when a car driven by Michael Flanigan, 18, of Alt Hill Road, approached from behind. Two of the pedestrians moved to one side of the street to let the car pass, but Gift ran across the roadway in front of the car and slipped on the icy pavement in front of the vehicle and was struck.

After being transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Southern Garrett Rescue Squad, Gift was treated for a broken leg. He remains hospitalized in stable condition. No charges were filed in the accident.

A one-vehicle accident on Saturday evening sent all four occupants of the vehicle to the hospital.

As Francine Tyler, 30, Glen Burnie, was traveling southbound down a grade on Boiling Springs Road near Bethlehem Road shortly after 7 p.m., a deer ran in front of her vehicle. As she attempted to stop, her Jeep Laredo went into a skid on the untreated icy roadway, went over an embankment and overturned.

Tyler and her passengers, Mark and Crystal Tyler, and Dolores Clarke, all of Glen Burnie, were transported by the Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett Memorial Hospital, where they were treated and released. The Deer Park Volunteer Fire Department assisted on the scene.

Bloodmobile To Visit Fri., Mon.

Local blood donors are reminded that the American Red Cross bloodmobile will visit Garrett County twice within the next several days. It will welcome donors at American Legion Post 71 in Oakland this Friday, Jan. 2, from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., and will be at Zion Lutheran Church in Accident on Monday, Jan. 5, from noon to 6 p.m. The goal for each visit is 50 units.

Friendsville Man Charged With Sex Offense, Battery

A Friendsville man was arrested on Friday and charged with two counts of fourth-degree sex offense and two counts of second-degree battery, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

Lawrence Paul Fike, 37, was taken into custody as a result of an investigation by the sheriff's office, in conjunction with the Department of Social Services. He is alleged to have fondled a 14-year old female on two separate occasions in November, reportedly against her will.

After appearing before the court commissioner, Fike was released on his own recognizance.

In other sheriff's news, several burglaries, thefts, and vandalisms were reported last week. Citizens with information regarding any of these incidents are encouraged to call the Crimesolvers number at 301-334-1975. Anonymity is guaranteed.

A theft from a residence in the 300 block of South Main Street in Accident is under investigation. On Friday, the resident, Robin Frazee, reportedly discovered a ring valued at $700, a tape recorder valued at $70, and a medical card and a title to a 1992 Plymouth missing from a storage cabinet in the house.

A residence along Paradise Gardens Road near Deep Creek Lake was burglarized sometime between Thanksgiving and Saturday.

According to the sheriff's report, the perpetrator(s) initially attempted to gain entry through the rear door of the house by breaking one of the door's windowpanes and reaching inside to unlock a deadbolt; however, they were stymied as the lock required a key to open it. The subject(s) then smashed a laundryroom window on the side of the house, causing $300 worth of damage, entered the home, and subsequently departed through a rear sliding glass door that was left standing open. As of this point, nothing has been determined to have been stolen from the home, according to the homeowner, Phillip Lowe of Gaithersburg.

A Christmas night theft from an unlocked vehicle parked in a driveway in the 500 block of O Street in Mtn. Lake Park resulted in the loss of three black compact disc carrying cases from the car, along with the owner's wallet, which contained $35 in cash and assorted credit and identification cards. The loss of the several dozen CDs is estimated at $684, according to the victim, Vicki Sukow, of Mtn. Lake Park.

A residence in the 300 block of Vindex Road was reportedly burglarized between Dec. 17 and Christmas Eve. Although there were no signs of forced entry, $75 in change was discovered to be missing, according to the resident, Charles Craver.

A set of skis was stolen from outside the main entrance to the Wisp around noon on Sunday. According to the victim, a Silver Spring resident, the Rossignol 180 skis and poles had a value of $200.

A purse was taken from a vehicle parked in the 1100 block of Wheeling Avenue in Mtn. Lake Park on Sunday, with an estimated loss of $70, according to the victim, Loretta Whitacre of Crellin.

A mailbox in the 500 block of L Street in Mtn. Lake Park was vandalized on Friday night. The victim, Jane Friend, reported to sheriff's deputies that the sound of a car with an extremely loud muffler caused her to look out her window at 11 p.m. to see several subjects get out of a Ford Tempo and smash her mailbox. The damage is estimated at $50.

A missing van which had initially been parked near Keysers Ridge was subsequently located three days later by its owner. Glenn Green Jr., Accident, told deputies that the van had developed transmission trouble and was parked at Menges Trucking on Dec. 19. Three days later he found it parked along National Pike near Grantsville with heavy damage to the ignition assembly, apparently to facilitate starting the engine without a key.

The sheriff's office also received a report recently of an accidental self-inflicted wound from a handgun. Jerome Smith, 43, Baltimore, told deputies that he was target shooting on his property on Steiding Church Road on Friday afternoon, when, as he was holstering his .22 caliber Heritage Roughrider, the pistol accidently discharged. The bullet entered his foot, where it lodged midway between his toes and ankles. Smith transported himself to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where deputies met him at the emergency room. He was treated and released.

DWI Charges

John Albert Savage, 52, Oakland, and Clarence William Collins, 49, Deer Park, were each charged with driving while intoxicated last week.

Finally, Samuel James Wagner, 22, Accident, was charged with violation of DWI probation.

Drug Possession, Burglary Cases Heard in Court

Criminal court cases against two local men were heard in Garrett County Circuit Court in recent weeks. Judge James Sherbin presided over the proceedings, with both trials ending with sentencings from the judge.

Marvin W. Bittinger, 18, Accident, entered a guilty plea to the charge of possession of marijuana, according to the court report. Sherbin accepted the plea and sentenced the defendant tc 30 days in the local jail.

Bittinger was arrested as a result of the execution of a search and seizure warrant by Maryland State Police at an Accident home in February. Drugs and drug paraphernalia were reportedly located at the home at the time of the search.

In the second case, Randy E. Burns, 28, pleaded guilty to trespassing on private property. Sherbin accepted the plea and ordered the defendant to 30 days in jail. The judge then suspended the term and fined Burns $200. He will be on 60 days of unsupervised probation, according to the report.

SHERIFF'S SANTAS - The Garrett County Sheriff's Office was one of many of the Garrett County government departments that contributed to the Rotary's Christmas Project recently. The Sheriff's Office sponsored 50 families, while the combined efforts of county personnel resulted in over 450 families benefiting over the holidays. Shown above are just a few of the Sheriff's Office personnel who participated, along with Registrar of Wills Joseph Dialmone, who sponsored the courthouse effort. Left to right in the front row are Detective Clark Warnick, administrative assistant Gloria Burns, correctional officer Robin Sines, and Lieutenant Paul Pratt. In the back row are Dialmone, Captain Don Tucker, Deputy Rob Corley, Lieutenant Larry Gregy, and correctional officer Steve Steffen.

Helping Others With Mental Illness Is Howard Gerard's Goal

by Peggy Santamaria

Traditionally, as the new year approaches, people begin to talk, or think about New Year's resolutions. They often deal with changes, either great or small, in habits and behavior that will improve or enrich life.

Most will admit those resolutions are forgotten by February. But there are some who don't forget. There are some who actually set their goals and doggedly strive toward them. These people deserve respect from the rest of us. And when there are great obstacles to be faced in pursuing the goals, the people who continue to strive toward them deserve our admiration. Howard Gerard is such a man.

It has been several years since Howard shared his story in the pages of The Republican about his decades of struggle with major depression. During the intervening years, he has made some giant strides toward the goal he stated at that time — to be able to reach out to and help others who also suffered with mental illness. He wanted to let them know that they are not alone, that there is help, that they can improve the quality of their lives.

Sitting in a restaurant recently, over coffee and hot chocolate, he reflected on that time. "I've come a long way, he smiled. To illustrate his point, Howard reached in his jacket pocket and pulled out a set of car keys. "I'm driving now, for the first time in 20 years," he said, adding that he drives when his daughter is in the car with him.

Howard has come a long way, and along that way he has distinguished himself in his community. Shortly after he spoke out publicly on behalf of people with mental illness, he was invited to join the board of directors at Garrett County Lighthouse, a community rehabilitation program for adults with mental illness.

As Howard began to see that he could actively advocate for others with mental illness, he increased his involvement. He began attending meetings of the Alliance For The Mentally Ill (AMI) and shortly thereafter took a seat on the board of directors of that organization.

EXPANDING HIS OPPORTUNITIES and abilities to help others with mental illness, Howard Gerard has undertaken the honing of his communication skills. By taking classes in English, writing, and computers, he hopes to become more effective when advocating for others. In the photo above, Howard prepares to begin his computer lesson.

If he were going to be most effective, Howard decided he would need to polish up some of his communication skills and develop some new ones. He signed up for classes in English and computer use. It was with laughter touched with pride that he described undertaking this new technology.

Howard's advocacy and accomplishments for those with mental illness did not go unnoticed. The Garrett County Board of Commissioners selected him to serve on the Garrett County Mental Health Advisory Board. In this capacity, he recently attended a statewide conference in Crownsville to address the issues of public education and awareness of mental illness.

Alluding to this whirl of activites in which he now finds himself Howard said, simply, "I'm never bored."

Did he ever think he would be doing this kind of thing? Howard laughed. "If you had told me 10 years ago I would be doing what I am doing now, I would have told you to go jump in a lake," he said emphatically.

There is a sharp contrast in his current life of meetings, conferences, and activities to that part of his life spent in solitude, when he wanted to see no one and do nothing.

Far from doing nothing now, Howard is busy planning and organizing and working on personal goals and on helping others set personal goals.

From his various positions of responsibility, he has accomplished a number of things on behalf of others. Considering the benefit of exercise for people in the Lighthouse program, Howard began to find means of acquiring some exercise equipment for the group. He began making some inquiries, and speaking with people he knew. He presented his case to the AMI board. He made some creative exchanges, including a record turntable for an exercise bike. The net result was a collection that included a rowing machine, three exercise bikes, and a treadmill. "I didn't think it would happen that quickly. It was all done in about one week," he said.

If this idea works out, and the people at Lighthouse use and enjoy the equipment, Howard plans to expand the concept and apply to manufacturers and look into grants.

Howard has not always been proactive. He describes himself as being quite the opposite. "I used to be very backward," he remembers. "I never even proposed to my wife," he chuckles. "My sister did it for me." They have now been married 47 years.

What message does Howard most want to deliver? There are two issues of equal importance he spoke of. "I want more people to understand that anybody on earth can be subject to mental problems," he stated. He himself had a military career and then worked for the railroad for many years.

Knowing that this illness can afflict anyone may help reduce the stigma often associated with mental illness. "The mentally ill are human beings and should be treated like human beings," he said.

The other issue that is primary to Howard is that the person with the illness must work and move forward. "There is help available," he noted. And there is no reason to suffer this illness alone.

Howard has had many physical challenges to overcome as well as mental. With heart disease, diabetes, and a sleeping disorder, he had much to confront and surmount. It was not easy and he did not always feel successful. "But you need to stay active," he advised.

His involvement in his community goes beyond his advocating for the those with mental illness. Howard is an active member of the American Legion. He attends meetings and participates in legion projects.

Of the struggles he has faced during his life, Howard speaks openly. He wants others to know his story and know that people with mental illness need a hand from people in their communities and they need to keep on "keeping on."

Howard Gerard resolved to fight. He resolved to try. "I climbed the ladder. I got to the top," he said. And he did. And he is determined to help others to do the same.

Happy New Year!

Center Study

At the summer meeting, Hinebaugh said the center will in no way compete with the private sector and in fact "should be a big shot in the arm" for the smaller businesses in the area of marketing. No sport already offered in the county will be duplicated by GCC, Braskey said at the summer meeting, so as not to endanger any local businesses, such as the rafting companies or cross country ski sites. One additional sport mentioned by the officials is a possible site for lighted and man-made snow-covered cross country ski trails. Other possibilities include the construction of an ice rink and a "family fun area" for sledding or other winter games.

Braskey is optimistic about the plan, stating that the center is certain to encourage economic development, give the county worldwide attention, and build on GCC's adventure-sports program, which he has said is one of the best in the country.

"Garrett County could become the national focal point for adventure sports," he commented at the summer meeting.

The proposal is combining the work of Hinebaugh's office, DNR, GCC, the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, the Garrett County Development Corporation, and DBED. The feasibility study was ordered in late July and was completed by PKF Consulting, a firm in Alexandria, Va.

The issue of ownership of the center is yet to be finalized, although Braskey said this summer that it is hoped that a private/public partnership can be arranged. He said the organizers will be seeking mostly state funds for the creation of the center, although the plans are still extremely preliminary.

"It's so early in the game, it's hard to say how it will all pan out," he said. "But the study looks good and we would be remiss if we didn't move forward."

According to the "State of the Industry Report," a document handed out at the summer meeting, adventure sports contribute $40 billion to the country's economy annually and employ approximately 800,000 individuals. Hiking, mountain biking, kayaking, rock/ice climbing, and snowshoeing are among the fastest growing activities, according to the report. Aging "baby boomers" are the major participants in outdoor recreation and are projected to greatly increase demands on the industry over the next several years.

Be It Resolved...

While we don't know too many people who seriously make New Year's resolutions, and then actually keep them, this particular holiday still lends itself to be a time of some personal reflection and, it is hoped, correction. The most popular resolutions are those that involve unhealthy personal habits. One vows to stop smoking, or at least reduce the daily consumption of cigarettes. Another vows to reduce eating, and often sets a goal of an optimum body weight. Along those same lines, one vows to begin a regimen of exercise that has been non-existent in the previous 12 months.

The above are certainly legitimate aspirations, but they are also entirely self-centered. We suggest that resolutions which concern our behavior toward other people are far more valuable, as well as more satisfying. How wonderful it would be if every person resolved this New Year's Day to focus less on oneself and more on others; to be more aware of and responsive to the needs of fellow human beings who are in any way suffering or in distress.

We Americans have much to be proud of already in the area of philanthropy. In fact, we lead the entire world in both monetary giving and in volunteerism. Nearly half of all American adults (49%) volunteer an average of 4.2 hours of their time every week, according to a Washington-based association that keeps track of such statistics.

We even give more toward foreign projects and concerns than the nations in which the needs exists. For example, the spectacular gardens at the home of the late Impressionist artist Claude Monet in France were restored not by funding from the French government or the citizens of France, but primarily from Americans.

On a local level, we utilized this column just last week to extend thanks and praise for the amazing response to our first Warm the Children project, and also noted the continued outstanding level of giving by Garrett Countians to a variety of projects.

So, while many are doing an admirable job already, each of us can no doubt improve further in recognizing and responding to the needs of so many people.

"I screamed at God, 'Why don't you do something about all the pain, poverty, and misery in the world today?' And God answered me, 'I did do something about it . . . I made you.'"

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

My wife, Patricia DeWitt, works for Martha Glotfelty, who lives on Mosser Road. Since working for Martha and experiencing bad weather, such as snow and icy road conditions, Patricia told me that the county roads department does not take care or put anything on the road to melt the ice when slippery conditions occur. Well, I found out that this is very true! As we were traveling across Mosser Road today to go to Martha's, our car slid out of control, and hit a pick-up truck. If the county roads department would do its work, this wouldn't have happened. I suggest that you men do your job and keep the roads in better condition so that people can go to work and return home safely!

Why should we pay taxes to help you live when you don't do your job? Remember, the life you save may be your family or your own.

Sincerely,
Bill DeWitt

To the editor:

I am a World War II veteran, 100% disabled, service-related. As a member of the American Legion, I want to speak about my concern for the protection of the American flag.

As we continue to debate the issue of constitutional protection for our flag with those in the media and with our elected representatives, it is important to keep these key points in mind:

We are on the side of the angels. Most citizens want returned to them the right to protect their flag, and 81 percent would vote for the flag amendment.

The flag amendment itself does not change the Constitution.

Burning the flag is not speech, it is conduct. It is an insult to the intelligence of the vast majority of common-sense Americans to call flag burning "speech."

Amending the Constitution is an act of goodness.

The scarcity of flag burning has nothing to do with the evil of flag burning. People do not frequently shout "fire" in a crowded theater or burn crosses, but we still should, and do, have laws against these evils.

The real victims of flag burning are our children. The greatest tragedy in flag mutilation is the disrespect it teaches our children — disrespect for the values it embodies, and disrespect to those who have sacrificed for those values. Disrespect is the genesis of hate; it provokes the dissolution of our unity — a unity which has only one symbol, the flag.

Hopefully, the members of Congress will support an amendment which would return to the people the right to protect their flag.

Sincerely,
Howard Gerard
Oakland

To the Editor,

You never see much in the newspaper or magazines about Pearl Harbor. Yet on December 7, 1941, a surprise attack on Pearl Harbor by Japanese forces forced the United States into World War II.

Thirty-three Japanese ships under the cover of darkness sailed within 200 miles north of Oahu. Carriers launched about 300 airplanes against the Pacific Fleet under Admiral Kimmel and the Hawaiian ground troops. The first bombs fell on Pearl Harbor at about 7:55 a.m. The chief targets were seven American battleships among the 94 naval vessels anchored in the harbor.

In the attack, according to history, the United States had 18 ships sunk, about 175 planes destroyed, and 3,581 casualties. The battle cry was "Remember Pearl Harbor."

It was a typical Sunday morning at the home of the Pacific fleet. On every ship, men were still at breakfast. Some lay about on open decks. Those off duty for the day were preparing to go ashore. The Marines aboard the cruiser Helena were getting ready for a softball game.

A lot of men were thinking about Christmas, with only 15 days left to shop. On the battleship Maryland, a sailor wrote out his Christmas cards.

On the battleship Nevada, the ship's band assembled for the raising of the flag. Some members of the band noticed specks in the sky. Planes were approaching.

The officer on deck of the cruiser Raleigh saw a line of planes coming in for the attack and from then on Pearl Harbor was history, never to be forgotten.

In two hours, Pearl Harbor was just about destroyed. The Americans lost 2,400 lives, and more than 1,000 were injured.

The total killed or wounded on the Japanese side came to less than 100, while the bombing succeeded in putting the U.S. Pacific out of action, giving the Japanese control of the Central Pacific.

By luck, American aircraft carriers were at sea. The carriers would play an important role in the months ahead.

Nearly every American who was alive that day can describe how he or she first heard the news of the attack, much like when President John F. Kennedy was shot. The moment is engraved in virtually everyone's memory.

I was dancing at the "Top" out on Route 50 with my wife Aldine when we heard the news: "Pearl Harbor bombed by Japan" and some people were wondering "where in the hell is Pearl Harbor?"

To the Editor:

I have been amazed during the time I have spent in some of the rural areas of Garrett County, that on the snowiest of days, the roads are cleared and passable.

Even on the small side roads where there seem to be few residents, roadways are open early in the day. Missing work because of snow does not seem to be a problem for residents of this area.

Coming from a large city, I am impressed with the work of local road crews.

by Peggy Santamaria

It is again the time to review the year. Look back and look ahead. Reflect on what has been good and what not so good.

This is a ritual that my husband and I go through each New Year's Eve.

I know one of the things that has been in my thoughts over the last several days. I know it is something that has not been a good thing. Though, I thank God, there have been many more good things that not.

Within the past few weeks I have heard of the deaths of three people that I cared for very much. They were people that I had not seen for some time. Why? Why had I not stopped on my way by, even for 10 minutes? Why had I not dropped a note? Made a call? But mostly why had I not been there?

Being there. I doesn't help to think later that I would have if.... I ask myself what was so terribly important that I had to do that I couldn't spend a few minutes with people that I will not see again?

I have no comfortable answer to my own question.

Alcohol, Stress, The Holidays Can Be A Deadly Combination

The Maryland Division of Parole and Probation offers the following warnings and recommendations regarding alcohol use:

Alcohol is a mood altering depressant drug which can increase anxiety and cause personality changes and depression Alcohol abuse is a contributing factor in over 50% of violent crimes, including domestic violence, homicide and rape.

Alcohol abuse is the nation's worst drug problem -- costing over 85 million dollars a year. There are 100,000 deaths a year from alcohol related illnesses, injuries and suicides.

We offer the following suggestions to safeguard your holiday:

*Remember that alcohol is a drug and that abusing alcohol can have tragic, even deadly consequences. Alcohol abuse is a major factor in many suicides.

*Alcohol use can make you seem more vulnerable to a criminal attack. Criminals "seek out" inebriated persons.

*Avoid intoxicated persons wherever they may be Police officers have encountered many law-abiding persons who become verbally and/or physically assaultive when drinking.

*If you don't drink alcohol, don't drink just to celebrate the holidays.

*Never drink it you are upset or depressed. Alcohol will make you feel worse and you may even lose control of your behavior.

*Don't allow teenagers to drink -- at your home or at the home of another teen. It is against the law Teenage alcohol abuse often leads to use of illegal drugs.

*If you are "allergic" to alcohol (an alcoholic) or lose control when you are drinking, stay away from people and places that make you feel uncomfortable or pressured.

*Always make sure firearms are secured under lock and key -- never mix alcohol and firearms.

*Remember that alcohol and parental discipline of children can be a dangerous combination.

*Alcohol can make disagreements with your spouse or relatives become an unsafe situation.

*Don't drink if alcohol has ever gotten you into trouble at home, at work or while driving.

AT SOCIAL GATHERINGS

*Always ask if a beverage contains alcohol -- punch or eggnog drinks can be very deceiving.

*Allow at least one (1) hour between drinks and stop drinking at least one (1) hour before you drive or engage in any other responsible activity.

*If you are even slightly impaired, arrange for alternative transportation or spend the night.

*If you are hosting a party, monitor the alcohol consumption of each of your guests. Don't let anyone leave under the influence of alcohol - call a taxi or ask a sober friend to take them home. If necessary, have them spend the night. Real friends don't let friends drink and drive.

*If you are going to drink, appoint a designated driver who is not drinking alcohol.

"THE FEAST OF THE CIRCUMCISION"

A few months ago, a local newspaper—not the one in which this column appears—ran an editorial in support of greater sensitivity in the school calendar for the Jewish New Year celebration, Rosh Hashana. Along the way the editorial opined that no one held school on January 1, which, they said, as far as they knew, had no religious significance.

I smiled when I read that because I knew that New Year's Day, indeed, does have religious significance of several kinds. It was not a point with which I wanted to take umbrage, reminding myself that this was, after all, journalism and that it is only meant to last for a day.

The following week the lead letter to the editor was signed by a pious lay Catholic who pointed out that for Catholics, who make up about one quarter of the nation's population (there are more lapsed Catholics than there are Southern Baptists), New Year's Day does have religious significance as the Feast of the Circumcision or what is now known as the Feast of Mary, the Mother of God. It is also a Holyday of Obligation, meaning—as I understand it—that Catholics are supposed to attend Mass.

I almost phoned the newspaper's editor to razz him about harassing Catholics, but it was one of those weeks when I was too busy even to be ornery. The lesson to be learned is that, even in this great secular age, everything has religious significance to somebody.

Had a Catholic not written to take exception to the remark, clearly an aside and not central at all to the point which the paper's editorial board wanted to make, then no doubt an adherent of the Loyal Order of the Restored Druidical Priesthood would have penned a missive, as one did in response to a Halloween column I wrote one year.

I live by the "Damn the torpedoes—full speed ahead!" philosophy, which one has to adopt in this mixed up world if there is to be any hope for sailing a ship anywhere but in dry dock.

"The Feast of the Circumcision" is a splendid name for a feast. It is the day in the ritual of Christmas when Mary and Joseph, presumably with the help of a rabbi, fulfilled the covenant of Abraham on behalf of Jesus.

In fact, the Feast of the Circumcision relates rather well to the point that the local newspaper was making about Rosh Hashana, because on this feast day the New Testament proclaims the historical fact that Jesus was a Jew. Christians have an excellent reason for respecting Jewish holy days: because they were the holy days observed by Jesus Christ himself.

This feast is also a reminder that at least on one occasion the author of "Away in a Manger" was wrong when he wrote about "little Lord Jesus, no crying he makes." On the eighth day of his life, Jesus cried; in fact, he hollered his lungs out.

Another reason I like this feast is that it is an antidote for the Gnosticism, which is endemic among Americans. Gnosticism is when you have religion in your head, but not in your life. It is when you talk the talk without walking the walk. It is believing in God, praying, going to church, and then living like the atheist next door.

It is not that the atheist next door lives a morally inferior life, rather that he lives a culturally identical life to that of the typical American Christian. A person can convert from atheism, or from anything else, to Christianity and go on wearing the same clothes, driving the same car, living in the same house. No one would mark the difference.

I admire the Amish Christian and Hasidic Jew not because they are morally superior to anyone. I admire them because their culture gives expression to their religion. They proclaim their faith every time they comb their hair. They recite their creed in the cut of their coats.

Circumcision reminds us that God cares not only about what is in our heads and hearts but about what goes on in other vital parts of our bodies as well. This feast reminds us that no matter how sanitized church services may be, Christianity is a blood and guts religion.

A day which marks the beginning of a new year has very little meaning for me. It could, after all, be one day as well as another. The Feast of the Circumcision, on the other hand, is highly evocative of how great ideas are connected to the nitty gritty of life.

The families of

would like to thank Garrett County Memorial Hospital Emergency Room Staff, third floor staff, Dr. Perry, Dr. Domenick and Freeman Ambulance Service for the care of our father during his brief stay. The kindness to him and to his family will always be remembered. To all that sent flowers, cards, and food we could never say "Thank You" enough. Your caring response was overwhelming. For each person who visited the funeral home to share in our time of grief, we thank you for each word of kindness, each story of remembrance and each shoulder to cry upon.

We as a family knew what Roger meant to us, but it made a hard time seem easier because each of you who took the time to show you cared. So many visitors, cards, donations, flowers and kind words. To us Roger was truly a person beyond words, but each of you found them for us and shared them with all of us.

The support that he gave to the county has definitely come back, threefold. To The Republican, we thank you for all the coverage of and for him. The touching words from you and your staff will be cherished forever. To all the Lions members for your show of support and honor of him. To the commissioners, Wayne Wilt and Gary Fratz, to Monty Pagenhardt and John Braskey, we know that he would have wanted you by his side. You have been great throughout the time of his term, his illness and his death. Thank you. A special thank you to the Pallbearers, nephews: Matt, Brett, Wille, Charles, Bryan, Joe and Dave, and family friend Randy Reckner. To Rev. Mel Menker, thank you for such a wonderful service and all your comforting support and words. To the Oak Park Church members, thank you for such a great dinner. To Mark Watkins, a special thank you for such a perfect song that described him so well. It will stay in our hearts forever. To the radio stations, thank you for all your coverage. Our thanks go to the Sheriff's and Police Departments, to Brad Stewart & staff, and to the Maruccis: Blue, Mark and Al. To Mary Ashby and Nita Upton, thank you for your kindness and support at home during this time. You are very special people to us. The family feels that we cannot find the words to express our gratitude enough. May God bless each of you. Garrett County has a special guardian angel to help us all through this time. Again, THANK YOU FROM THE BOTTOM OF OUR HEARTS.

THE POSTMAN

Rated PG-13 - Running time: 2:57

Kevin Costner's Dances With Wolves was a great film. Waterworld wasn't. And The Postman is a cross between the two, in just about every sense of the phrase.

This latest offering from Costner's Tig Production Company is written by Eric Roth and Brian Helgeland, based on the book by David Brin, and takes place in 2013 in the western part of what had been the United States. Apparently, there has been some kind of civil war in which the U.S. government has been overthrown by the forces of a man named Nathan Holn, and the resulting movement called the "Holnists" now run the place in the fashion of feudal lords. The American West has been strangely cast back in time about 100 years, dotted with small towns whose people live like nineteenth-century settlers. As long as the Holnists leave them alone, they go about their business in reasonable security, but when the band of road-warrior types shows up, the largely unarmed townspeople have to fork over their valuables, and occasionally some of their healthy young men and women, for the good of the Holnist army. For this reason, all the towns are surrounded by huge fences, and people are quite suspicious of outsiders like Costner's character.

After being "drafted" and escaping from the Holnists, the drifter charms his way into a town by disguising himself as a mailman, assuring the inhabitants that the U.S. government has been re-established and will soon be back in power. Soon many others have joined his "postal service," which quickly evolves into a para-military organization sworn to (1) deliver messages and (2) fight the Holnists.

The principal reason this movie is not very believable is that it is set only 15 years in the future. It seems decidedly unlikely that if the U.S. government were overthrown today, such a change could take place within 15 years. The way people fail to remember things that today we are intimately familiar with; the total dissolution of our modern way of life--it would make a lot more sense if it were set in, say, 2113. For instance, when someone asks "The Postman" what the new U.S. president's name is, he thinks for a moment and responds, "Uh . . . Richard . . . Starkey." That there would be no one in the room 15 years from now who would recognize this as Ringo Starr's real name is unlikely.

There are occasional reminders that this is set in the future and not the past, like abandoned gas stations, decrepit television sets, and an old (future) issue of Playboy magazine, but no computer is ever seen, nor is there any mention of the Internet or e-mail, a system that threatens to make the postal service obsolete anyway, and one that would be very difficult for the Holnists to control. Especially since their technology seems to consist mainly of guns and an old movie projector which is used almost exclusively to entertain the army with an old copy of The Sound of Music.

This movie is filled with Costner heroics, like the pointless scene of him speeding up to a full gallop to grab a letter out of a young boy's upraised hand, when he could have just stopped and talked to the kid and taken his letter in a civilized manner. Stupid. The film's final showdown is ridiculously anticlimactic, but also inevitably Costner-esque. Peace, brother.

Still, it is a pretty interesting story. Stephen F. Windon's cinematography is at times astounding, and there is good acting by Costner, Olivia Williams as his girlfriend, and Will Patton as General Bethlehem, the Holnist leader. Also notable is Larenz Tate as Costner's overzealous first recruit in the Postal army.

So let's compare: the setting is a futuristic no-man's land run by obnoxious bullies (Waterworld), and Costner is a charming good-guy who becomes a respected leader and friend of a group of people who formerly distrusted him, and falls in love with a woman whose husband was killed by the bad guys (Dances). Sorry, but I can't help thinking Costner is just trying to cash in on the best of his latest two epics. ★★★½

AN AMERICAN WEREWOLF IN PARIS

Rated R - Running time: 1:40

When I saw An American Werewolf in London (1981), I absolutely loved it. What a new concept--a truly scary horror film, infused with dry, clever comedy. So when I saw that this film was on the way, I was psyched: with modern-day special effects, how could the sequel be anything less than the first? Well, it is.

I could be overreacting. Many horror fans who go to this film will probably like it, even if they saw the first one. But if you liked . . . London for its wit, chances are this one will fall flat for you as it did for me.

This story, which apparently bears no relation to its precursor, finds three thrill-seeking American friends, Andy (Tom Everett Scott), Brad (Vince Vieluf), and Chris (Phil Buckman) on their way to Paris to try the ultimate stunt: bungee-jumping off the Eiffel Tower. But while teetering on the railing, they meet a beautiful French girl (Julie Delpy) who is also ready to jump, but with no cord; she wants to kill herself. And upon further investigation, the guys find that her reason for being suicidal is not entirely unjustified: when the moon comes out, she tends to eat people. Not only that, but she's not alone. There is a whole society of froggie werewolves who, unlike her, want to cleanse society by killing all the undesirables (namely, homeless and Americans).

Although some of the effects are somewhat eyebrow-raising, this film is a rather hollow echo of the first. I'm surprised how badly the bluescreen werewolf effects are pasted onto the backgrounds. The animatronic wolves are really not very lifelike, and the transformation scenes (the most interesting part) are rather glossed over. One thing about the first movie that was extremely effective (as it was in Alien) was the fact that you never saw the entire animal. Not so here. From early on, there are wolves running around everywhere. And another place where this film fails to achieve the stature of its predecessor is the humor. While . . . London was biting and witty, really funny, . . . Paris is just sort of silly. There is an attempt at humor made, with the same wisecracking of the undead, but the writing is just not as clever this time.

The acting is not at all bad, especially on the part of Delpy, and that tends to be the film's saving grace. But if you're a big fan of the original, and not just for the blood and guts, then you may be a little disappointed. ★★★

Rated PG - Running time: 1:28

In Disney's rather dismal series of offerings for the 1997 holiday season (the best of which is a re-release of an 8-year-old cartoon, if that says anything), they have definitely saved the worst for last. This is probably as bad a piece of trash as the multi-zillion-dollar company has ever produced, but what do they care? They have the cash to support a few failures.

Probably the only admirable thing about this film is Leslie Neilsen's fairly accurate vocal characterization of the famous Jim Backus cartoon character Mr. Magoo. The way Neilsen portrays the jovial, nearly blind millionaire, with his sing-song, chuckling style, makes me shudder to think of how many Mr. Magoo cartoons Neilsen forced himself to watch. But beyond that, the film is almost unbearable.

In a sort of James Bond-style plot, Magoo has just donated a lot of money to a museum to acquire a huge, red jewel that is worth millions. Soon after the unveiling ceremony the jewel is stolen, and because of a series of misunderstandings, Magoo is the prime suspect. The real thief, however, is Luanne Le Seur (Kelly Lynch), whose clumsy partner Morgan (Nick Chinlund) drops the jewel into Magoo's possession. She tries to get the rock by acting as though she is attracted to the self-assured tycoon, and when he finds that she is playing him for a fool, he helps the bumbling government agents (Stephen Tobolowsky and Ernie Hudson) foil her plan. Also involved is his nephew Waldo (Matthew Keeslar), and Stacey (Jennifer Garner), Waldo's love interest, a representative from the country of the jewel's origin.

The acting is spectacularly bad in this movie, especially that of Lynch, who seems to have been hired for her ability to do her own stunts and look good in sexy costumes. The possible exception is Garner, who is reasonably believable, but really her part doesn't call for that much. The script (by Pat Proft [Naked Gun] & Tom Sherohman) is moronic, and the special effects are terribly crude. Included at the end is a series of "bloopers," which was probably a last-ditch effort to aid director Stanley Tong's movie in being funny, a task it consistently fails to do. But even the outtakes aren't funny: they are mostly just extra footage at the end of scenes, and a few flubbed lines.

If anyone wants to boycott Disney, this is a better reason than any out there. ★

Cancer Society Offers Smokers Quitting Tips

For those who chose to take on the challenge of quitting smoking as a new year's resolution, the American Cancer Society offers a list of tips that may help those striving for better health by becoming tobacco free.

When a person feels the urge to "light-up," reflecting on the reasons for quitting may help confirm the resolve. These reasons can include family, children, or one's self.

Repetition of the reason 10 times each night can also reaffirm the choice.

Reaching out to other family members for support and finding other smokers to quit at the same time, can increase chances of success.

Counseling support programs can be helpful.

To help deal with craving, smokers are advised to practice 4Ds: deep breathing, drinking lots of water, doing something to occupy thoughts, and delaying reaching out for a cigarette and allowing the urge to pass.

Removing triggers that might entice a person to smoke is recommended. This could include throwing out all cigarettes, cleaning out ashtrays and putting them away, and discarding matches and lighters.

A change of daily habits connected with smoking can also help the quitter. Examples of such changes include driving a different route to work and eating lunch in a new place.

Meals should be eaten slowly with a pause between bites. Leaving the table immediately after finishing a meal can help a person avoid the urge to smoke.

Substituting alcoholic beverages with club soda is suggested. It can help reduce the urge to smoke.

Eating three meals a day is noted as a means of maintaining constant blood sugar levels, thus lowering the desire to smoke.

Drinking six to eight glasses of water, herbal teas, fruit juices, and caffeine-free soft drinks can help cleanse the body of nicotine.

For additional assistance in breaking the cigarette habit, smokers may contact the office of the American Cancer Society at 301-722-2145.

Miss Graybill Becomes Bride Of Mr. Hefferan In October Event

Alison R. Graybill and Michael T. Hefferan were united in marriage October 4, 1997. The double-ring ceremony took place at St. Peter the Apostle Roman Catholic Church in Oakland, with the Reverend Father Martin E. Feild as celebrant. Mike Broderick was organist and Lynn Broderick and George Scheffel were vocalists.

The bride is the daughter of Thomas and Joanne Graybill, Oakland. Mr. Hefferan is the son of Mary Hefferan, Broomall, Pa., and the late Martin Hefferan.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted to the altar by her father, the bride was attired in an original gown designed by Paula Varsalona. The full-length gown with a modified cathedral train was made of Italian satin with sleeves and molded bodice embellished with imported Venice lace. The back of the gown was enhanced with covered satin buttons. The bride carried a bouquet of white roses, stephanotis, and ivy.

Serving as maid of honor was Kerry Graybill, sister of the bride. Bridal attendants were Dawn Scheffel, Oakland, and Jennie Wydra, Drexel Hill, Pa.

Serving as best man was Steve Hefferan, Springfield, Pa., brother of the groom. Groomsmen were Jim Mullen, Elkton, cousin of the groom, and Doug Boyd, Media, Pa.

Scriptural readings were given by Erin Dabney and Joseph Devine. Eucharistic ministers were Al and Jean Coviello. Altar servers were Megan and Matthew Burner. Guest book attendant was Ashley Smith and program attendants were Laura, Shar, and Christa Hollingsworth.

An afternoon reception was hosted by the bride's parents at the Martin E. Feild Social Hall. The reception was catered by Brian Shafer of the Encore. Photography was by Becky Jones of Becky Jones Photography and videography was by Blackwater Video. Music was provided by David Zimmerman.

The cake was made by Shelby Gable of Cresaptown and was decorated with plum-colored flowers. It consisted of three tiers and was arranged on a white wrought iron stand. Flowers were arranged by Green Acres Flower Basket.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's mother at the Will O' the Wisp, Deep Creek Lake, on Friday evening. A video collage of childhood pictures designed by Mr. Hefferan was shown.

For their honeymoon, the couple spent one week in Cozumel, Mexico. Following the trip, they established residence in West Chester, Pa.

The bride is a graduate of Southern High School and Elizabethtown College, with a bachelor of arts degree in public relations and corporate media. She is presently a graduate student in communication disorders at West Chester University. She also is employed by Allied Health Specialists in West Chester.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Penncrest High School and Elizabethtown College, with a bachelor of arts degree in corporate media. He is employed by Deloitte and Toche/ICS in Chadds Ford, Pa.

Out-of-town guests were from Virginia, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, California, Washington, and New York.

Ashby Couple Celebrate 50th

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce A. Ashby of Westernport recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. The couple was married Nov. 7, 1947, at the Methodist Church in Piedmont, W.Va., by the Rev. Raymond L. Moore.

Wedding attendants included Ethelwyn B. Riley, sister of the bride, and Richard H. Ashby, brother of the groom. Mrs. Ashby was the former Margaret Otto, Swanton.

The Ashbys were honored by their son William and his wife Linda, and their children Chase and Tyler, Swanton.

Approximately 60 family members and friends attended the dinner celebration at the Pleasant Valley Community Center. Special works were spoken by Ethelywn Riley; Rev. Mark Hickman, Bethel United Methodist Church, Mtn. Lake Park; Rev. William Shimer, retired, Church of the Brethren, Accident; and Rev. S.D. Sawyers, retired, Trinity United Methodist Church, Piedmont.

Harvey-Dunn Couple To Wed

Bobbi Jo Harvey, New Castle, Pa., and William L. Dunn, Cochranton, Pa., have announced their engagement and are planning a 1998 late summer wedding.

Bobbi, the daughter of Joanna Harvey and the late Earl K. Harvey Jr., graduated in 1989 from Southern High School and from Penn State Cosmetology in 1991. She is currently employed as a hairdresser at Shear Perfection in New Castle and shows quarter horses with her sister, Denise Folck.

Eastern Star Chapter Meets

Oakland Chapter No 67, Order Of The Eastern Star, met Tuesday, Dec. 16, at the Paul B. Naylor Masonic Temple in Oakland. Ted Raynovich, Worthy Patron, presided. Worthy Matron Thelma Henshaw opened with a reading, "Our Christmas Prayer," after which she greeted guests, officers, members of the chapter, and Brothers holding Masonic honors.

The Christmas program included a solo, "There Is A New Kid in Town," by Deborah Raynovich, P.M.

Mrs. Henshaw's closing was "Flower of the Holy Night." The next meeting will be Jan. 6, and there will be an official visit by the Deputy Grand Lecturer.

Two 25-year certificates were presented to Charee Reckner and Linda Hartman at the chapter's previous meeting.

Miss Riley To Wed Mr. Lewis

Audley Jr. and Shirley Riley of Oakland have announced the engagement and forthcoming wedding of their daughter, Donnette Yvonne, to Jamie L. Lewis of Oakland.

The bride is a 1997 graduate of Southern High School. She is employed by Dennett Road Manor Nursing Home and is a full-time student at Garrett Community College.

The groom is the son of Edward and Bonnie Lewis of Oakland. He is a 1996 graduate of Southern High School and is currently employed by Lewis Used Cars.

Wedding arrangements are being planned for a June 13 ceremony at the White United Methodist Church. A reception will follow, where all family and friends will be invited to share in the celebration.

BITTINGER NEWS

A Christmas Eve open house was held at the home of Ellen and Sam Housley and attended by about 70 friends and neighbors. The buffet was prepared by hostess Ellen, daughter Michelle, and mother Margaret. Then many family and friends went out in the rain and sleet to go to the Christmas Eve candlelight service at Emmanuel Lutheran Church. It was the last service for Pastor Mark Klawonn and his family, who moved to a new call at a church in Illinois.

A Christmas pageant was given on the Sunday morning church service at Emmanuel. The display which featured angels, wise men, shepherds, and the manger scene, was narrated by Kyle and Brian Morrison and Rob Vagnetti. A large Christmas tree, decorated with hand-made white and gold chrismons made by some of the members of the church women's group adorned the altar area. Also displayed was a new painting "Oh Holy Night," a gift from the painter, Joan Sussman, in memory of her brother, Scott Glotfelty, who sang a solo"Oh Holy Night," on Christmas Eve in 1988, before leaving for Africa with the Peace Corps.

Ralph and Ethel Buckel spent the holidays with their son Ralph Jr., and family in Chestertown.

John Moon, Baltimore, was a Christmas Eve dinner guest of his grandmother, Beulah Moon. Weekend guests were Brad Moon, and Nan and Whitney Weaver, Westminster. Larry and Ellen Moon were Sunday dinner guests. Beulah spent Christmas Day with family at the home of Larry and Ellen Moon, Finzel.

Holiday dinner guests at the McNally/Pullen home were Sam and Ellen Housley, Sam and Cindy Stanton, and Lenny and Sally Poholsky. Ferne Beachy entertained Scott, Brent, and Torrey at the Poholsky home.

Emmett Michael, Oakland, was a recent guest of Torrey Poholsky. Christmas dinner guests at the Stanton/Beachy home were Clay and Lucretia Stanton and Lenny, Sally, and Torrey.

Overnight guests of Rodney and Marci Glotfelty during the holidays were Mike Flinn, Albuquerque, N.M., and Lynn Farmer and friend, Timonium.

Lenny, Sally, and Torrey Poholsky were Saturday night dinner guests of Monty and Nancy Pagenhardt and girls, Oakland.

Holiday drop-in guests at the Lloyd and Joan Sussman home were Mike Flinn, Albuquerque, N.M. Jennifer Greathouse and Nathan Blatchley, Frostburg, Barry Glotfelty, Frederick, Helen and Mike Englar, Westminster, and Courtney Englar, Accident.

Mark and Leslie Braddock, and their children, Atlanta, were guests of Sam and Ellen Housley over the holidays. Michelle Geis made the dean's list at Virginia Tech, Blacksburg.

Dale Glotfelty entertained with a family dinner at his home on Christmas Day. Attending were the Rodney Glotfelty family, Lloyd Sussman family, Kevin Bass family, Barry Glotfelty, Ruth DiPaolo, Courtney Englar, and Lynn Farmer and guest.

While returning home from a meeting in Oakland last Monday evening, the vehicle being driven by Ruth DiPaolo struck a large Christmas tree that had fallen off a truck in front of her. Ruth was not injured, but there was considerable damage done to her car.

Tom Glotfelty flew to Hagerstown Christmas Day to bring Mr. and Mrs. Dwaine Platter, Adam and Amanda to the Tom Glotfelty home for Christmas dinner. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Oester, Salisbury, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Julius Carey, Chris and Tony, and friend, Evie Morris, of near Frostburg; Mr. and Mrs. James Glotfelty; and Ida Reckner. Tom and Cheryl Glotfelty, Taylor and Tim live in the home of the late Elwood and Beatrice Glotfelty on Rock Lodge Road. Following dinner and a gift exchange, Tom returned the Platters to their home at Smithsburg.

Monday lunch guests of Ida Reckner were Charee Smith and daughter Michaele of Allentown, Pa., and Lillian Reckner, McHenry.

Mr. and Mrs. James Glotfelty visited Mr. and Mrs. Dwaine Platter and children at Smithsburg, on Sunday. Adam and Amanda returned here with them to spend the holidays.

Martha Glotfelty, her son Hammel, and Kay Frazee visited Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Friend and Mrs. Cecil Kelly in Friendsville on Sunday, Dec. 21. Overnight guests of Martha Glotfelty on Dec. 23 and 24 were Lillian L. Harvey, Hyattsville, and her niece, Ruth Ann Chloros. On Dec. 23, James and Lori Radford, their daughters Starr and Tiffany, and Stanley Miller visited Martha. Her son, Dr. Donald Glotfelty, visited Martha on Dec. 24, along with Paula Seaman and her daughter, Darlene Smith. Christmas visitors at Martha's were Earle Harvey and Ronald Rodeheaver.

Food For Thought

Zip, zip, here's a shrimp fra diavolo! Sizzle 2 cloves garlic, minced, and ¼ tsp. crushed red pepper in a splash of olive oil. Add a 28-ounce can of plum tomatoes and cook five minutes. Add 3/4 pound shrimp and cook two minutes more. Is the pasta ready?

Holiday cocoa treat: thread a marshmallow onto a peppermint stick or candy cane and use it for a stirrer in the mug.

How long to marinate meat? If it needs to be tenderized, four hours or more; if the marinade is just for flavor, 30 minutes may be adequate. Don't overdo, especially for fish and poultry; the marinade may change the texture of the food.

The trick to meringue that doesn't "weep" on a pie: spread the meringue on warm filling to the very edge of the crust.

Ever wish for a low-fat frozen dessert? Buzz together a peeled frozen banana and a cup of chilled pineapple juice in the blender. Pour in a glass, add pineapple sherbet, and fill with club soda.

Here's wishing you a happy—and delicious— new year.

Rams Top Beall, But Fall To BW In Tourney Final

With a 50-41 defeat of Beall on Friday in an opening-round game of the annual Browning's Foodland-/Arby's Snowball Classic, hosted by Southern High School, the Southern Rams advanced to Saturday's title game of the four-team tourney, but were whipped in that contest for the second time this season by Bishop Walsh, 62-45. The Spartans earned a spot in the championship game by stopping Preston County in the other opener, 73-57.

The loss was the third in seven starts for Coach Tom Bosley's Rams, who will not play again until next Tuesday, Jan. 6, at Fort Hill. Bishop Walsh upped its record to 7-2 with its pair of victories in the tournament.

Jayson Garland led Southern's scoring in the win over Beall, as he finished with 20 points. Mike Pamepinto also reached double figures with 11 points.

The Mountaineers, who remain winless on the season, took a brief lead, but the Rams came back to win the first quarter, 12-10. They increased their lead to 23-18 by halftime, and were up by 10 points, 40-30, going into the final period.

Ryan Raley was the only Beall player who reached double figures, as he recorded 16. Todd Merbaugh finished with nine.

Beall was the defending champion of the tournament.

In Bishop Walsh's win over Preston, Nelson Guerin and Joe Rowan led the Spartans in scoring with 14 points each, while Jason Bolyard and Nate Haskiell paced the Knights with 19 and 16 points, respectively.

While a 17-point margin of victory by Bishop Walsh over Southern in Saturday night's title game is significant, it appeared early in the contest that the Rams would be totally embarrassed, as the Spartans scored the first 22 points of the game. The score was 20-0 at the end of the first quarter and BW hit the first bucket of the second quarter.

Before the Rams finally settled down and began to hit the hoop in that second stanza, BW had built its biggest lead, 30-2. However, the Rams hit 17 of the next 25 points and trailed the Spartans at intermission by a 38-17 spread. The visitors stretched their lead to 53-27 by the end of the third quarter. Southern outscored the Spartans in the final stanza, 18-9, but the rally fell well short.

Bishop Walsh finished with a balanced offensive effort, as four players recorded double figures in scoring. Joe Rowan led with 13 points, Travis Jessie and Brett Blanco each netted 12, and Jason Ricker contributed 10.

Mike Paesani and Mike Pamepinto each scored 11 points for the Rams, and Paesani also grabbed seven rebounds. Nathan DiSimone dished out six assists.

Travis Jessie of BW was named the tournament's MVP and was joined on the all-tournament team by teammates Rowan and Ricker, Preston's Jason Bolyard, Southern's Paesani, and Beall's Ryan Raley.

Shawn Myers of Preston was named the Most Outstanding Player of the tourney, and also won the slam-dunk competition. Mike Pamepinto won the three-point shooting contest, as he hit eight of 13 attempts in 30 seconds.

The Rams were originally scheduled to play at Northern this Friday, Jan. 2, but that contest has been postponed until Jan. 16.

Preston won the consolation game, which preceded the title match-up, by a 64-48 margin. Shawn Myers scored a tournament-high 30 points and Jason Bolyard finished with 16 to pace Preston (3-2). Raley and Nick Marsh led Beall (0-6) with 13 and 11 points, respectively.

Saturday Scores 48 In Maple City Classic As Rams Split

Jessica Saturday and Bridget Miller combined for 40 points Tuesday night in the consolation game of Meyersdale's Maple City Classic as the Southern girls' basketball team defeated Somerset 52-47. The Rams win followed an opening round loss to Meyersdale, 72-64. Southern's record stands at 3-3.

In the loss to the host team Monday night, Jessica Saturday hit for a game-high 27 points, while Liz Paesani added 13 and Bridget Miller contributed 11. Meyersdale's Susan Warnick scored 21 points, Tanya Hardesty scored 19 points and Lisa Dom added 14 points as Meyersdale led throughout the contest.

Saturday led all scorers again in the Somerset matchup, racking up 21 points while Bridget Miller added 19 points. Somerset's Amanda Jack scored 14 points and Angela Niemier added 10 points.

The Rams trailed after each of the first three quarters, but turned on the juice in the final period to bomb Somerset 21-11 in the final dozen minutes.

Southern's upcoming schedule shows a home game against the Westmar Wildcats Monday night and an excursion down the mountain to visit Fort Hill on Wednesday.

Ram Freshman In Finals Of Romney Event

The freshman boys' basketball team of Southern High School will vie this afternoon for the championship of the Romney Junior High Christmas Tournament, as the Rams topped Capon Bridge on Monday, 42-30. Southern will play host Romney Junior High this afternoon in the title game, slated to tip off at 1:15 p.m.

In the contest against Capon Bridge, Michael Saturday, the nation's fourth best free throw shooter for his age group, fired the ball to Jamie Bosley, who put the first two points on the board. The Rams never trailed in the game, and were on top 10-4 at the end of the first quarter. The stretched their lead to 23-10 by halftime, and were up 30-20 after three quarters.

Bryan Panther, Steve Eiswert, and Bosley combined for 31 points and 24 rebounds against the taller Capon Bridge team, which featured 6-6 center Mike Marsh. Marsh had a dozen blocked shots for Capon Bridge.

Ryan Ewing and Saturday each recorded four assists.

"Our defensive pressure won another game for us," stated Jon Hegeman, the Rams' coach. "We held their top two scorers in check and our man-to-man pressure didn't allow them to take good shots."

Following today's game with Romney, the Rams (3-1) will play at Westmar this Saturday, with game time set for 11 a.m.

Elks Hoop Shoot Scheduled For Jan. 11 At SHS

Local competition for the 26th Annual Elks Hoop Shoot, "The National Free Throw Shooting Contest," for youngsters age 8 through 13, will be held at Southern High School gymnasium on Sunday, Jan. 11. The doors will be opened at noon for registration and warm-up practice, and competition will officially begin at 1 p.m. All parents are reminded to bring proof of age for each child.

Over 3.5 million youngsters from throughout the country entered last year's competition for boys and girls in age categories 8-9; 10-11; and 12-13. Each contestant has 25 shots at the hoop. The boy and girl in each age group with the best scores advance through four tiers of competition to qualify for the national finals.

Last year's competition saw a local participant advance all the way to the national level in Springfield, Mass., to tie for fourth place in the nation in his age group. Michael Saturday represented not only the Oakland Lodge but the State Association, which consists of Maryland, Delaware, and the District of Columbia. Michael's age group, which was 12-13, had over 635,000 other boys participating for a spot as national champion.

Local winners will compete against other contestants in the regional event at St. Maria Goretti High, Hagerstown, on February 10. If further information is required, the Hoop Shoot director is Jerry Swiger, who may be telephoned at 301-334-1707.

Huskies Advance To Williamsport Tourney Finals, Then Fall To Hosts

After opening its Williamsport Christmas Tournament visit by beating Boonesboro 57-36, Northern's girls' basketball team fell in the championship game by four points to Williamsport, 26-30. The tournament split maintained the Huskies' .500 record at 3-3 for the season.

The Huskies dominated Boonesboro throughout Monday's opening contest. A balanced offensive attack keyed the win as three Huskies tallied double figures in scoring, led by Brooke Brenneman's 14 points. Kathy Arnold added 12 and Laurel Wolf contributed 11. Jill Speicher drilled two three-point baskets from long range on her way to an eight point total.

In Tuesday's championship game against Williamsport, a combined 22 points from Brenneman and Heidi Frazee was not enough to overcome the tournament hosts, as Northern fell 30-26. Brenneman scored 14 points and Frazee scored eight, while Laurel Wolf and Kathy Arnold added a basket apiece to round out the Huskies' point production. Brenneman took down eight rebounds, while Frazee dished out a team-high six assists.

Williamsport's victory took a cue from Northern's earlier win, as its offensive production was balanced among seven players, led by Megan Andrews' 14 points. Ashley VanNorden popped in the night's only three-point goal in the closing seconds to put the game on ice.

Northern's Brenneman was named to the All-Tournament Team. The Huskies' next contest will be at home against Allegany on Monday evening, followed by a road trip to Salisbury on Wednesday night.

Lower Cataract Risk: A Benefit of Estrogen

Cataracts are a clouding of the lens of the eye. If left untreated, cataracts can distort light entering the eye and cause loss of vision. The formation of cataracts in one or both eyes affects approximately 13 million Ameri-cans age 40 and above. Factors associated with cataract formation include aging, diabetes, direct injury to the eyeball, and long-term use of steroid medicines (oral and inhaled).

In women the incidence of cataracts increases after menopause, leading scientists to suspect that estrogen may play a role in the development of age related cataracts. Recently, Spanish researchers evaluated a group of postmenopausal women in hopes of learning more about the development of cataracts. One group took estrogen for at least 4 years, and another group had not taken estrogen. Those who took estrogen had better light transmission through the lens of their eyes. An earlier study of 43 women published in 1994 found similar results. If other studies support these findings, physicians will have yet another reason to prescribe estrogen for their postmenopausal patients. Estrogen is usually prescribed to prevent bone loss and hot flashes in older women. Recently, it also has been shown that women who take estrogen may live longer and have less memory loss associated with Altzheimer's disease.

Thank you for all your help . . .

The need has been great this year, and in Garrett County, so many of you have offered your help. Although the fund-raising portion of this year's campaign ended on December 31, the WARM THE CHILDREN account will remain open, to be replenished for 1998.

Just what is The Republican Newspaper's WARM THE CHILDREN FUND?

The Republican's WARM THE CHILDREN FUND is neighbors helping neighbors. Money has been donated to the newspaper's fund for the past two months, and is currently in a savings account. Over 100 needy children, from babies to teenagers, have been accompanied by volunteer shoppers to the Treasure Island Department Store, where they have chosen their own new winter clothing – coats, hats, sweaters, jeans, long underwear, and other warm items. Up to $80 has been spent on each child. Treasure Island management has kindly kept the purchases on a running bill, which will be paid in full at the end of the campaign.

While the money-raising portion of the effort has been concluded, the shopping trips are continuing. The total raised was not calculated by press time, but the amount has far surpassed $8,000. This is far more money than the organizers had expected.

Can I still help?

Yes. People who would like to volunteer to shop with families may still do so. Interested persons should contact Mary McEwen, the project coordinator, at The Republican office: 301-334-3963. Several volunteers are on the list, including several who have already gone and want to do it again, but more are always welcome.

THE REPUBLICAN

As the money is totaled and the effort for this year winds down, the newspaper staff will be compiling a large thank-you advertisement, to appear in a future issue. Hundreds of people have answered the call for help, and the kindness that has been shown has directly helped many local children—children who are in need by no fault of their own, children who need and deserve a helping hand.

The account will remain open and the paper will repeat the effort in 1998. Persons who wish to donate to the account for next year's effort may certainly do so, and those who want to put their names on the volunteer list for 1998 may also do so.

The boy and his grandfather walked together on the beach, which was littered with starfish. The grandfather picked up a starfish and pitched it into the ocean. He stooped and picked up another one and pitched it into the ocean. He continued to pick up one starfish at a time and toss it into the water.

"Why are you doing that?" the boy asked. "There are millions of starfish lying around here. It doesn't make any difference."

The grandfather picked up another and tossed it in.

"To that one it does," he said.

Southern Mat Club Members Earn Trophies

Eleven members of the Southern Mat Club youth wrestling team competed in a holiday wrestling tournament Saturday at Lost Creek, W.Va. This was the first major test for the team, and the local youngsters fared well, by capturing four individual championships, two second places, one third place, and two fourth places. Out of 33 individual matches, Southern's wrestlers won 22, including 13 pins.

Southern Mat Club champions included Justin Ratliff, ages 7-8, 60 pounds; David Ratliff, 9-10, 65 pounds; Scott Wildesen, 9-10, 80 pounds; and Jason Weeks, 11-12, 92 pounds.

Finishing second were Nick Tressler, ages 7-8, 45 pounds, and Scott Wildesen, 9-10, 90 pounds. Ryan Gregory captured a third place in the 7-8, 110-pound division, and winning fourth places for the local team were Jeremy Gregory, 7-8, 75 pounds, and Holly Kuhn, 13-15, 155 pounds.

Also competing were Daniel Carr, 7-8, 60 pounds, who won two of four matches, and Tyler Gregory, age 4, 40 pounds, who won one of three matches.

"The kids wrestled very well," stated Coach Buck Liller. "The competition was tough and we still had 10 of 11 wrestlers make the semi-final round. Their hard work in practice really showed."

The Southern Mat Club, which travels each week to tournaments throughout the area, will host its own tourney on January 31 at Southern High School.

TOP READERS

During the month of December, second, third, fourth, and fifth graders at Friendsville Elementary School read library books and then took computerized tests on them. The students earned points for passing these tests, and the higher the reading level and the longer the book, the more points were earned.

The top 10 fifth grade point earners (listed first through 10th) were: Margaret Mastej, Abbi Sisler, Holly Sisler, Nicole Kovach, J.D. Nottingham, Amanda Friend, Ben Margroff, Stacey Riggleman, Jackie Smetzer, and Keith Sines.

Earning the top 10 positions in the fourth grade were: Andrew Frazee, Angela Umbel, Chris Thomas, Tim Eggleston, Maddi Sisler, Chelsie Bittinger, Scott Fike, Brittney Dumire, Holly Wampler, and Jessica Friend.

Third grade top 10 point earners were: Emily Sisler, Wesley Ditmore, Randi Dumire, Heather Thomas, Andrew Sisler, Jennifer Hoover, Shawna Stallman, Aaron Frazee, Kelsey Lytle, and Angela Nunez.

The top 10 positions at the second grade level were: Roland Fisher, Johanna Winter, Tiffine Sliger, Jessica Kelly, Travis Selby, Celeste Lins, Samantha Seip and Leah Frazee (tied for seventh place), and Nicole Fike and Evan Frazee (tied for ninth place).

The top 15 grade point earners for the school were selected by dividing the points they earned by their grades (example: 10 points/fifth grade = 2; 10 points/fourth (4) grade = 2.5; etc.). The first through 15th place point earners were: Margaret Mastej, Andrew Frazee, Angela Umbel, Abbi Sisler, Holly Sisler, Chris Thomas, Emily Sisler, Tim Eggleston, Wesley Ditmore, Nicole Kovach, Maddi Sisler, J.D. Nottingham, Randi Dumire, Roland Fisher, and Amanda Friend.

The third grader who made the 10 point club during December was Aaron Frazee, and making the 25 point club was Wesley Ditmore.

Fourth graders in the 15 point club are Chelsie Bittinger, Lindsay Busswood, Jessica Friend, Casey Slagle, and Holly Wampler. Twenty-five point club members are Tim Eggleston, Chris Thomas, and Angela Umbel. At 50 points is Andrew Frazee.

Fifth graders in the 15 point club are J.D. Nottingham and Jackie Smetzer. The 25 point club members are Becky Michaels, Ashley Ross, and Abbi Sisler. Stacey Riggleman and Holly Sisler achieved the 50 point club status, and Margaret Mastej currently remains the only member of the 100 point club.

Thank You!

The members of the Oakland Rotary Club and 99KHJ wish to thank everyone who participated in so many ways with this year's Christmas Project. Businesses who sponsored Christmas giving trees, organizations and individuals who made monetary donations, people who purchased gifts from the giving trees, packed and delivered presents and food baskets county wide, all helped to make Christmas much brighter for 480 Garrett County families.

Thank each of you for sharing the spirit of Christmas and the gift of giving.

Farm Management Courses Offered At Garrett CC

The University of Maryland, Institute of Applied Agriculture (IAA) in cooperation with Garrett Community College, will offer a number of farm management courses at the GCC campus during the spring semester. Courses this spring will include Farm Management, Feeds and Feeding, Animal Health, and Artificial Insemination for Cattle.

The Farm Management course will improve farm decision making by examining farm budgeting, enterprise analysis, partial budgeting, and farm taxes. Students will develop management plans to analyze farm profitability. Feeds and Feeding covers the fundamentals of animal nutrition. Animal digestion and feed evaluation will be considered, while balancing rations for swine, sheep, beef and dairy cattle. A portion of this course will be delivered by Elaine Bailey, IAA Animal Science instructor, via compressed video.

Animal Health will cover symptoms, control, treatment, and prevention of common diseases of farm livestock. Classes will feature local veterinarians, extension specialists, and producers, who will discuss health management programs and disease control. Artificial Insemination of Cattle will be a hands-on class in reproductive management. Students will be given the opportunity to learn how to inseminate cattle.

Students may enroll in the Agriculture Management program or take courses for personal interest. For more information on any of the courses or to enroll, call Willie Lantz at 301-387-3021. The spring semester will begin on January 20.

Conservation Grant Manager Named At MDA

Maryland Department of Agriculture Secretary Lewis Riley has announced the appointment of Edward A. Sanders as Conservation Grants Program Manager in the Office of Resource Conservation. Sanders formerly worked as a conservation specialist with the Conservation Grants Program.

In his new position as program manager, Sanders will work closely with the state's 24 soil conservation districts to implement the Maryland Agricultural Water Quality Cost-Share Program (MACS). Under the MACS program, farmers receive up to 87.5 percent of the cost to install certain agricultural best management practices to control soil erosion, manage nutrients and protect water quality. Sanders will supervise the cost-share grant application process and oversee the development of grant arrangements between MDA, soil conservation districts, and landowners.

Additional duties will involve cost-share oversight for the state Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program. This program provides payments to farmers who convert certain environmentally sensitive lands into conservation cover, vegetative buffers, or riparian forests.

"We are pleased to have Ed at the helm of our Conservation Grants team," said Secretary Riley. "Because of his technical background, Ed brings unique insight based on practical experience into the special challenges Maryland farmers face in protecting our natural resources while maintaining a profitable farm. I'm confident he'll do a great job for both agriculture and the environment," he added.

Sanders has worked for MDA's Office of Resource Conservation for just over a decade serving as a soil conservation technician and planner in the Carroll Soil Conservation District office. Prior to joining MDA, he worked for six years as a full time farmer at a dairy and grain operation in Tanneytown. He attended Millersville State College in Pennsylvania.

Sanders resides with his wife and two children in Littlestown, Pa., where he owns and operates a 100-acre grain, hay and beef operation.

GCC Schedules Free Rabbit Raising Workshop

A free rabbit production workshop has been scheduled by the Garrett County Cooperative Extension Office for Saturday, Jan. 17, from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Garrett Community College. The interactive live video course, geared for both existing and potential small-scale rabbit producers, will provide participants with rabbit production information with an emphasis on breeding and reproduction.

The interactive live video course will feature nationally renown guest lecturer and small-scale rabbit production specialist Dr. James I. McNitt, who will be answering production questions throughout the presentation. McNitt established the rabbit research program at Southern University in Baton Rouge, La., and is the author of Rabbit Production, a widely recognized book for up-to-date information.

Persons interested in obtaining further information, or in registering for the free workshop, may call the local Extension Office at 301-334-6960. Registration is required and must be received by Friday, Jan 9.

Farm Bureau Says Climate Deal Bad For U.S. Farmers

American negotiators for the Global Climate Change Treaty discussions in Kyoto, Japan, settled on a deal Farm Bureau and other observers call "bad" for American farmers and ranchers. The future of the treaty is also uncertain because the administration said the pact will not be submitted to the Senate for ratification for at least a year.

Under the Kyoto agreement, the United States would be required to cut emissions of key "greenhouse" gases by 7 percent below 1990 levels. The European Union would be required to cut its emissions by 8 percent below 1990 levels, with Japan agreeing to a 6 percent cut. Developing nations—more than 130 strong—will not be required to cut emissions at all, bucking a stern message by the Senate earlier this year that said any climate change agreement must encompass all nations of the world.

"The Kyoto agreement did not include all countries and failed to address the concerns of U.S. farm and ranch families and the concerns of the U.S. Senate," said American Farm Bureau Federation President Dean Kleckner. "In agreeing to the exemptions of some countries and the binding reductions on greenhouse gas emissions for the United States, the Clinton administration completely ignored the concerns of agricultural organizations, business, industry and labor groups and endorsed a climate agreement that is detrimental to America."

Kleckner said farmers and ranchers will face new, major taxes and increased costs of fuel, electricity, fertilizer and chemicals if the treaty is approved. Studies have shown that the cost of agricultural production will increase under the Kyoto agreement and that net farm income could be slashed by 25 percent to 50 percent as a result.

Increased production costs tied with the lack of restraint on developing nations also could hamstring American farmers and ranchers in the export markets they have worked so hard to cultivate.

"[The agreement] puts U.S. producers at an extreme disadvantage in international markets because it applies only to developed nations," Kleckner said. "The remaining 130 developing countries, including Mexico, China, Indonesia, Chile and Argentina, are not required to reduce emissions under the agreement."

AFBF Senior Governmental Relations Director Dennis Stolte, who was in Kyoto to observe the negotiations, echoed Kleckner's concerns, noting that cuts to farmers' and ranchers' already slim operating margins could be devastating to some producers.

Stolte said American producers would suffer major setbacks abroad if the treaty is approved in its current state.

"Few sectors of the American economy can match our farmers' strong record of stewardship of the nation's land and resources," Stolte said. "American farmers have reduced their energy use per acre and increased food production at the same time. Farm families in the U.S. cannot afford to surrender their markets and lose significant portions of their incomes."

School Prinicpals Use Technology To Connect Two Communities

by Peggy Santamaria

When the new Yough Glades Elementary School opens in a few weeks, there will be only two small community elementary schools remaining that feed into Southern Middle School — Kitzmiller Elementary and Crellin Elementary. The principals of these schools, Linda Buckel of Kitzmiller, and Keith Harvey of Crellin, decided to link students, share resources, and expand opportunities.

Other county elementary schools that feed into SMS comprise larger student populations than do Kitzmiller and Crellin.

While noting that there is much to recommend the small community school, Harvey and Buckel agreed that the children moving from such an environment into a middle school, where the other students have many more friends, could be hard on their students.

So the two educators began talking about ways that the children in the two schools could expand their circles of friends. Linking the two schools, they said, would provide a more extensive view and broader base of awareness of the world beyond their existing environments and communities.

They were also on the lookout for ways to extend options and opportunities for interactions between the schools.

Through their discussions, Buckel and Harvey began to see that greater support and increased instructional resources would be available to their teachers through such interactions. "Teachers could exchange ideas, materials, share resources. It would give teachers the feeling that though they are in a small school, they are not alone," Buckel said.

But how they would achieve this was unclear, they said.

Some doors began to open for the principals when Dr. Brenda McCartney, director of curriculum K-8, told them about the availability of a grant. Things were looking up.

The two principals applied, and their request was granted. The objectives of the project developed by Harvey and Buckel were described in the grant application in terms of technological support, staff training, and opportunities for interaction.

They would use the grant money to purchase computer equipment, to train the teachers on the use of the software, and to create activities for accomplishing the interactions desired.

Once funds were in hand, Buckel and Harvey began in earnest to link their schools. "We began meeting in June to develop some ideas," Harvey said.

Sharing the idea behind this project with the teachers at the two elementary schools was primary. A staff development program was laid out. The objectives of the project were presented to the teachers at the training.

The goals were: to provide a cultural experience for the students and staffs of Crellin and Kitzmiller; to provide the opportunity for students and staffs of CR/KZ to work cooperatively in an educational setting; and to provide an informative program from which the students and staffs of CR and KZ could build additional educational activities.

Among other concepts explored by the principals were those which would give the students at both schools interaction with each via face-to-face computer technology, but also actual interaction in the traditional sense.

Using the computers installed in the schools via the grant money, the children at each location embarked on a pen pal program with their peers at the other school. They talk to their pen pals once a month," Harvey said.

Beside having pen pals, the students share in a "math think link" activity. Math problems are solved by the students in both schools jointly, Harvey explained.

The time that can be dedicated to the computer interaction between the school is limited. "Each school only has one incoming phone line," Buckel said. "When we can get an additional line coming into each school the interaction will increased," she added.

The "see-you-see-me" technology used in the project allows the students to see each other on the computer screen as they connect. Learning to use the equipment took some time, but the students seemed eager, the principals

"WON'T YOU BE MY NEIGHBOR?" Students at Kitzmiller and Crellin elementary schools are acquiring new "neighbors" thanks to a computer connection between the schools that allows the children to get to know each other. Principals Keith Harvey, Crellin, and Linda Buckel, Kitzmiller, are working to expand opportunities for the students and the teachers at their schools. Above left is a photo of Kelle Hostutler, seated at the computer, and Chaz Lantz, both fourth graders at Crellin, as they connect through "see-you-see-me" technology with students at Kitzmiller. At a get-together at GCC the children linked up with their pen pals. Above right, Corey Steiringer of Kitzmiller is pictured as shaking hands with Breanna Baker of Crellin, while Kristy Dawson, center, of Kitzmiller looks on. Games and activities, pictured below left, filled the day at GCC as students developed new friendships. In the spirit of the Vaudeville program, teacher Richard Stevens climbed in the boxing ring with Harvey as the children and teachers cheered them on.

Baltimore Art Museum Displays SHS Art Project

A collaboration of eight Southern High School art students created a work that will be displayed at the Baltimore Museum of Art (BMA) through the end of January.

As part of "The Grand Challenge," a competition of eighth through twelfth graders from across the state, the SHS group chose to create a miniature victorian tea table which served as a symbol of the Victorian Age. The stately exterior of the table symbolized the formal life of the era, while a secret compartment inside contained imagery that addressed issues of the time through the eyes of Lewis Carrol, author of Alice in Wonderland.

The Grand Challenge, sponsored by the BMA, is a competition of members of the National Art Honorary, in which students were challenged to form a team to design and manufacture an object worthy of exhibition at London's Victoria and Albert Museum. The competition is being held in conjunction with the BMA exhibition titled "A Grand Design: The Art of the Victoria and Albert Museum," on display until Jan. 18.

The team's project had to be accompanied by documentation of the production process and a "proposal for acquisition" which justified how the work met the Victoria and Albert Museum's five criteria for acquisition: aesthetic, technical, historical, documentary and space. The contest's winning team will be flown to London to tour the Victoria and Albert Museum.

The SHS team and the families of student team members will attend a reception at the BMA in early January.

New Horizons Has Tuition Funds Available

The New Horizons Program, a single parent, displaced homemaker, and single pregnant women project, sponsored by the Maryland State Department of Education and Garrett Community College, still has approximately $3,000 tuition assistance money remaining to be used by eligible program participants in pursuing vocational training in both non-credit and credit classes. The money is available for the 1997-98 funding year, which ends June 30, 1998.

Credit and non-credit tuition assistance is a continuing part of the program again this funding year, and the New Horizons staff is ready to make this money available to persons interested in vocational training.

Arrangements have also been made to assist program participants with the purchase of books to be used in taking classes. Between $20 and $40 is available per student per class, depending on income. There is also child care and/or transportation assistance available to program participants while taking training. Income eligibility will be the determining factor in providing this assistance.

Interested persons may contact New Horizons between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. weekdays at 301-387-3071 or 301-387-3102 for more information or to schedule an appointment, or they may visit the New Horizons office at the McHenry campus of GCC in the Center for Community and Continuing Education, Room 302.

The New Horizons Program is jointly funded by the Maryland State Department of Education and GCC. Grants funds in the amount of $45,000 are made available to the program through the Division of Career Technology and Adult Learning, which is 90 percent of the total program budget, with GCC contributing an additional $5,200, which is 10 percent of the total budget.

School Principals said.

A bit of dialogue between children at computers in the two schools was noted by Harvey that exemplified the learning process. KZ: "Hi, Chaz, I'm Brandon. We see you now." CR: "What do you think about this?" KZ: "This is cool, but we can only see your heads." CR: "Is this better?" KZ: "Now we can't see you at all."

In the fall a get-together program was held at Garrett Community College. Children and teachers from Crellin and Kitzmiller had the opportunity to connect and interact in a variety of activities.

A performance by the Mirth Makers of West Virginia University was on the agenda. This troupe presented a Vaudeville program replete with juggling, clowning, mime, and unicycling.

Interactive audience participation was integral to the program, which was followed by a discussion session with questions and answers. Harvey even found himself in the boxing ring on stage facing Richard Stevens, first grade teacher at Crellin Elementary.

Buckel explained that each child attending the get-together wore a tag of a particular color and shape that matched one worn by a student at the other elementary school. "They found their pen pals by finding the child with the matching tag," she said.

Harvey and Buckel said the get-together experience was a success. "At the beginning of the day the children couldn't make eye contact with each other, but by lunch time you could hear them saying things like 'Come sit with me,'" she recounted.

To expand the children's interaction and sense of friendship, a Christmas craft exchange for pen pals was organized.

Harvey and Buckel said they hope to be able to enhance this program and carry it into the future. Funds for staff training have been depleted, but that has not slowed the planning process.

Reflecting on the positive effects of the fall activity at GCC, both principals spoke of wanting to repeat the experience. "We hope to have a spring connection between the students," Buckel said. Until that time, the children and the teachers of the two school will continue to share classroom activities and challenges.

Local Frostburg Student Speaks At Commencement

At Frostburg State University's 111th commencement ceremony held December 20, Jennifer Stanton Dyar was the student speaker chosen from the School of Arts & Humanities. Graduating with a bachelor's degree in history and a minor in English, Dyar has also acquired the necessary skills to stay on top of the latest technology by adding web page construction to her list of achievements. Having maintained a perfect 4.0 grade point average throughout her college career, she graduated summa cum laude.

Dyar is a member of Phi Alpha Theta, Sigma Tau Delta, and the National Dean's List. She is active in numerous community and church activities, including singing with the church choir and playing piano and flute. She plans to pursue a career in historical and legal research.

As a non-traditional student, Dyar has strong ties to Garrett County, where she lives on a 205-acre family farm with her husband Thomas in a 94-year-old house built by her great-grandparents. She helps her father during haymaking and maple syrup production as he farms the land that has been in the family for over 115 years. She is the daughter of Dr. Guy and Linda Stanton, Grantsville.

Glendale Church Offers Days Of Prayer, Fasting

The Glendale Assembly of God Church will sponsor two days of prayer and fasting on Thursday, Jan. 1, and Monday, Jan. 5.

The church will open at 7 a.m. both days for those who wish to stop in to spend a few moments in prayer. These days set aside for prayer will be part of an ongoing program at Glendale Assembly of God to give people the opportunity to set aside some time for praying.

Pastor Goldizen invites everyone in the community to stop in and participate in these days of prayer.

The old year wanes. The last sands trickle down the hourglass as the old man totters into irrevocable past and a lusty infant year begins.

Bells ring in church steeples, confetti rains, horns blow. People sing and shout and maybe shed a tear. Cries of "Happy New Year" fill the ears and fall on happy hearts, or sad.

To some, the old year brought joy and happiness. To others it held sadness and despair. Thus, men greet the new year differently; some with mockery, some with resolution, still others with a smile.

Whatever your feelings about the year ahead, there is one way to be sure of its promise. God is the source of all goodness. Make Him and His house a part of your life and you will find the strength and inspiration to make each day prosperous.

The sum of our days shapes the year.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE INHERITANCE
January 4, 1998

Background Scripture:
1 Peter 1:3-22
Devotional Reading:
Hebrews 11:1-12

I inherited from my parents what remained of their collection of old photographs. The last few weeks I have been sorting them out, identifying them and placing them into one or more photo albums along with my own photos that span the years between 1930 and the present.

Working with these photographs has caused me to ruminate on my family inheritance. I don't mean a material inheritance—money, property, investments—but the more lasting kind that can be passed on from generation to generation by the force of personal influence. I have concluded that I am heir to a very rich inheritance.

Working with these photographs has also made me reflective. I look at the photos of me at two months, two years, six, twelve and so on, comparing those images with the man I see every morning in the mirror when I shave. Is there any continuity between them? Anything left of the youthful idealism and superficial confidence?

DANGEROUS PHOTOS

Old photographs can be dangerous if they lead us to live in the past. That is truly a sign of old age, although not maturity. Just as the young seem to live only for the future, the elderly appear to live too much in the past. But, no matter how wonderful or how disappointing our pasts may have been, the power for living here and now is not to be found in the past.

Actually, maturity has nothing to do with chronological age. The meaning of life is based upon a hope that far transcends any of those upon which I have trusted over the years. As a youth I had great hopes for myself. I wouldn't make the mistakes and commit the sins I saw all around me. I would never be prejudiced or intolerant, never hurtful to others, never negligent in my responsibilities. The gospel and I (maybe not in that order) would transform the church and save society.

Looking back, I can see that none of those hopes were truly realized. On that basis, I should be very disillusioned. But I am not! For I have found a hope that does not fade with time. 1 Peter 1:3,4 says it more eloquently: "By his great mercy we have been born anew to a living hope through the resurrection of Jesus Christ...and to an inheritance which is imperishable, undefiled, and unfading..."

A LIVING HOPE

Everything else in which I have trusted has proven to be perishable, corruptible, and inconstant—myself, others, ideologies, society, yes even churches. The only "living hope" I have is the inheritance that is offered to all of us: "his great mercy." Everything in this world decays, is destroyed or violated, but our inheritance—salvation through the mercy of God— is "kept in heaven" for us where, as Jesus said, "neither moth nor rust consumes and where thieves do not break in and steal" (Mt. 7:20).

1 Peter says, "In this you rejoice, though now for a little while you may have to suffer various trials, so that the genuineness of your faith...may redound to praise and honor at the revelation of Jesus Christ" (1:7) Our hope is not that we can avoid the failures of the past or the trials of the present, but that there is a salvation awaiting us beyond both past and present.

Maybe as youth we do not truly appreciate the good news of salvation because we do not yet realize how truly we need salvation and how impotent everything else is to provide it. In our early years we see salvation in many directions. It is only in time that we find that each of these, save one, is a blind alley. So, betrayed by so many salvations we can see, we may come to trust in one we cannot: "Without having seen him you love him; though you do not now see him you believe in him and rejoice with unutterable and exalted joy" (1 Peter 1:8.)

In the Oxford Annotated Bible there is a footnote: "Inheritance expresses the forward-looking character of the Christian life; the greater part of the riches is yet to come." That is our inheritance: a "living hope" that the really best—imperishable, undefiled and unfading— is yet to be.

Proper Tools Make Job Easy

When your child runs in crying with a cut or scrape do you have the proper things on hand to clean and bandage? Or do you have to "make do" with what you've got? It's a good idea to keep a variety of items on hand. Having the right thing always makes the job easier.

Are you aware of the different sizes of bandages, tape and gauze rolls? Different sizes easily fit different parts of the body and give better protection to a wound. We will be pleased to introduce you to the basic items you should stock in your medicine chest. Shopping in a professional pharmacy makes all the difference.

COVER STORY

Style & Substance is a good thing

By Suzanne Gill

Jean Smart

Can a woman who makes her own marshmallows have a sense of humor?

That's the question to be answered in the premiere of Style & Substance Monday, Jan. 5, on CBS. The show replaces Cybill for a limited run until the network begins its coverage of the 1998 Olympic Winter Games in Nagano, Japan, in February.

Jean Smart (Designing Women) stars as Chelsea Stevens, an overachieving domestic goddess who has her own TV show, magazine and farmhouse in Connecticut. But she's not to be confused with you know who.

"I certainly do not want to offend her," Smart says in reference to Martha Stewart comparisons. "What (our show) does is take the idea of someone who does what she does and who has become so enormously popular she's part of our culture. To base a character on somebody in that kind of profession is sort of a natural."

That's not to say Style & Substance is just a big slice of life a la mode.

"Like any show that succeeds, it really doesn't matter what the person does for a living," Smart says. "If you like the group of people, if they're funny and they have good chemistry, you'll watch them do anything."

The only Designing woman currently on a network sitcom, Smart has shed the kid sister image she had on her old series and emerged as a comic diva in her own right. She initially was offered Style two years ago, but a prior commitment forced her to pass. Last year a pilot was made with another actress, then scrapped. Then executive producer Peter Tolan approached Smart again.

"I cannot say enough about Peter Tolan," Smart says. "He wrote and produced The Larry Sanders Show for four years, which I think is a brilliant show. And I thought, 'If I am going to do another series, one like this isn't going to come along for a long time.' "

She's right. From the first episode, Style is on its feet without being over the top. Two subsequent episodes suggest it will get better with time.

Playing straight woman to Smart's Chelsea is Nancy McKeon as her producer, Jane. During her first day on the job, Jane gives Chelsea the news that there are bigger crises facing the world than a fallen souffle. Chelsea responds that she is fighting the good fight in her own way:

"Crime? Poverty? In a world that smells of freshly baked bread? I don't think so."

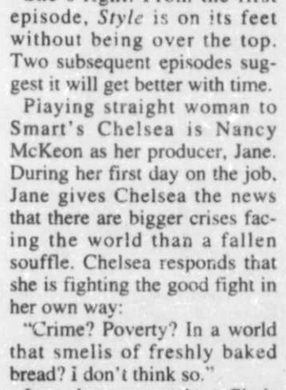
Jane does not endure Chelsea's obsessive-compulsive behavior alone. Other members of the office staff include Joseph Maher as interior design consultant Mr. John, Linda Kash as food stylist Trudy and Heath Hyche as Terry, the clueless secretary.

Smart's qualifications as a domestic Renaissance woman are modest.

"Right now my dining room table is covered in glitter," she says. "I've got blisters on all my fingertips, but I tell you, you get hooked. You could redo a whole house with a hot glue gun, I swear. I'm going to reupholster the dog next."

In a household goddess, a sense of humor is a good thing.

IN FOCUS



Martin Shaw glitters in the role of diamond king Cecil Rhodes in the three-part Masterpiece Theatre presentation Rhodes. It premieres Sunday, Jan. 4, and continues Monday and Tuesday, Jan. 5 and 6, on PBS (check local listings).

While in South Africa during a brief interlude from college, Rhodes dreams of gaining wealth and embarks on a quest to corner the diamond market.

Frances Barber plays Catherine, a Russian princess whose goal is to marry Rhodes.

Callum Keith Rennie

Q: I have not seen Due South for some time, but a local station has picked up the new episodes. Now I see another person pretending to be Ray Vecchio. What's going on? –Elana via e-mail.

A: In the season premiere, Constable Fraser (Paul Gross) returned from a trip up north to find a stranger (Callum Keith Rennie) impersonating his partner, Ray (David Marciano).

At the end of the episode, we learned that the real Ray has gone under cover on a dangerous assignment to infiltrate the mob. To protect Ray, his Chicago Police colleagues put Detective Stanley Kowalski (Rennie) on Ray's old beat, giving the appearance that Ray is still on the job.

Marciano, who may make another guest appearance this season, filmed a CBS series pilot that kept him from re-upping on South. I privately doubt that he will ever return to the role of Ray full time, as he often missed his U.S. home (South films in Toronto).

Q: Why have I seen nothing about the return of Roar and La Femme Nikita? –Kay C., Montgomery, Ala.

Nikita returns Sunday, Jan. 4, on the USA Network (cable series follow their own logic and often have abbreviated runs of 13 episodes or so per season).

Fox may run some filmed but never seen episodes of Roar later this season, but there are no plans to bring back the low-rated series on a regular basis.

Q: Has Sleepwalkers been canceled after only two episodes? I thought NBC said it would keep new series on longer so they could get a good feel for the ratings. –Ruth via e-mail.

A: NBC entertainment chief Warren Littlefield put Sleepwalkers on the Saturday schedule specifically to hold the audience between The Pretender and Profiler, both of which were solid, if small, hits by the end of last season.

Pretender opened the season premiere night with a surge, beating Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman on CBS. Then a big chunk of that audience tuned away from Sleepwalkers and didn't come back for Profiler. Not wanting to jeopardize the latter show, NBC moved quickly to yank Sleepwalkers, whose eerie content made it incompatible for another NBC night.

Q: I could almost swear that Jonathan Taylor Thomas once played Kevin Brady, Greg's son, on the short-lived series The Bradys. If not, who was it? –Erin, New Bedford, Mass.

A: Good eye, Erin. Kevin was played by young Jonathan Weiss – one year before he changed his professional name to Jonathan Taylor Thomas.

SOAP TALK

One less bad girl in Guiding Light

By Candace Havens
©TVData Features Syndicate

Cynthia Watros

Fans who love to hate Annie (Cynthia Watros) on Guiding Light will be disappointed by her departure during February sweeps. The soap is keeping quiet about the character's send-off, but executives say it will be spectacular.

Watros is leaving to pursue work in prime-time television and feature films, but the door is being left open for her character to return.

When Watros heads out to the West Coast, she might run into Keith Hamilton Cobb (ex-Noah, All My Children). The actor recently signed a deal with NBC to develop a drama series.

Dear Candace: I would like to see some of the writers tell about young couples getting married and staying that way. They need to show them working out their problems rather than having affairs.

It seems as if only couples over 50 are allowed to have happy marriages on the soap operas. It would be great if we had some younger role models to look to. –Grecia on the Internet.

Dear Reader: Two of the best marriages on soaps are Ruth and Joe (Lee Meriwether, Ray MacDonnell) on AMC and Bob and Kim (Don Hastings, Kathryn Hays) on As the World Turns. And you are right; they are in the over-50 crowd.

There is, at least, one younger couple with a fairly strong marriage: Frank and Eleni (Frank Dicopoulos, Jennifer Roszell) on GL. It hasn't been easy, but they seem to work things out. Of course, now that I've said that, I've probably jinxed them.

Dear Candace: I cannot believe that Holden and Lily (Jon Hensley, Martha Byrne) on ATWT are not married. How many times must something or someone get in the way? It has been long enough. It's time for them to get married and move on to another story.

Molly (Lesli Kay Sterling) has done enough to break up their love affair. Why can't good things happen for them for a change? –Judy Lackey on the Internet.

Dear Reader: It probably does not help, but you should know that many fans share your frustration. Molly is in the driver's seat again, and who knows when Holden and Lily will be able to work it all out?

SHARON STONE: '90s FEMME FATALE

With that ice-queen beauty, husky growl and sexual bravado, Sharon Stone is the quintessential femme fatale. But she's also a non-smoking teetotaler who bakes, reads poetry and raises money to fight AIDS. She's been married only once, sticks to one man at a time and even has dateless periods.

The second of four children, Stone, who appears on the cover of January's Biography magazine, called herself "a very intense, weird kid." She staged plays in the family's garage and declared acting her "destiny." However, with an IQ of 154, Stone showed more brains than beauty. A self-described "ubergeek," she wasn't even invited to the prom.

At 15, the duckling blossomed into a swan. During a trip to New York, Stone met Eileen Ford who signed her as a model, enabling her to afford acting lessons. Then, at 22, came Woody Allen and her big break: a wordless role in Stardust Memories as the fantasy woman.

After a well-received turn in Irreconcilable Differences, she appeared in a series of turkeys, including King Solomon's Mines and Allan Quartermain and the Lost City of Gold, produced by then-husband Michael Greenburg. Nude photos in Playboy led to the breakthrough role of bisexual psychopath Catherine Tramell in Basic Instinct.

Unwilling to be typecast as the actress who sheds her clothes, Stone reportedly threatened Diabolique 's producer with sexual harassment charges when asked to disrobe. Her film choices continue to be mixed, with Casino providing one of her more notable successes. Next up are Sphere, based on the Michael Crichton book, and Gloria, a remake of the Cassavetes thriller.

As she approaches 40, Stone has claimed to be looking forward to aging. Yet, she's avowed, "If I have to sleep upside down like a bat so I don't look like a basset hound, that's what I'm gonna do."

Antiques

Q. My uncle has a Bentwood-style chair made of branches and twigs. He didn't make it, but it does look homemade. Is something like this valuable?

A. It sounds as though the chair is an example of rustic furniture, which is becoming popular with collectors.

Furniture made of twigs and branches was popular in the mid 1800s. Much of it was made for use in hunting lodges and vacation resorts.

Unless it is signed, it's impossible to know who made it.

Q. I have an old flag that measures 16 1/2 inches by 20 1/2 inches. It resembles the American flag, with red and white stripes and the blue square with stars. The stars aren't right. They circle one big star and go around the edge of the square. The names Hayes and Wheeler are embroidered on one of the stripes. Do you know about this?

A. You own a rare political campaign flag for presidential candidate Rutherford B. Hayes and his running mate, William Wheeler. The pair ran successfully in 1876.

Q. I have a stoneware jug marked "E.&L.P. Norton." It has a blue flower painted on the front. Do you have any idea of the age?

A. E. & L.P. Norton worked in Bennington, Vt., between 1883 and 1894. Decorated stoneware jugs from that factory sell for $500 or more, depending on the details of the decoration.

Q. I have an old fencing mask that probably was used around 1940. Value?

A. The style of fencing masks has changed, so your collectible has no value to today's fencers. However, the masks make interesting wall hangings. They sell at collector shows for $25 to $30.

PUMPING GAS — I keep plastic one-size-fits-all gloves in the glove compartment of my car.

After I finish pumping gas, I throw the glove away on the way into the kiosk to pay.

I bought a pack of 100 the other day from a restaurant supply store for less than $3! Wanda K., Granbury, Texas

JEWELRY ORDERING — When I order jewelry from a catalog, I cut out the picture and staple it to the invoice so I'll have insurance information in case anything happens to it.

Also, I take a picture of jewelry purchased in a store and attach it to the receipt. Pamela J., Naples, Fla.

MICROWAVE WARNING — I always line my bread basket (straw) with paper towels and put my bread in it to heat. I did that yesterday and the paper towels and basket caught fire. I just left the oven closed and the lack of oxygen put the fire out.

I checked my microwave oven book and read, "Do not use recycled paper towels in the microwave, as they contain small metal particles and can catch fire." Needless to say, I checked my paper towels and, sure enough, they were recycled paper towels.

I especially want to get this word out to families whose children use a microwave, as they may attempt to remove the burning contents from the oven with disastrous results. Liz C., Camden, N.J.

CONTROL PARTY EATING

It's the holiday season again, and celebrating without sabotaging your diet can be difficult. Are you dieting to lose weight, changing old eating habits to lower blood cholesterol levels, or just generally trying to eat more healthfully? It can feel like you're running the nutrition gauntlet each time you pass the festive spreads at holiday parties. Here are a few tips to help you make it through the season unscathed.

Before you go—Eat something before the party, such as an ounce of cheese and a few plain crackers or a carton of low-fat yogurt. And have a low-fat snack, such as fruit salad, waiting for you afterward.

Wear something you're comfortable in only when you "feel thin." Then if you eat too much, your snug-fitting clothes will let you know.

Holiday cheer—Drink alcoholic beverages only with meals or after you've eaten. If you drink before you eat, you're asking for trouble.

Alcohol lowers your inhibitions (including your willpower), and it also increases hunger. Try calorie-free seltzer or club soda with a twist of lemon or lime instead.

Eggnog is off-limits unless you can limit yourself to a single sip. A 4-ounce cup of eggnog can contain up to 400 calories.

Tempting tidbits—Steer clear of fat-laden munchies, such as nuts or chips and cream cheese or sour cream-based dips. Opt for pretzels or plain crackers.

Avoid deep-fried or cheesy appetizers. They are sure to be loaded with fat and calories. A shrimp cocktail, steamed clams, and raw veggies are better choices.

The buffet line—Position yourself last in line at buffets. You will be less likely to go back to the table for seconds.

Start at one end of the table and make mental notes of what is there. Save your calories for new, interesting foods. Take one tablespoon of each dish you've decided to try. You will get a variety, but you won't overdo on any one item. Get as far away from the table as possible after you've served yourself. It's too easy to start sampling again.

Sit-down dinners—Eat slowly, and aim to eat only half of everything on your plate. Then you won't insult your hostess by refusing anything.

Try to sit next to someone whose company you enjoy. You can talk more and eat less.

Restaurant eating—Order broth-based soup for an appetizer to help curb your appetite. Stay away from high-fat creamed soups, even such vegetable-based ones as cream of broccoli or asparagus. Request salad dressing on the side or lemon wedges for tossed green salads. Dip your fork into the dressing then into the salad, and you'll get a little bit of dressing with every bite, but less than if you poured it on the salad.

Skip the creamy sauces and gravies, or ask for them on the side. They defeat the low-calorie aspects of a broiled entree.

When you're the hostess—Cut back on calories and fat every chance you get. Take advantage of such products as light cream cheese, reduced-calorie mayonnaise, low-fat cheeses. They offer significant calorie savings. And be sure to include a low-calorie choice in your menu, such as a tossed salad or fruit platter.

Keep your perspective—Even the strongest of wills can succumb during the holidays. Don't berate yourself for a little indulgence or allow it to pave the way for a binge.

Exercise as much and as often as you can during the holidays. Granted, it is probably the busiest time of the year, and making time for exercise is difficult. But it's almost a given that you're going to eat more than usual, so it only makes sense to exercise well.

ARMED SERVICES REVIEW

U.S. Army National Guard Pvt. Chad A. Maroney has graduated from One Station Unit Training (OSUT) at Fort Leonard Wood, Waynesville, Mo. The training included basic military training and advanced individual training (AIT).

Basic military trainees received instruction in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid, and Army history and traditions.

During AIT, soldiers were trained as combat engineers and performed basic combat construction and rigging operations; operated light and heavy engineer wheeled and armor tracked vehicles; assisted in assembly and maintenance of military standard float and fixed bridges; prepared, installed, and primed firing systems for demolition and explosives; and recognized and neutralized land mines, firing devices, and booby traps.

Maroney is the son of John R. and Linda M. Maroney, Oakland.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this proceeding is to secure the foreclosure of all rights of redemption from tax sale on the following properties in Garrett County, State of Maryland, sold by Patty Glover, Collector of taxes for the State of Maryland, and the County of Garrett to Plaintiff, Bid-Low, Inc., the parcels of land described as follows:

Parcel 1: All that parcel of land situate in Tax District No. 18, containing 1.50 acres, more or less, and described in deed from Barbara Von Elm and William Walsh to Barbara Von Elm dated September 27, 1993 and recorded November 15, 1993 in Liber 617, folio 279, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

Parcel 2: All that parcel of land situate in Tax District No. 18, containing 43,560 square feet, more or less, known and designated as Lot No. 44 of The Blakeslee Subdivision, as shown on the plat recorded in Plat Book No. 3, folio 98, and described in deed from Penn Point Associates to Christopher C. Hayes and Alegria Q. Hayes, husband and wife, dated September 30, 1988, in Liber 518, folio 400, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

Parcel 3: All that parcel of land situate in Election District No. 16, known and designated as Lots Nos. 1418, 1420 and 1422 as shown on the Plat of Mountain Lake Park recorded in Plat Book No. 1, file 21, and described in deed from Orville Eberly and Ruth R. Eberly, husband and wife, Carl B. White and Jessie M. White, husband and wife, and William E. Snee, by Stephen R. Pagenhardt, their Attorney-in-fact, to Ernest W. Blizzard and Elizabeth K. Blizzard, husband and wife, dated October 10, 1962, and recorded in Liber 244, folio 12, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland

Parcel 4: All that parcel of land situate in Tax District No. 18, known and designated as Unit 15, Timberloft Condominium and being part of the land described in deed from Alice A. Hershman, widow to Timberloft Development Group, Inc. dated January 19, 1990 and recorded in Liber 542, folio 891, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

Parcel 5: All that parcel of land situate in Election District No. 3, containing 1.07 acres, more or less, and described in deed from Wesley Earl Muth to Catherine Christina Muth dated August 16, 1983 and recorded August 23, 1983 in Liber 437, folio 46, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

Parcel 6: All that parcel of land situate in Election District No. 14, containing 1.00 acre, more or less, and described in deed from Herbert Ray Sykes to Clifton William Carter and Cinthie Dian Carter, husband and wife, dated November 14, 1972 and recorded in Liber 330, folio 595, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

Parcel 7: All that parcel of land situate in Election District No. 5, containing 5.00 acres, more or less, known or designated as Lot No. 7, Bear Creek Forest, as shown on the plat of said subdivision recorded in Plat Book 3, page 103, and described in deed from American Heritage Corporation to Lawrence Buster and Charles I. Carter dated May 23, 1992, and recorded in Liber 584, folio 569, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

Parcel 8: All that parcel of land situate in Election District No. 13, containing 1.89 acres, more or less, and described in deed from Russell E. Crosco to Sylvia Jean Riggleman dated August 31, 1987 and recorded in Liber 499, folio 649, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

More than six (6) months have passed since the date of sale and the properties have not been redeemed by any party in interest.

The Complaint states among other things that the amount necessary for redemption has not been paid. The sale was on June 13, 1997, and more than six (6) months have passed since that date.

It is thereupon this 17th day of December, 1997 that the Circuit Court for Garrett County,

ORDERED that notice be given by the insertion of a copy of this Order in one newspaper having a general circulation in Garrett County once a week for three consecutive weeks, on or before the 9th day of January, 1998 warning all persons interested in the property to appear in this Court by the 16th day of March, 1998, and redeem the property and answer the Complaint or thereafter the final judgment will be entered foreclosing all rights of redemption in the property and vesting in the Plaintiff to said property of fee simple, title free of all liens and encumbrances.

All that property described in said Deed of Trust, the description of which is adopted and incorporated by reference as follows:

Beginning at an iron pipe, said beginning iron pipe being the beginning corner of the 2.0 acre parcel conveyed by Peter A. Laquer, et al., to George Pease, et ux., by deed dated December 1, 1978 and recorded in Liber No. 394, folio 916 one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, and running: thence from said beginning iron pipe, West 215.5 feet to an iron pipe; thence South 200.2 feet to an iron pipe standing in the northerly margin of a 30.0 foot roadway; thence with said northerly margin, West, 215.5 feet to an iron pipe, it being the second corner of said 2.0 acre parcel; thence leaving said northerly margin and running with the first line reversed of said 2.0 acre parcel, North 200.2 feet to the beginning, containing 1.0 acre, more or less. The improvements thereon are now known as No. Stone Quarry Road.

The property is commonly known as Box 616 Stone Quarry Road, McHenry, Maryland 21541. The property is being sold in fee-simple, subject to conditions, restrictions and agreements of record, affecting same, if any, and with no warranty as to the description of the improvements.

Terms of Sale: A deposit of $4,700 will be required at the time of sale in the form of cash, certified check or other form as the Substitute Trustees determine acceptable. If the noteholder and/or servicer is the successful bidder, the deposit requirement is waived. The property will be sold in an "AS IS" condition without either express or implied warranty or representation, including, but not limited to, the description, fitness for a particular purpose/use, structural integrity, physical condition, construction, extent of construction, workmanship, materials, habitability, zoning, subdivision, environmental condition, merchantability, compliance with building codes or other laws, ordinances or regulations, or other similar matters. The Substitute Trustees reserve the right to reject any and all bids, withdraw the property from sale, postpone same and sell the property at a later date. Balance of the purchase price to be paid in cash within ten (10) days of final ratification of sale by the Circuit Court. Time is of the essence as to the purchaser. Interest to be paid on the unpaid purchase money at the rate pursuant to the deed or Trust Note from the date of sale to the date funds are received in the office of the Substitute Trustees. In the event settlement is delayed for any reason, there shall be no abatement of interest. Taxes, ground rent, water rent, condominium fees, and/or homeowner association dues, if applicable, shall be adjusted to the date of sale and assumed thereafter by the purchaser. All other public charges and assessments payable on an annual basis, including sanitary and/or metropolitan district charges to be adjusted for the current year to date of sale and assumed thereafter by the purchaser. Cost of all documentary stamps, transfer taxes and settlement expenses shall be borne by the purchaser. Purchaser shall be responsible for obtaining physical possession of the property. In the event the property is occupied by tenants, the Substitute Trustees assume no responsibility for security deposits, or other monies paid by the tenants to anyone. Purchaser assumes the risk of loss or damage to the property from the time of sale. Should the property be damaged, there shall be no abatement of the purchase price. If the purchaser defaults, the deposit will be declared forfeit, and applied as required by Maryland law. In addition to any other legal or equitable remedies available to the Substitute Trustees or noteholder, the property will be resold at the risk and expense of the defaulting purchaser, who shall be liable for any deficiency resulting from the resale, and all costs and expenses of the resale, including, but not limited to, attorneys fees and all other charges incurred by the Substitute Trustees. If the Substitute Trustees are unable to convey good and marketable title, the purchaser's sole remedy in law and equity shall be limited to a refund of the deposit. Upon refund of the deposit, this sale shall be void and of no effect and the purchaser shall have no further claim against the Substitute Trustees or the noteholder. The Substitute Trustees, their attorneys, agents, auctioneer and/or the noteholder shall not be liable individually or otherwise for any matters relating to this sale and/or the property and purchaser agrees to hold them harmless.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR STRIP MINE PERMIT

Notice is hereby given that Patriot Mining Company, Inc., P.O. Box 4360, Star City, WV 26504 has submitted an application to the Maryland Bureau of Mines for an amendment to deep mine permit DM-90-109.

The proposed operation will occupy 3 acres of land to the north of Steyer Run, approximately 2.0 miles northeast of the town of Steyer in Election District No. 8, Garrett County. Affected landowners are C. Wayne Shillingburg, Marguerite E. Fink, and Lee Shillingburg.

Access to the site is from Audley Riley Road, 0.8 mile southeast of the White Church Steyer Road intersection.

The application proposes to construct a borehole at (N551,919 E150,025) for the purpose of transporting stone into the deep mine workings. Three thousand three hundred feet of existing access road off of Audley Riley Road will be used. Construction of seven hundred feet of new access will be necessary to link the borehole to the existing access road.

The permit area is within the U.S. Geologic Survey Gorman, MD 7.5 minute quadrangle. The location of the proposed amendment area is indicated on the accompanying vicinity sketch. A copy of the permit application is available for public review during regular office hours at the Bureau of Mines and the Soil Conservation District Office at 1916 Maryland Hwy., Mtn. Lake Park, MD.

Questions concerning any aspect of the application may be directed to Larry Bayles, Highland Engineering & Surveying, Inc. 301-334-6185 or the Maryland Bureau of Mines, Permits Section, 301-689-6405. A Public Hearing will not be held on this proposed activity unless requested. Written comments, requests for public hearing, and requests to be included on the interested persons list regarding this application, will be received until February 9, 1998 by the Director, Maryland Bureau of Mines, 160 South Water Street, Frostburg, MD 21532.

Further notices about this application will be provided only by mail to those persons that submit comments, request hearing or request to be included on the list of interested persons.

Domestic Assault Verdict Includes Restitution Pay

After pleading guilty to an assault that occurred during a domestic altercation, an Oakland man was ordered to pay $100 in restitution to the Domestic Violence Shelter in last week's Garrett County District Court proceedings.

David Wayne Troshak, 40, also received a 30-day suspended sentence and was placed on six months of supervised probation as a result of the conviction, which stemmed from his September arrest by the Oakland Police Department for allegedly slapping Patricia Glotfeity in the face during an argument at the home they shared.

In other district court news, Robert Truman Butler, 30, McHenry, faced charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia, which were placed on the stet docket. Butler was arrested in October by state troopers who found him allegedly smoking marijuana in his vehicle while parked behind the McHenry offices of Century 21. He is required to complete 30 hours of community service as a condition of the stet ruling.

A drug bust by Department of Natural Resources park rangers at Swallow Falls State Park in June resulted in the charges faced by all five defendants being placed on the stet docket, with each subject required to complete 30 hours of community service.

Mark Congdon, 28, Todd Barth, 28, and John Barth Jr., 26, Lisa Lopez, 27, and Melissa Blakely, 26, all of Baltimore, each faced charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

A sentence revision was granted to Terry Lee Dewitt, 22, Oakland, who has been incarcerated since pleading guilty in August to charges of fourth-degree burglary, marijuana possession, malicious destruction of property, and two counts of felony theft. His sentence was revised to reflect time already served, with the remaining balance converted to a suspended sentence.

The state's attorney's office declined to prosecute Wesley Shane Young, 20, Grantsville, on charges of first-degree burglary and felony theft.

DWI Hearings

Several driving while intoxicated (DWI) and driving while under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs (DUI) cases were heard in district court recently.

John Edward Brodbeck, 21, Mtn. Lake Park, pleaded guilty to DWI and was fined $255, handed a 30-day suspended sentence, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 40 hours of community service.

Kevin Legrand White, 39, New Philadelphia, Ohio, pleaded guilty to DUI and was handed a probation before judgment (PBJ), fined $155, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

Steven Eric Adams, 37, Pleasant Gap, Pa., pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a PBJ, fined $155, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

James Walker Winebrenner II, 32, Grantsville, was found in violation of his DWI probation and his probation was revoked with the reimposition of the original incarceration sentence.

Michael Robert Reams, 37, Oakland, was granted a sentence revision and his incarceration for DWI came to an end. The revision reflects crediting him with time already served, while the remaining balance of the sentence was suspended.

Edward Charles Blank, 26, Johnstown, Pa., was not prosecuted on a DWI charge.

LIONESS CLUB DONATES TO CHRISTMAS PROJECT - The Deep Creek Lioness Club recently adopted the Rotary Club's "Giving Tree," located at the Red Run Lodge. The Lioness's special projects committee helped make Christmas wishes come true by purchasing and wrapping gifts for 55 children. The club also made a monetary donation toward the purchase of food items, which were distributed the week before Christmas. Shown above is the special projects committee; in the front row left to right are Jane Frawley and Marie McCarty; in the back row are Tiddie Wheeler, Linda Wieland, Shirley Panther, Christmas project chairperson Goldie Shugars, and the owner of the Red Run Lodge, Kathy Gibson.

Thank You

We would like to thank the local businesses for placing donation jars in their places of business. We would also like to thank everyone for their prayers, get well cards, gifts and donations for Cody. Thanks to Billy Jo Turner for all her extra help. Also a special thank you to our family for all their help, prayers, love and understanding.
May God bless each and everyone of you.
Please keep us in your prayers.
Dean, Sharon & Cody Sullivan

Body Found In Park; No Foul Play Involved

The body of 73-year-old Robert E. Boger of Grantsville was found in Grantsville Community Park around 9 a.m. Sunday. The investigating officer said he suspected no foul play, but Boger's body was sent to the medical examiner's office, which is standard procedure in cases of unattended death.

Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, reported that a passer-by had discovered the body and notified the police. Northern Rescue Squad and the state police crime lab responded to the scene.

Investigation revealed that Boger had last been seen when he purchased a bus ticket in Grantsville to travel to West Virginia, police said. Boger reportedly had no family in Grantsville, but did have a brother in the Myersdale area.

Autopsy reports indicated that heart disease and other health factors contributed to Boger's death. There were no suspicious circumstances in his death, the officer said.

LONE SENTINEL - A sizable crow sits aloft in a naked apple tree, tolerating a rather mild winter so far here in the mountains. Temperatures rose above 60 degrees this week, melting away any remaining snow from the New Year's storm that brought nearly 16 inches. While some enjoy the spring-like respite, others are annoyed by it and feel out of sorts to be smelling the fragrances of spring in the middle of January. The mercury should start back down by tomorrow, according to forecasters, and snow is expected by the weekend. Skiers, take heart.

Humane Society Seeks Increase In License Fees

In its continuing effort to aid and assist abandoned domestic animals in the area, the Garrett County Humane Society is seeking an increase in the cost of dog licenses. Nancy Helbig, the humane society's president, met with the Garrett County Commissioners this week to discuss the matter.

Dog licenses in the county currently cost $1 for animals who have been spayed or neutered, and $3 for animals that have not undergone the surgeries. Helbig asked the commissioners to raise the fees to about $3 and $5, respectively.

"This extra money would help develop a more effective spay and neuter program," Helbig said. Currently, all animals adopted from the Garrett County Animal Shelter must be neutered before leaving the shelter. There is some compensation for the new owners, Helbig said, which helps. But the minimal increase in the license fees would further aid in the effort.

"There are animals abused in this county," Helbig said. "They don't have good protection from the weather, they are not being fed or watered properly, and some are beaten. As it is now, I often get two or three calls before breakfast from people who are upset about an animal they have seen in distress."

Helbig said the business of dealing with possibly abused animals can be touchy.

"People who report problems do not want to be identified, and people who are accused of mistreating their animals can get very angry," she said, adding that all the work she and the other society members do is volunteer, despite often difficult circumstances.

Commissioner Wayne Wilt noted that he is a supporter of the humane society, donating to the cause "three or four times a year." He said he is concerned about animals and is interested in getting up-to-date statistics. Helbig handed out animal shelter statistics compiled in 1987, but they were considered too old to use. BOE Focuses On Gov.'s Challenge To Read Project

Teaching staff and administrators of Garrett County public schools are joining thousands of individuals across the state in setting programs that will encourage more reading. Gov. Parris N. Glendening launched Reading Across Maryland, a program challanging students to read more.

On the local level, Garrett County Board of Education reading specialist teacher Sheila Miller has developed an agenda for the project. "Our goal is to motivate students and their families to spend more time reading," she said.

A number of target areas have been identified in the reading challenge plan. These include involving businesses, community leaders, parents, and the news media in a concerted effort to promote reading.

The organizers of the countywide project will be "encouraging businesses, parents, and community leaders to take the time to read to a child or listen to a child read at a local elementary or middle school in the county," Miller explained.

Miller said she realizes that some people are more comfortable listening to a child read, while others would enjoy reading to a class. Both options will be available for those who wish to be involved.

Students have been challenged by the governor to each read 10 books before the end of this school year. Those who meet this challenge will receive a certificate from the governor. "Each school that meets the goal of 100% of students reading 10 books will receive $100 for the school's library," Miller noted.

To bring this effort before the public, Miller said there will be a campaign launched to place advertisements in the local news media and public service announcements. These will focus on recruiting readers and listeners as well as encouraging the students to read.

"We are hoping that some of the local businesses will offer to buy ads to help us," she said.

Anyone who wishes to participate in any way with the reading project is asked to contact Sheila Miller

Christmas Tree Recycling Event Held In County

The 5th annual Christmas tree recycling event, co-sponsored by the Garrett County Office of Solid Waste and Recycling and Timberjax Tree Service, was held Jan. 3.

During the morning hours the recycling was scheduled at the Grantsville municipal parking lot and during the afternon at the Southern High School athletic parking lot.

A total of 136 Christmas trees were chipped and recycled at the two sites. During the stated hours 26 trees at the Grantsville site and 110 at the Oakland site were chipped by personnel from Oakland Timberjax Tree Service.

"All of the chips were returned to the participants for use as landscaping mulch or as a bulking agent for their compost piles. Recycling and composting literature was also passed out to interested participants," a spokesperson for the county recycling office said.

Rodney Glotfelty, director of the Garrett County Office of Solid Waste and Recycling, noted "the generous donation of equipment, labor, and time contributed by Oakland and Timberjax Tree Service in making this event possible." The company, owned by Randy Sisler, provides licensed and professional tree trimming and removal services.

"Trees have been dropped off at the Garrett County Landfill and collection sites for use in various recycling projects," Glotfelty said. Among these are projects of other local agencies. "Personnel from the Maryland Department of Natural Resource's Fish and Wildlife Service will utilize ap-

Vehicle Flips Twice, Driver Flees Scene

Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, reported an accident on State Park Road early New Year's Day.

Rory S. Bernard, 23, Swanton, was traveling on State Park Road around 2 a.m. in weather conditions described by police as "snow/ice."

According to the report, Bernard, who was driving too fast for the road conditions, traveled across the lane, onto the roadside, and struck an embankment. The impact allegedly caused the Chevrolet S-10 to flip over twice before coming to rest in the roadway.

Police said Bernard then fled the scene. He was charged with failure to report an accident to the nearest police; failure to reduce speed on dangerous highway conditions; and driving while suspended.

Edwards Hosting Public Meeting This Evening

A public meeting concerning economic developments in Garrett County is slated for this evening in the theatre at Garrett Community College. Delegate George Edwards has called the meeting, which will begin at 7 p.m. The delegate said that Steve Lynch of the Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development (DBED) will be the main speaker.

Edwards said the meeting is to give residents an update on economic development within the county. He said he would like to hold this sort of session at least once a year so that the county's citizens are informed of developments and activities.

Although no details were available at press time this morning, unconfirmed reports indicated that Edwards may be ready to make significant announcements specifically concerning the now vacant Bausch & Lomb facility. However, the delegate said that if nothing is solidified as of the time of the meeting, he

Billy Bob's Owner Jailed Following Gambling Raid

With an hour to go until the ball dropped, revelers ringing in the New Year at Billy Bob's Oak Grove Tavern on Hutton Road witnessed a gambling raid that resulted in the arrest of the establishment's owner.

William Robert "Billy Bob" Maxwell, 51, Mtn. Lake Park, faces two counts each of renting a place for gambling and keeping a place for gambling, and one count each of operating a pawnshop without a license and wearing, carrying, and transporting a handgun.

According to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, a joint investigation by several local law enforcement agencies culminated in a search and seizure warrant being issued and executed.

"Numerous complaints regarding allegations of illegal gambling activity at the tavern had been reported" over the previous month, a sheriff's office spokesperson said, "including gun raffles, 50/50 raffles, and tip boards. Undercover officers who had been stationed at the bar to follow up on the complaints reportedly witnessed the gambling activities occurring as reported," he said. "In the ensuing raid, gambling paraphernalia were recovered.

"While it is legal for a non-profit organization to conduct these type of activities as fund-raisers," the spokesperson continued, "it is illegal when a private individual realizes a profit from the gaming activity."

The three-hour raid was carried out by members of the Sheriff's Office, the State's Attorney's Office, the Maryland State Police, the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force, and covert officers from the Combined Criminal Investigative Unit of Allegany County and the Department of Natural Resources.

The gun violation charge stemmed from a vehicle search conducted during the course of the raid, when a Jennings Firearms .380 semi-automatic pistol was found under the driver's seat of a vehicle in the parking lot. The vehicle's registration was subsequently traced to Maxwell.

Following an appearance before the district court commissioner, Maxwell was released when he posted a $1,500 bond.

A second arrest was made during the course of the raid, as a bar patron was charged with disorderly conduct by refusing to cooperate with offical requests that everyone present cooperate by remaining seated as the search was being carried out.

Friendsville Medical Center Scheduled To Open This Month

It has been 11 months since a medical provider was available in Friendsville to serve the residents of the town and surrounding area. It was recently announced that a medical office will open on a full-time basis this month to provide care to those in the Friendsville community.

Under the auspices of the Garrett Medical Group, a nurse practitioner, Jackie Snelson, will see patients Monday through Friday, and for half of the day on Saturday. In addition to Snelson, two other physicians, Margaret Kaiser and Karl Schwalm, of the Garrett Medical Group, will assist Snelson through conferences and by personally attending patients, as needed.

The services that will be available through the new facility will meet the needs of many local residents, Mayor Spencer R. Schlosnagle said. Friendsville is the third largest Garrett County town by population. "We've grown by more than 100 in five years," he noted.

Of the 670-plus town residents, there are many who are elderly, and, as in the rest of the nation, the aging group is growing rapidly. "Over 60% of the population is age 50 and older. We have a lot of people who need regular medical care," he explained.

Schlosnagle also pointed out that these older residents must currently travel to Morgantown, Grantsville, or Oakland for such things as blood pressure or blood sugar level checks. The medical center in Friendsville will meet these needs as well as needs for many other types of medical services, and will be within walking distance for many of the elderly, he said.

The mayor has been involved in the planning and discussions about opening the medical facility in the town. "I've been talking with Peg Kaiser and with Kip Boone, the administrator for the group," he continued.

Schlosnagle said he sees a very positive impact on the community resulting from the opening of the medical center. "I'm elated that the Garrett Medical Group is opening this office. I think the community is going to support this wholeheartedly," he stated.

Commissioners To Meet Thursday

The Garrett County Board of Commissioners has rescheduled its regular weekly meeting from Tuesday, Jan. 13, to Thursday, Jan. 15.

Commissioner Gary Fratz will be attending a legislative meeting in Annapolis on Tuesday, which would leave just Commissioner Wayne Wilt to preside at the regular public meeting. Therefore, the meeting day has been changed to Thursday.

AP Texts At BOE Still Available For Community Input

Textbooks for an advanced placement course in United States history will remain available through Monday, Jan. 12, for public review and comment at the office of the Garrett County Board of Education, Oakland.

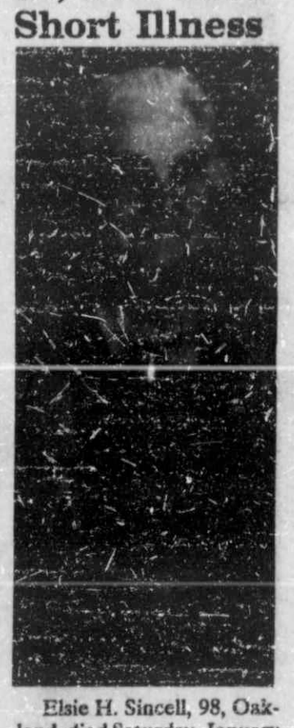
The board of education had received a recommendation at the December meeting from the Advanced Placement Textbook Committee to approve a textbook and supplemental readers for the AP course in U.S. history.

The recommended textbook A People and a Nation was authored by a team of six instructors from a variety of universities. The recommended readers include A Documentary Reader and The American Spirit. All the materials suggested by the committee are on display at the board office.

In addition to the books recommended by the AP textbook committee, members of the board of education also requested that two additional texts, reviewed but not recommended by the committee, be placed on display as well. These books include The American Pageant, co-authored by Thomas Bailey and David Kennedy of Stanford University, and America's Past and Present, authored by four instructors from various universities.

These materials are available for public comment weekdays between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. through Monday, Jan. 12.

Elsie Sincell, 98, Dies After Short Illness



Elsie H. Sincell, 98, Oakland, died Saturday, January 3, 1998, at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, following a brief illness. She was preceded in death, in 1979 by her husband, Donald R. Sincell, publisher of The Republican newspaper and general manager of The Sincell Publishing Company, Inc.

The mother of the paper's current publisher, Robert B. Sincell, and grandmother of the editor, Donald Sincell, both of Mtn. Lake Park, Mrs. Sincell worked for the company for nearly 50 years in various capacities, most notably as proofreader of the newspaper for a number of years until her retirement at the age of 93.

She is also survived by one daughter, Mrs. Eleanor McAfee, Harbor Beach, Fla.

She was an active member of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, where she served as organist for 50 years. She was a 60-year member of Oakland Chapter 67 Order of the Eastern Star, an honorary member of Quill and Scroll, and a member of the Loar Auxiliary of Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

A 1917 graduate of Kingwood (W.Va.) High School, Mrs. Sincell attended the Maryland College for Women in Lutherville.

Mrs. Sincell had resided in Oakland since 1920, when she married Donald R. "Mose" Sincell, whose family had operated and published the local newspaper since 1890. They were married for nearly 58 years before Mr. Sincell's death.

Born April 29, 1899, in Philadelphia, she was the only daughter of the seven children of the late Henry Hanst and Rose (Faber) Hanst. She was the last surviving sibling. One of her brothers, George H. Hanst, was the associate editor/editor of The Republican for approximately 50 years.

Mrs. Sincell was the subject of a feature article as well as an editorial in The Republican newspaper honoring her for the distinction of being a valuable employee at such an advanced age. The pieces ran just days before her 90th birthday.

THE FIRST BABY TO ARRIVE IN 1998 at Garrett Memorial Hospital made her appearance a little ahead of schedule. Not due for several more weeks, Heather Ann Frazee, first child born to Danielle and Bill Frazee, arrived at 8:06 a.m. on Friday, Jan. 2. Delivered by Dr. Patricia Gotsch, the little lady daintily tipped the scales at 6 pounds 2.6 ounces. Heather Ann's maternal grandparents are Dan and Barbara Fike. Her paternal grandparents are Norma Ruth Frazee and the late Paul O. Frazee. The Garrett County Memorial Hospital Foundation will honor the area's first baby of 1998 by enrolling her in the organization's Cradle Roll program. Her name and date of birth will be displayed on a wall in the Family-Centered Maternity Suite and the parents will receive a decorative certificate. All babies born at Garrett Memorial are eligible for the Cradle Roll, a fund-raising program which celebrates the birth of a child. Parents, relatives, or friends may honor their favorite baby with a minimum donation of $25 to the hospital foundation. All donations received through the Cradle Roll will be used for services and specialized equipment in the Family-Centered Maternity Suite. For more information, persons may call 301-334-2155, ext. 377.

Governor Announces Plans For Md. Youth Environmental Summit

Emphasizing the need for today's students to begin thinking seriously about the environmental issues they will face as adults, Governor Parris N. Glendening has announced plans to invite high school students from across Maryland to participate in Maryland's first Youth Environmental Summit this spring.

The governor made the announcement after greeting in his office three student leaders who have been helping to organize the conference: Olivia Campbell, a senior at Northern High School in Calvert County; Chris Lombardo, a junior from Broadneck High School in Anne Arundel County; and Antoine Grady, a junior at Old Mill High School in Anne Arundel County.

"These young people are tomorrow's leaders. The environmental issues they will face will be increasingly difficult. They need to understand now how the decisions we all make everyday affect the world around us, often for years to come," Governor Glendening said.

The planned conference will be held at the Baltimore Convention Center on May 7, 1998. Three sophomores or juniors will be invited from each of the approximately 300 public and private high schools in Maryland. An environmental teacher will also be invited to accompany each school's contingent.

Preliminary plans for the conference call for a variety of "breakout sessions" on individual environmental topics, focusing first on long-term problems and then on potential long-term solutions. "How to" sessions will enable students and their teachers to take what they learn at the conference back to their home schools to share with classmates during the coming school year.

A broad array of state government cabinet officers and business and environmental groups will be invited to help develop the agenda and make the conference a success, the governor said.

The governor himself will participate in an informal question and answer session with the students on a broad range of environmental topics.

Details about how to register for the governor's Youth Environmental Summit and other information about the conference agenda will be made available to school system superintendents, high school principals, and teachers, as well as students, as soon as plans are finalized.

"This will be an excellent opportunity for students to learn about environmental issues and for their opinions to be heard," said Olivia Campbell, who along with Chris Lombardo are the environmental coordinators for the Maryland Association of Student Councils.

"In 50 years, students will have to deal with the consequences of the choices people are making today," said Antoine Grady, president of the Chesapeake Regional Association of Student Councils, which represents all high schools and middle schools in Anne Arundel County. "I'm very glad that time and energy is now being devoted to this conference."

Chris Lombardo agreed, saying, "We need to learn about the environmental problems around our state and what people can do about those problems."

Many Maryland students are already involved in environmental activities and Governor Glendening said the conference should be a forum for students to share ideas with other schools about how they can personally help resolve environmental problems.

For additional information about the governor's Youth Environmental Summit, persons may contact: Gary Heath at the State Department of Education, 410-767-0324; Theresa Pierno at the Department of Natural Resources, 410-260-8715; or John W. Frece, the Governor's Special Assistant for Smart Growth, at 410-260-8112.

Friendsville To Hold Open Forum On Park Plans

The town of Friendsville will host an open forum at town hall to hear concerns and ideas for expansion of the town park.

The meeting, which is scheduled for Wednesday, Jan. 14 at 7 p.m., will give residents of the area an opportunity to contribute ideas for the expansion.

Also attending the forum will be representatives from national groups which are concerned with park issues. There will be several experts in the areas of open space and parkland use, town clerk Sara Sines explained. "These people are specialists in this area. They can be very helpful to us," she commented.

A representative from the National Park Service will be among those in attendance, Sines pointed out. Members of the Army Corps of Engineers will also be available that night to give input or answer questions from those present.

A rivers, trails and conservancy specialist will also be present. "This meeting should be very interesting for anyone who wants to attend," she noted.

A number of suggestions on park expansion have been made at previous town meetings. These include: areas for skating, a walking path, and an ice rink.

Friendsville area residents are invited to attend and participate in this forum. "We really hope a lot of people come and get involved in this process," Sines said.

For more information persons may contact the town hall at 301-746-5919, or any member of the town council.

Oakland Burglary Includes Charges Of Lifting Spirits

Garrett County sheriff's deputies have filed three criminal charges and three traffic charges stemming from the arrest of an Oakland area man who reportedly admitted to breaking into a home on Sunday night and taking a bottle from the liquor cabinet.

Dennis Ray Swartzentruber, 45, faces criminal charges of first-degree burglary, misdemeanor theft, and malicious destruction of property, in addition to traffic charges of driving while intoxicated, driving with a revoked license, and driving in violation of a court-ordered alcohol restriction. The charges stem from a break-in at the residence of Sam Eastman, on Sam Eastman Road, at 9:50 p.m. on Jan 4.

According to the sheriff's report, another resident on the same road heard a vehicle going down the cul-de-sac to the Eastman house, where she knew that the residents were gone for the evening. She looked out her window to see a car with its lights out drive up to the house, and when she went outside to check she found it parked in front of the Eastman house unoccuppied with the engine running.

While calling the sheriff's office after she returned to her home, the woman reported seeing the vehicle driving out of the cul-de-sac, and that the driver honked the horn when he passed her house.

Sheriff's deputies subsequently apprehended Swartzentruber at his Pleasant Valley Road residence, where he reportedly admitted to kicking in the home's front door and taking a bottle of liquor.

Swartzentruber is currently incarcerated on a $50,000 full cash bond.

In other sheriff's news, a Mtn. Lake Park juvenile hosting a New Year's Eve party at his residence was taken into custody by sheriff's deputies last Wednesday evening and charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

According to the sheriff's report, deputies who arrived at the home around 8:20 p.m. to check on a report of possible drug and alcohol use by juveniles were granted permission by the 15-year-old resident to enter the home. Once inside they reportedly detected the smell of suspected burnt marijuana emanating from a room towards the rear of the house. When they entered the room and questioned the juvenile about the smell, he produced what were described as two marijuana smoking devices from underneath a blanket covering a table.

The 15-year-old was immediately taken into custody, as were two 17-year-old males also on the scene, who were subsequently released to their parents after being transported to the sheriff's office. The 15-year-old was subsequently released to his parents as well, and his case has been turned over to the Department of Juvenile Services.

State Jobless Rate Decreases, County's Jumps

Unemployment in Maryland fell slightly from 4.6 percent in October to 4.5 percent in November, as recalls in manufacturing and holiday hiring boosted employment levels.

"Maryland continued to experience employment gains during November," said Governor Parris N. Glendening. "These numbers reflect the strength of the state's economy and more importantly, they represent the people who are able to earn a living and support their family. I am also encouraged that the state's unemployment rate is lower than it was a year ago."

Meanwhile, the jobless rate in Garrett County jumped more than a point, from 10.4 percent in October to 11.7 percent in November, second highest among Maryland's 23 counties. The November 1996 rate was 10.8 percent.

During November, the number of people employed throughout the state increased by about 3,800, raising employment to 2,646,233. This gain helped to accommodate the growing numbers of seasonal job seekers entering the labor market and, at the same time, to lower the number of unemployed from 127,079 to 124,951 people.

Nationally, a similar decline of 0.1 percentage points lowered the unemployment rate to 4.3 percent. Locally, unemployment rates either declined or stabilized in 14 jurisdictions. Across the state, unemployment rates included levels as low as 2.4 percent in Montgomery County, 2.7 percent in Howard County, 3.0 percent in Carroll and Frederick counties, and 3.3 percent in Calvert County.

Hiring activity during November was centered primarily in retail trade as employers began to bring in temporary workers to accommodate holiday shoppers. General merchandise and apparel stores boosted their payrolls, as did food stores, furniture retailers, and miscellaneous retail establishments such as card shops and bookstores. Hiring in trade was supplemented by recalls in education and manufacturing and by upturns in business, social, and engineering/management services.

Temporary layoffs in manufacturing and seasonal reductions in construction lowered employment in the Western Maryland region, adding workers to the unemployment rolls and pushing up the unemployment rate by 0.4 percentage points to 6.2 percent in November.

Church Burglary Reported On Twin Churches Road

Last week thieves struck the Trinity United Church of Christ, located on Twin Churches Road near New Germany State Park. According to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office the total loss sustained by the church due to theft and property damage comes to nearly $450.

The burglary of the church building, which had been secured after the previous Sunday's worship service, was discovered on Friday afternoon as church caretakers arrived to find that a basement window had been broken out.

Stolen were a Sanyo 25-inch color television and a Symphonic VCR, model SV211E, with a combined value of $309, and an Emerson portable stereo, with combination AM/FM, CD player, and double cassette tape deck, valued at $84. The damage to the broken window glass and frame was estimated at $50.

A car stereo was taken from a vehicle parked at the Hutton Auto repair shop on Hutton Road between Dec. 20 and Jan. 1. Sam Sisler reported that his Optimus AM/FM cassette car stereo with a Realistic 70-watt amplifier was taken, with a total value of $140.

The home of Floyd Wakefield in the 1200 block of Wakefield Road was struck by vandals Sunday night, as the residence was struck with several paint pellets, apparently shot from a pellet gun. Several windows were also broken as a result of the vandalism.

A hit-and-run accident occurred in the parking lot of Food Lion between 2 and 3 p.m. on New Year's Eve. Sheila Strawser of Aurora, W.Va., came out of the store to find that her white Dodge mini-van had sustained damage to its rear end after being struck by an unknown vehicle.

Citizens who may have information concerning these or any other investigations are encouraged to call the Crime Solvers number at 301-334-1975. Anonymity is guaranteed.

Destruction Of Property, Theft; Reward Offered

Maryland State Police reported an incident of theft and destruction of property at a local business last week.

According to the report, an unknown suspect or suspects entered the Accident Car Wash sometime between 10 p.m. Jan. 1 and 9 a.m. Jan. 2. The culprit allegedly tore the coin machine from the car wash bay and removed it along with its contents.

The machine and contents were valued at $3,100. The owners of the business have offered a cash reward for information leading to an arrest.

The Maryland State Police have asked that anyone with information on this case call the barrack at McHenry at 301-387-1101 or 301-895-1101.

School Property Destroyed

State Police reported damage to property at two county schools. Accident Elementary School and Northern High School sustained damage to athletic fields, grass, and trees sometime between 8 p.m. Saturday and 9:20 a.m. Sunday.

The report stated that an unknown suspect or suspects drove an unknown type of 4-wheel drive vehicle across the property at both schools, damaging approximately 50 yards of grass and destroying five trees.

The damage to school property was estimated to be $1,350.

Maryland Income Tax Booklets Mailed; Minor Changes Noted

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein says 1,871,360 personal income tax booklets for 1997 were mailed to Maryland taxpayers during the holidays, and that few changes on forms, a new direct deposit feature for electronic filers, and expanded technology should mean a smooth filing season for both taxpayers and the comptroller's office.

"There are very few changes to forms and instructions for 1997, which means the taxpayers can use last year's Maryland form as a guide for completing their 1997 return," he said. "Only one local income tax rate changed in 1997. The rate for Talbot County residents dropped to forty percent." Local income tax rates are based on where taxpayers live, not where they work.

According to Goldstein, about half of Maryland's taxpayers use professional tax preparers. "Electronic filing is the way to go if you use a professional tax preparer. While electronic filing is the quickest way to get your refund, a new option this year can get your refund even faster. If you file electronically this year, for the first time, you have the option to request direct deposit of your Maryland refund into your bank account. Direct deposit can have a refund into the taxpayer's bank account within two days after we receive the electronic return," he said.

For those who complete their own tax return, there are many ways the comptroller's office can help. "We will prepare your Maryland return free of charge at any of our 20 taxpayer service offices if you bring in a copy of your completed federal return and your W-2 statements," Goldstein said. "Taxpayers can also get help by calling 410-974-3981 from Central Maryland or 1-800-MD TAXES from elsewhere. Personal assistance is available Monday—Friday 8 a.m. to 5 p.m."

Taxpayers can avoid some of the most common errors that slow down processing and delay refunds by making sure that they use the correct local income tax rate, calculate the standard deduction correctly, check the correct filing status box, indicate the proper number of personal exemptions, and double check math calculations.

Marylanders can visit the comptroller's website (www.comp.state.md.us) 24 hours a day to download tax forms and publications, get answers to frequently asked questions, and e-mail tax questions or form requests to the Comptroller's office. Taxpayers can also reach the Forms-by-Fax system by calling 410-974-3299. "Lots of taxpayer assistance information is listed on the back cover of the tax booklet, including telephone numbers, website and e-mail addresses, office locations and more," Goldstein said.

A joint IRS and Maryland taxpayer assistance program to provide one-stop federal and state help is scheduled again this year at the Fallon Federal Building in Baltimore and at the State Office Building at 301 West Preston Street from February 2 through 6 and weekdays, from March 30 through April 15, 1998.

For the second year, Maryland income tax booklets have a taxpayer identification label on a flap inside the front cover. This label contains the taxpayer's name, address, and social security number. "If the information on the label is correct, please attach it to your completed state return. Using the label speeds up your refund," said Goldstein.

The comptroller noted that the 1997 Maryland booklet also includes an expanded section on taxpayer rights. "We've provided additional information about the delinquent collection, hearings and appeals processes," he said.

The maximum pension exclusion available on Maryland income tax has been increased to $15,000 this year. "For the second year, taxpayers do not need to complete a separate form to claim this benefit; they simply use a worksheet in the instructions. This saved 100,000 pieces of paper last year," he said.

Thousands of Maryland taxpayers may be eligible for an earned income credit this year if they're eligible for the federal earned income credit. "Maryland's credit amounts to one-half the amount of the taxpayer's federal earned income credit and can reduce the Maryland income tax by up to $1,828," noted Goldstein. Information on the earned income credit and Maryland's poverty level deduction is in the tax booklet instructions and in the tax tip brochure "Families and Maryland Income Taxes."

BOE Releases Agenda For Jan. Monthly Meeting

The Garrett County Board of Education has released the agenda for the first regular monthly meeting of 1998. The meeting, at the Oakland office of the board, is scheduled for Tuesday, Jan. 13.

The meeting will open with a public comment session at 3 p.m., followed by executive session at 3:05 p.m. The meeting will reopen to the public at 5 p.m.

The single audit report will be presented at 5:05 p.m. Board concerns include election of officers, determination of meeting dates, times, and places, selection of attorney and audit firm, and committee assignments.

More administrative concerns will be taken up at 5:50 p.m. A cargo van bid, an update on Yough Glades Elementary, contract awards for the Southern High School corridor, and information on the awarding of bus contracts are scheduled.

Instructional concerns will be considered. Beginning at 6:20 p.m. action will be taken on a request for a school band trip, and action is slated on the recommendation of the AP textbooks for the U.S. history. (see related story)

At 7 p.m. the floor will open again for public comment followed by personnel matters, and the instructional concerns will be taken up again with information from the activities review committee and on the MSPAP.

The public is invited to participate in the monthly board of education meetings. For further information, persons may call the board office at 301-334-8901.

Oakland Police Arrest Man On Assault Charge

Oakland Police responded to a complaint by two female juveniles that resulted in the arrest of an Oakland man on assault charges.

The officer stated that around 5 p.m. the two young women were walking on Liberty Street when they were approached by David A. Ridenour, 34, Oakland. He reportedly placed his hands on one of the girls.

Ridenour also reportedly yelled and cursed at passing traffic before leaving the scene on foot. He was served with an arrest warrant at his residence.

He was released on his own recognizance the following day.

Chain Reaction Accident

The Oakland Police responded to a three vehicle accident on Third Street near Orchard on Monday around 7:30 p.m.

Two vehicles, one driven by Maidra Delaney, Horse Shoe Run, W.Va., and one driven by Wayne Biser, Oakland, were stopped in a line of traffic, the report said. A third vehicle, driven by Anthony C. Corby, Oakland, struck the rear of the Biser vehicle, forcing it forward and causing it to strike the Delaney vehicle.

Four persons were transported to Garrett Memorial Hospital for treatment. Corby, after refusing medical treatment at the scene, was arrested and charged with driving while intoxicated and failure to reduce speed to avoid a collision.

Corby was incarcerated in the Garrett County Jail and released the next day on his own recognizance, the report said.

State's Online System Growing

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein says his office is continuing its growth in high tech customer service to taxpayers with a new direct deposit feature for taxpayers who file electronically, a new automatic e-mail response for taxpayers requesting forms, and an expanded website section on frequently asked tax questions.

"For the second year, we are offering e-mail service, which allows taxpayers to ask tax questions. Last year, nearly half of our correspondence came by e-mail, a great convenience to taxpayers," Goldstein said. The taxpayer service e-mail address is taxhelp@comp.state.md.us. "This year, we have added an automatic response feature for taxpayers who are requesting tax forms by e-mail, a service to those with e-mail service only." Taxpayers can get the forms by e-mail at forms @comp.state.md.us.

"Our expanded website offers taxpayers the opportunity to download tax forms and publications at any time as well as answers to frequently asked tax questions and directions to taxpayer service offices," he said. Taxpayers needing an extension of time to file 1997 state income tax returns can request the extension online. To reach the Maryland State Comptroller's website, search for www.comp.state.md.us. Taxpayers without access to the web may file for an extension by phone by calling 410-974-5TAX from the Baltimore area or 1-800-260-3664 from elsewhere in Maryland.

For the third year, the comptroller's office is also offering forms and publications to taxpayers and tax preparers through its Forms-by-Fax system. The system gives taxpayers and tax preparers 24-hour access to tax forms and publications through their fax machines.

To reach the Forms-by-Fax system persons can dial 410-974-FAXX (974-3299) from the handset of their fax machine or telephone. They may request up to five documents per call. A list of the most frequently requested tax forms along with their order numbers is in the 1997 Maryland income tax booklet.

Goldstein says his office is also teaming up with local tax preparers in an effort to encourage taxpayers to file their income tax returns electronically. About 50% of Maryland taxpayers use a professional tax preparer to complete their income tax returns. More than 150,000 electronic returns were filed last year.

"Electronic filing benefits everyone. Taxpayers get their refunds quicker, tax preparers receive acknowledgment that the return has been received, and errors can be corrected immediately," said Goldstein. "And this year, we offer the option of direct deposit of your income tax refund into your bank account if you file electronically. This means we can have your refund in your bank account in two days."

Goldstein also noted that his office has placed information on its website about 3,500 federal and Maryland income tax refund checks that were returned by the Postal Service as undeliverable. For the first time anywhere in the country, taxpayers can search a single website for information about both federal and state undeliverable refunds.

"Using modern technology, promoting quality customer assistance, and using many other innovative approaches to helping taxpayers is what Maryland is best known for. That's why we were ranked number one in the nation for using digital technology for taxpayer service and tax processing by the Progress and Freedom Foundation and the IBM Institute for Electronic Government," said Comptroller Goldstein.

GREEN ACRES GARDEN CENTER

A Dedicated Lady...

A variety of thoughts go through one's mind upon the death of his grandmother, especially a grandmother that, at times it seemed, would simply live forever. That was the attitude of Elsie Sincell until her final moments Saturday night, when she peacefully completed nearly 99 years of life on this earth.

Right up until her last two days, Elsie would get out of her own bed (in her own house) every single day, fix her hair, don nice clothing, and prepare and eat her breakfast. She continued to write letters, regularly attend church, and come downtown to have her hair done every other Friday (at noon sharp). She even continued to occasionally host the members of the ladies guild from church. She continued to read, not only books, but also the daily newspaper, because she wanted to keep up with what was going on in the world. She continued to vote in all elections. All of these things remained important to her, despite her extremely advanced age.

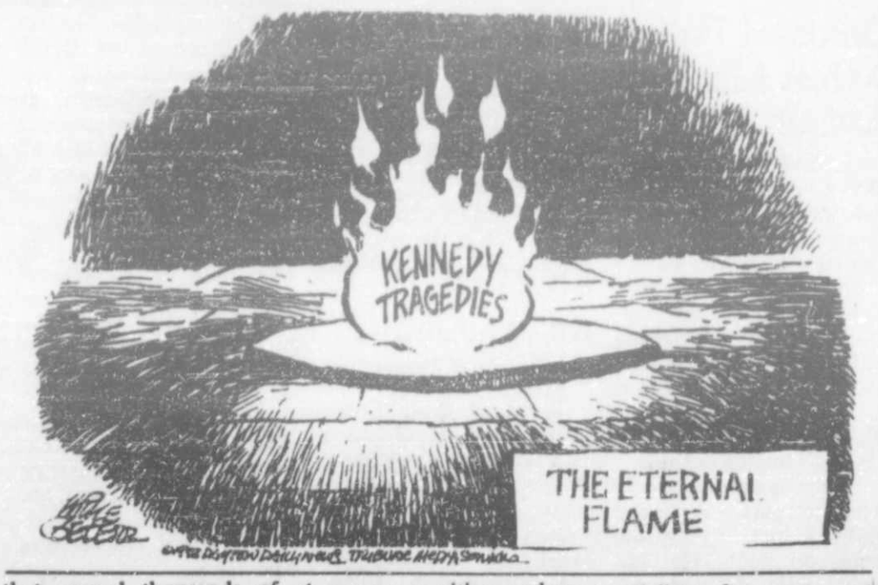
Dedication is among the words that come to mind to describe Elsie. For nearly 70 years, she was dedicated to her work here at the newspaper office. She was into her 90s before she retired, and if she had had her way entirely, she probably would have still been proofreading last week. She was dedicated to playing the organ for St. Mark's Lutheran Church for 50 years. She was also dedicated to the members of her family, and always concerned about the welfare of each and every grandchild and great-grandchild, niece and nephew, great-nieces and great-nephews, cousins and in-laws.

Perhaps her level of dedication was a result of her own mother's death when Elsie was just 11, leaving her as the only female among six brothers and her father. What a difficult situation that must have been for her.

Because her mind remained so clear until her final hours, she was a wealth of local, historical information, and enjoyed relating stories from her past. To put things into some time perspective, the Titanic went down just two weeks to the day before Elsie became a teenager. What a wonderful thing for us, her descendants, to be able to hear first-hand, in the final years of this century, about life in its earliest years.

We will miss her, but we have much to celebrate. Would that we all could have so many good years, and depart this segment of our life under similar circumstances.

Even 99 years is a micro-second in the universal, grand scheme of things. But our time here is extremely important because it is when we become who we are as single, unique individuals. We also believe that Elsie was right: we can live forever, and in an infinitely finer place than on this good earth, a place that she now knows all about.



Daze of Christmas Passed
by Melodee Hill

Strip the halls and throw the tree out—Fa la la la la la la la. Whew! I made it through another holiday season of endless food, endless carols, and seemingly endless wrapping. The endless bills are just starting to replace the Christmas cards in the mailbox. Don't get me wrong, I really enjoy the holidays. I start looking forward to Christmas about the time that the stores start putting up their Christmas displays sometime in July. I just don't like to think about what I need to do to get ready for Christmas until December 21 or 22. By then the stores are selling bathing suits and sand toys, lawnmowers and barbecue grills. I guess you'd have to go to Florida if you need a snow shovel or an ice scraper in mid-January.

As I was saying, the holidays always seem like a joyful time to me—a time filled with hope. Even though quite often I sound negative and cynical, deep down, my personality is more on the optimistic and hopeful side. Christmas and the advent of the new year signify new beginnings and fresh adventures. I usually try to look upon each day as a clean start (mostly because I can't even remember the day before), and wonder if any novel experiences await. Most days have a comforting sameness, with the promise of "adventure" right around the corner—be careful what you wish for!

A few weeks before Christmas, about the time I was realizing there was not enough time for me to finish everything I wanted to before Christmas, I began to have a series of "adventures." These were unfortunately not Indiana Jones exciting, prove-your-bravery, triumph-over-evil-type adventures. They were more like I-don't-have-time-for-this, tear-your-hair-out-type mishaps. There was a running joke around work, named "The Twelve Disasters of Christmas," alluding to that song about the partridge stuck in the pear tree. Every morning co-workers would inquire which number disaster I was currently working on or getting over or ranting about.

This is the point where I should insert a disclaimer: These disasters were really nothing more than minor inconveniences when you compare them to the really serious tragedies that people face every day, so in retrospect they are all rather entertaining, especially when they happen to someone else. Also, I should mention that I (thankfully) did not have as many as twelve mishaps and (also thankfully), I am only going to relate a few of them to avoid amusing (or more likely boring) you too much. Finally, this is not as much of a disclaimer as it is a warning—If you are at all squeamish or the least bit offended by human bodily functions, especially when they are being done by a dog, you should definitely not read paragraphs six and seven and should probably only skim through paragraph twenty-three.

On the fifth day of Christmas (Monday), I decide to be really organized and prepare my gifts for Book Group (Friday). We have a tradition of exchanging very simple, inexpensive gifts and I had chosen decorated, heart-shaped cardboard boxes for each member. Not wanting to

To the Editor:

A note of appreciation to those who are responsible for the village and train display in the store front on Second St. and for the nice display in the library window. My grandson and I have spent a lot of time at the train display.

These things, along with the tasteful town decorations, are a part of what makes the town of Oakland unique.

Sincerely,
Russell Sanders
Terra Alta, V.Wa.

Dear Mr. Sanders:

The person responsible for creating the display, the owner of the trains and the many other items that it consists of, and the "chief engineer" is Scott Atwill, a resident of Sky Valley.

To the Editor:

The passing of Elsie Sincell last weekend inspired me to write a few words about having worked with her. I had the privilege of doing so back in 1990-91.

Elsie was the only person I ever knew or knew of who drew a paycheck in her nineties (save George Burns). She and I proofread together for this newspaper.

Sometimes Elsie would run across some tidbit that would remind her of days gone by, and she would almost literally step back in time to elaborate. She related stories of riding the train as a child, taught me where the Cove and the Elbow are, and corrected me whenever I mispronounced family names of Garrett County. It was a rich and rare experience to have worked with her.

Elsie tried in vain to get me to stop "straining at gnats," to stop worrying so much about every little missing or misplaced punctuation mark. To this day, I often think of her when I am proofreading on a Thursday morning, with the paper's deadline looming over us. I try to put aside my penchant for being so picky, but it's hard.

If she's listening, I'd just like to say, "I hear you, Elsie; I'll try not to sweat the small stuff." I guess after all those years, she knew what was really important.

Donna Aspinall
Oakland

To the Editor:

I am writing in regard to your headline story a few months back about then-Sheriff Randy Sines. If I am not mistaken, unlawfully spending or taking someone else's money is a crime.

In this case it was proven that several thousands of hard-working taxpayers' dollars were spent, or in other words, stolen, for the sheriff's personal use.

Why is it in about every public official's case he or she always seems to get a slap on the wrist for committing crimes? Are they any better than the average citizen? NO! This man, in my opinion, should have paid the same consequences as any other citizen would have paid; and that, my friends, is spending time behind bars.

I ask myself how anybody could have any sympathy for this man. If this were you or I embezzling money, we would be behind bars for six months, or a year, possibly longer. Also, the amount of money misused or unlawfully spent would have to be paid in full at the time of the trial, not spread out over a couple years' time. This is absolutely unjust.

I believe, you do the crime, you do the time. Randy should be made to sit and think about how untrue and wrong he was to the citizens of Garrett County. After all, he did fall back on his "honest" words that helped get him elected. Isn't this a shame how authority went to his head, and then in the blink of an eye, it was gone?

I would like to advise people to think twice about the public judicial system. Are public officials better than average citizens when it comes to justice? In this case, it seemed Randy Sines was above the law.

Yours truly,
Jerry Tasker
Petersburg, W.Va.

To the Editor:

As chair of the Garrett County AIDS Council, I would like to thank all of the supporters from our community who helped put together the World AIDS Day event on December 6, 1997.

The program was funded by the GWFC Civic Club of Oakland, First United National Bank & Trust, the Jr. Woman's Civic Club, Reverend Edith Wilson, and many other individuals who gave their time and personal assistance.

The Council would like to thank Garrett Community College for space and technical support, the Garrett County Health Department for administration and publication support, the local media, including The Republican newspaper, Cumberland Times-News/Garrett County Weekender, and WKHJ Radio for publicity, Tressler Lutheran Services for the red ribbon material, Junior Ferguson and Eric Cvetnick for donating cookies for the refreshments, Dr. Margaret Kaiser, Cathy Clocker, Sharon Katino, Sandy Sutton, Pandora's Box cast, and AmeriCorps members. Thank you to special guest performers: Connie Fink, Courtney Thomas, Jamie Reichert, Kathleen Wold, and Lucie Simon.

A special thank you to all Garrett County AIDS Council members and Carolyn Tichinell for all their assistance, and the fourth-grade students and teachers of Broad Ford Elementary, Red House, and Loch Lynn schools for participating in this educational event by offering the tag board quilts to display during the event.

The Garrett County AIDS Council is open to all interested persons. Meetings are held the last Thursday of the month. The next meeting will be January 29, 3 p.m., at the Mt. Glade Adult Day Care Center, 275 Pythian Avenue, Oakland.

Let us all work together to "Give Children Hope in a World with AIDS."

Donna McClintock
Garrett County AIDS Council
1997-98 Chair

To the Editor:

I just want to say thanks to all of you who responded to our recent membership drive. It is very encouraging to see that so many people care about what happens to this county. I might also add that, for the people who have worked so hard for G.C./CARE, it is inspiring to know that we have your support. It is one thing to work for a cause with just a little support; it is quite another thing to work for a cause knowing that so many people support you. In the truest sense, it is our reward; thank you very much.

It has been pointed out that some of you had made donations this past summer and were not acknowledged for having done so. We apologize for that and want everyone to know that we are profoundly grateful for those donations. The truth is that, at that time, we were not very organized. We are currently going through our paperwork and will be sending out letters to those who donated. We would also like to remind everyone that every penny is spent on furthering the cause; all of the people working for G.C./CARE are unpaid volunteers.

This year will be very busy for us; we will be spotlighting many issues that we have discovered in our research over the past few

by Jeffrey Wilson

"WATCHING THE SUN COME UP"

Here we are in between the bowl games of New Year's Day and the Super Bowl. Numerous other spectacles are offered day after day. New kinds of entertainments are being created even as you read this column. Gladiators and feeding Christians to the lions are still a few years away, but, no doubt, that too will come.

In the meantime I have been taking in an old spectacle, one older than man. I have been watching the sun come up. While not featured during prime time, it is a show that is more conveniently timed during winter than at any other season of the year. Though I will say, it has always paid me well to watch the sun rise during all the seasons.

My wife and one daughter leave for school before 6:30 a.m. The younger kids head out the door at 6:40. As they are walking up the lane, I settle in a kitchen chair by the window onto the east for my morning devotions.

Praying the psalms and watching the beams of sunlight illuminating the clouds just above the horizon complement each other. Psalm 19 tells us that the heavens declare the glory of God. Nothing seems truer when watching clouds turn gold and silver, red, blue, and purple during the half hour before the sun itself makes its formal appearance.

One morning the sky was completely covered by clouds, but not quite to the horizon—a skullcap on the heavens. The sunbeams shone upward—a dazzling sight. When the sun came above the horizon, it had the effect of appearing at a window, a window onto the everlasting.

The juxtaposition of the sunrise with reading the scriptures nourishes my spirit. Sometimes that 40 minutes refreshes me more than the night's rest. There is conveyed to me a sense of readiness to face the day, whatever may come.

I wonder what the sunrise is for others. I fear in this age of spectacles one common reaction to the sunrise is to miss it or to ignore it. If someone spent last evening watching one grown man bite the ear off another grown man or two 300-pound men dislocate each other's shoulders, then the sunrise must seem to be pretty boring stuff.

The violence we call entertainment numbs us, individually and collectively as a society. It is no wonder that the same athlete who is paid to hurt someone for our pleasure is astounded that anyone should object to his raping a girlfriend or killing his wife.

It is all part of a continuum. I fear that the more severe forms of violence offend us as a society mostly because we have not yet gotten used to them. Give us time, I say, and we shall get to the gladiators and throwing Christians to the lions. Meanwhile, we yawn as the sun rises.

The other response, increasingly common in our day, to the sunrise is to worship it. These are people who have missed out on the past 4,000 years of history or who have repudiated it, and who want to take us all back to 2000 B.C. Such people recognize the wonder of the sunrise, but as a practical matter, reject not only 4,000 years of revealed religion in the Judeo-Christian tradition, but also the scientific tradition from Aristotle to today.

It is the scientist who has proven that the sun may be our brother creature, but it is definitely not our father the creator (no, nor our mother, either). That is what the writers of scripture said under inspiration of the Holy Ghost. It is handy that scientists, using the empirical method, have come to the same conclusion.

So I commend, to one and all, watching the sun come up. On days when you feel the need to wallow in a little extra luxury, you might even want to watch it go down, too.

Enough Self-Dealing From The Bottom of the Deck

A commentary from John Bambacus, Mayor of Frostburg

Some bad ideas just won't die, no matter how many times the majority of good citizens of Allegany County and Western Maryland tell the gambling proponents: "Get thee behind us."

How frustrating it is for those of us working to develop our region as a productive place to raise our children in prosperous, civil communities. The gambling men just don't know "when to fold 'em." They apparently don't seem to care that we have already sent the message, "We don't want you here." Well, gentlemen you think we are a simple people, but we are not stupid. We are well aware that all over the country, expanded casino gambling has started with slots at race tracks.

With last week's disclosure that an off-track betting (OTB) parlor is planned for Allegany County, we can paraphrase former President Ronald Reagan's famous "There they go again." We are seeing again that local self-dealers and politicians are continuing their efforts to sneak casino-style gambling into our communities disguised to save the horseracing industry in Maryland and to bring in jobs.

Like addicts lining up for free narcotics, short-sighted local political officials are "buying in" to this transparent promise of gambling skim going into government coffers.

The issue for our Appalachian region of Maryland is more fundamental than economic fantasies by which local officials are seduced into ignoring reality and our wishes, while they give in to the entreaties and favors of the gambling men and their hired politicians. The issue is about goodness.

We are not talking here about small-time charitable or fraternal clubs, our firehouses, and school supporters. We're talking big time! By promising instant riches, the gamblers sell empty dreams. The house always wins. They take big money out of a community's pocket and send it elsewhere. Gambling means the transfer of billions of dollars nationwide from millions of lower and middle income citizens into the pockets of a few wealthy corporate operators and private interests.

A recent Harvard University report on gambling, for which researchers analyzed 120 academic studies on gambling impacts, found that expansion of organized gambling has resulted in a rapid rise of gambling disorders by almost 50 percent in the last 20 years.

We who love our communities and the quality of life we are providing to our children and to our visitors are working hard to maintain the integrity of the community and to "grow good businesses" which will enhance, not destroy, our people.

Nationally, as well as here in Maryland, there is a well-known, widely reported campaign to expand traditional race track wagering to include casino-like slot machines and video poker. I hope that we won't be drawn into bogus statistical arguments offered for public consumption by big gambling backers.

Just because neighboring states are making bad gambling policies and trashing their communities is not a reason for Western Maryland to allow exploiters to drag our values to the lowest level. Big-time gambling, whether the casino is a stand-alone facility or camouflaged as an off-track betting parlor, is bad for business and equally bad public policy. By transferring scarce "discretionary income" from our citizens and our local businesses into the off-shore accounts of faceless gambling corporations or greedy statewide private interests, expansion of organized gambling in a region is unsound social policy.

For example, the National Restaurant Association, a trade group with state chapters including Maryland's, has widely reported the damages to local economies wherever casino-like gambling is established. This is why this association opposes expanded corporate gambling.

Overwhelmingly, citizens who have expressed their concerns to me about this latest effort to expand organized gambling in Western Maryland are saying, "How can we kill this thing, once and for all?" My answer is simple. Ask questions of and demand honesty from local political officials.

Rather than being seduced into selling the souls of our communities, local elected officials who continue to play "secret games" with these gambling advocates must realize that the verdict is in. We, who love our communities, believe that there are better futures for our children, have to send an unequivocal message. We have to tell them that we support public policy that will create a civic environment that is attractive to truly beneficial businesses that we want to see established in our wonderful region, so rich in natural and human resources.

JACKIE BROWN

In my opinion, there are three things necessary to make an excellent film: (1) consistently good acting, (2) consistently good directing, and (3) a consistently good script. It's surprising how few films are able to pull this off. But this one has no problem delivering all three, and continues to make it clear that Quentin Tarantino is coming into his own as one of the best writer/directors of the 1990s. His gutsy, no-nonsense style about life in urban America has given us such excellent films as Pulp Fiction and Reservoir Dogs, and his latest offering is as vibrant as any he has produced.

This does not say anything, however, about whether Jackie Brown is a fun movie to watch. The TV commercials for this film, by culling out a few funny lines and situations, make it look almost like a comedy. But there is little to laugh about here. The subjects of drug abuse, murder, and illegal weapons trafficking are not by any means humorous, and the brutality and obscene language may give some viewers pause. Sometimes in movies, violent acts are portrayed in such an overblown fashion that the horror is taken out of it. But that is not the case here. Tarantino, oft accused of excessive violence, has said that he is just showing truthfully the facts of life in the crime-infested inner city.

This story revolves around Ordell Robbie (Samuel L. Jackson), a cold-blooded dealer of illegal weapons across international borders, and Jackie Brown (Pam Grier), a flight attendant who serves as his connection to Mexico. She delivers the goods and brings back the money, or vice versa, as the case may be. But when she is stopped by agent Ray Nicolet (Michael Keaton) of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco & Firearms and found with $50,000, she is in hot water. If she helps Ray in his plan to incarcerate Ordell, she can get a lighter sentence--but if things go wrong, her life will most definitely be in danger. But she is a shrewd woman, and with the aid of Max Cherry (Robert Forster), a bail bondsman who takes a liking to her, she might be able to make everybody happy. Or maybe not. In a complex operation that involves all the above parties plus Ordell's continually stoned girlfriend Melanie (Bridget Fonda) and his partner Louis (Robert DeNiro, also stoned), it is hard to see at first if everything goes as planned.

This is a devilishly complex and fascinating story. At one point Jackie has three different deals going with Ordell, Max, and Ray, and it is not at all clear with which one she's on the level. But the script never seems muddled or over-complicated. The tension is established early and maintained at a low boil throughout the movie. The characterizations are distinct and clear, but subtle, and all the acting is excruciatingly real. This is the unmistakable sign of good directing. Tarantino last directed Jackson in Pulp Fiction, and the two seem to be able to work together to good effect. Jackson is chilling as Ordell, and DeNiro's pothead Louis is a slight departure from his regular tough-guy character, who is usually in control. In this film, control is the last thing Louis has. Grier is very real as the likeable title character, as is her heartfelt relationship with Forster.

There is some humor in this film, but not enough to inspire one to laugh out loud, as in Pulp Fiction. There are also some really interesting, convention-breaking cinematographic elements. The violence is not graphic in the sense that there is blood splattered all over the screen; there is really very little carnage, but Tarantino's directing is so subtle that he is able to deliver the horror in a style that is actually more profound.

So be warned: like Pulp Fiction, Jackie Brown is excellently produced, but if your enjoyment of a film cannot withstand acts of brutality, extreme profanity, and repeated drug use, the plot may turn your stomach. ★★★★½

Enough Self-Dealing

Just as we saw last summer, when behind-the-scenes shenanigans by local self-dealers were brought to light (a proposed public bail-out of a failed private Frostburg restaurant with public monies), now we again have indications that state racing officials seem to be dealing "behind the scenes," in the back rooms of state and local government. But with whom?

Silent deals have been made by a secretive political network that does not believe it is accountable any longer to Western Maryland voters and business leadership, which by some accounts has been bullied into submission. The people must demand that we will no longer let them betray public trust to line their friends' pockets. There is a saying, "Character is what you do in the dark, when nobody is watching." Well, it is time for us to drag the backroom politicians and their political operatives out of their back rooms and into the sunshine. We are tired of the ceaseless exploitation of our public trust.

Come next election time, we in Western Maryland will send these self-dealers packing. It will be a time to "switch off" the insensitive, bullying political machinery.

Our people are demanding political leadership which respects our values and the legacy we desire to leave to our kids and grandkids. Good jobs, clean communities, both environmentally and politically, good and solid educational opportunities, optimism, and growth are what we are pursuing. And we are having many successes. Building our viable, adaptable 21st Century communities takes time.

Expanding gambling is no short-cut to prosperity. It is a short-circuiting of our future. Should OTB and casino slot machines be the salvation of Maryland horseracing? Not at the cost of our souls.

We must work together, in the open, to build a workable consensus for a promising future. Enough is enough.

In Loving Memory of

There's Always a Springtime

After the Winter comes the Spring
To show us again that in everything
There's always renewal divinely planned,
Flawlessly perfect, the work of God's Hand...
And just like the seasons that come and go
When the flowers of Spring lay buried in snow,
God sends to the heart in its winter of sadness
A springtime awakening of new hope and gladness,
And loved ones who sleep in a season of death
Will, too, be awakened by God's life-giving breath.
All who believe in God's mercy and grace
Will meet their loved ones face to face
Where time is endless and joy unbroken
And only the words of God's love are spoken.

Sadly missed and always loved by family and friends.

Expressions of sympathy may be directed to the American Diabetes Association.

MARY M. FRAZEE

Mary Margaret Frazee, 78, Terra Alta, W.Va., died Monday, Jan. 5, 1998, at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Oakland.

Born Feb. 10, 1919, at Detroit, Mich., she was the daughter of the late Joseph P. and Alice (Long) Plunkett. She was reared by an uncle and aunt, Leo and Rose Harmon. She was also preceded in death by her husband, Richard H. Frazee, in 1988.

She was a member of Our Lady of Nazareth Catholic Church, the Catholic Historical Society, and the DAV Auxiliary, all of Roanoke, Va. She was a teacher's assistant for 30 years in the Roanoke school system.

Survivors include three cousins, including John Harmon, Mtn. Lake Park.

Friends were received at the Arthur H. Wright Funeral Home, Terra Alta, where a prayer service was conducted Wednesday evening. A Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated earlier today, Jan. 8, at St. Edward's Catholic Church in Terra Alta, with Father Jerome McKenna as celebrant. Entombment will be in Blue Ridge Memorial Gardens, Roanoke.

The family requests that memorials be directed to the Terra Alta Ambulance Squad or the Terra Alta Volunteer Fire Department.

HAZEL K. LEWIS

Hazel K. Lewis, 86, Rawlings, died Sunday, Jan. 4, 1998, at Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland.

Born Sept. 7, 1911, in Deer Park, she was a daughter of the late John W. and Ethel C. (Spiker) Miller. She was also preceded in death by two husbands, Gilbert W. Ashby, in 1967, and Arden J. Lewis Sr., in 1988.

She was a former employee of the Sterling Processing Co. and was a member of the Creilin Assembly of God Church.

Survivors include one daughter, Barbara Gray, Cumberland; one stepdaughter, Joyce Crites, Baltimore; three stepsons, Charles W. Lewis, Baltimore, Arden J. Lewis Jr., Deep Creek Lake, and Philip C. Lewis, Tennessee; one sister, Irene Livengood, Cresaptown; one brother, Randall Miller, Central Square, N.Y.; two grandchildren; five great-grandchildren; and numerous step-grandchildren and step-great-grandchildren.

Friends were received at the Stewart Funeral Home, Oakland, where a service was conducted Wednesday, Jan. 7, with the Rev. Gail Hixon officiating. Interment followed in Garrett County Memorial Gardens, Oakland.

BRIAN P. BROWNING

Brian Patrick Browning, 34, Oakland, died Tuesday, Jan. 6, 1998, at his home.

He was born March 17, 1963, in Oakland, a son of Thomas D. and Juanita (Beckman) Browning.

Prior to his illness, he was a convenience store operator. He was a member of Lakeside Assembly of God Church, where he was a deacon, a youth leader, and served as superintendent of the Sunday School. He was a member of the Aurora Full Gospel Businessmen's Association. He had completed coursework at Berea College and had taken a missionary trip to Bolivia. He was also a retired member of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by one son, Eric M. Browning, Terra Alta, W.Va.; one daughter, Rebecca A. Browning, Terra Alta; two brothers, Michael T. Browning and David A. Browning, both of Oakland; and one sister, Nancy Lewis, Oakland.

The family will receive friends at the Durst Funeral Home, Oakland, from 2-4 and 7-9 p.m. today, Thursday. A service will be conducted at the Lakeside Assembly of God Church on Friday, Jan. 9, at 11 a.m., with the Rev. Robert Shank officiating. Interment will follow in Garrett County Memorial Gardens.

Friends may call at the church one hour prior to the service.

A trust fund has been established at First United Bank & Trust for the benefit of Browning's children. Donations may be directed to the trust department at the bank, or made to a charity of the donor's choice.

LAURA B. FRANTZ

Laura Belle Frantz, 85, Friendsville, died Saturday, Jan. 3, 1998, at the Henry Clay Villa, Markleysburg, Pa.

Born Aug. 21, 1912, in Sabraton, W.Va., she was the daughter of the late Edward B. and Emma (Titchenell) Thornburg.

She was a member of the Asher Glade Church of the Brethren and the church's ladies aid. She began playing the piano for the church at the age of 12, and continued in that position for many decades. She also served as a Sunday School teacher and treasurer.

Survivors include her husband of 67 years, James Lloyd Frantz, whom she married Sept. 27, 1930, at Frank Fike Gate; three sons, James R. Frantz, Friendsville, Gary W. Frantz, Grantsville, and Donald E. Frantz, Waldorf; two daughters, Barbara E. Andria, Smithfield, Pa., and Linda S. Miller, Finksburg; 12 grandchildren; 16 great-grandchildren; and five great-great-grandchildren.

Friends were received at the Newman Funeral Home, Friendsville. A service was conducted Monday, Jan. 5, at the Asher Glade Church of the Brethren with the Rev. Donald Matthews and the Rev. Kenny Dolan officiating. Interment followed in the Asher Glade Cemetery.

MABEL R. HATHAWAY

Mabel R. Hathaway, 84, Oakland, died Friday, Jan. 2, 1998, at the Pflugerville (Texas) Nursing Home.

Born June 6, 1913, in Eglon, W.Va., she was a daughter of the late Silas C. and Ella M. (Calhoun) Winters. She was also preceded in death by two sisters, Hazel Jackson and Audrey Henline.

She was a graduate of Terra Alta High School, class of 1933, and in 1946 graduated from the Maison Frederick Beauty School. For more than 37 years, she owned and operated Mabel's Beauty Salon in Oakland. She was a member of St. Paul's United Methodist Church, Oakland, and the National Beauty Association.

Survivors include one son, Leonard C. Hathaway II, Austin, Texas; three sisters, Grace Full, Parkersburg, W.Va., Eldean Lantz, Shinnston, W.Va., and Josephine Benson, Pomfret; and two grandsons.

Services were conducted at the Stewart Funeral Home, Oakland, on Wednesday, Jan. 7, with the Rev. John A. Grant officiating. Interment was in the Aurora (W.Va.) Cemetery.

The family requests that memorials take the form of contributions to the Southern Rescue Squad, P.O. Box 378, Oakland, MD 21550.

THE "COLOR TO WIN" winner of a giant Christmas stocking was Taleena Sines, a student at Route 40 Elementary School. The contest, sponsored by the Grantsville office of The Republican in conjunction with the "Old-Fashioned Grantsville Christmas" sponsored by the Greater Grantsville Business Association and Spruce Forest Artisan Village, drew a whopping 89 entries. The winner was drawn (pun intended) lottery-fashion by Republican advertising salesman Jamie Ashby, and Sines won the stocking stuffed with coloring and drawing supplies that will help her continue to further her artistic inclination.

Habitat Looking For Families In Need Of Housing

Garrett County Habitat for Humanity Inc. is looking for families in need of safe, affordable housing. Each year this organization builds homes for two families in the county, with assistance from members of those families.

Barbara Briggs, executive director for Habitat in Garrett County, described the relationship between the agency and the future homeowners as a partnership. In order to qualify for the Habitat program, family members must be able to volunteer working hours to Habitat projects. This is referred to as sweat equity.

"The family members' part in this partnership is to complete 300 sweat equity hours on other Habitat projects before their own home is built, and an additional 200 hours once work on their house begins," Briggs explained.

In addition to performing the volunteer hours of work required, a family must clear a minimum of $1,000 a month in "take home pay," Briggs said.

Those who participate in the Habitat housing program must be able to afford a mortgage payment, insurance, utilities, and taxes. "The total of these expenses may not exceed one third of the family income."

Briggs referred to those targeted by Habitat for Humanity as "in-betweeners." These are people who do not qualify for bank loans or government housing loans but who earn a sufficient amount of money to make the necessary monthly payments of a homeowner. "Habitat is not for everyone," she said.

Anyone who would like to know more about the program may contact Barbara Briggs at 301-334-9431, ext. 113.

Local Students Receive Service Learning Honors

Two Garrett County students were awarded the Service Star Award for 1997 recently in Baltimore.

Scott Elliott, a senior at Southern High School, and Jeff Folk, a senior at Northern High School, were honored in ceremonies that drew students from across the state who have displayed exemplary attributes and dedication to the field of service within their schools and communities.

Elliott is the son of Terry and Kathy Elliott of Kitzmiller and has accumulated over 344 hours of Service Learning. He is active with senior citizens and has performed many hours of service with the Kitzmilier Area Agency on Aging, Hot Meals Program. He is a Southern High School peer counselor, is active in church activities such as puppet ministry, and has assisted with the Rotary Christmas Project and with the Oakland/Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club concession booth at the county fair. He also enjoys working with children and is active with Bible School activities.

Folk is the son of Ronald and Dottie Folk of Grantsville and has accumulated over 161 hours of Service Learning. He is very active in Boy Scouts, and some of his projects have included a cemetery beautification project, working with New Germany State Park on handicapped accessibility and various clean-up activities. He is also active with Little League, Rotary, Eagle Scout activities and the Blind Skier Program at Northern High School.

"Scott and Jeff are exemplary," said Karen Ray, Service Learning facilitator for Garrett County, "and they are great role models for all our students who participate in service projects. Their parents are also involved, and support them by making sure they get to where they choose to serve. [Parental involvement] is true of all our students in the county who succeed in their Service Learning experience," Ray said.

Two students from each county in Maryland were selected for the 1997 Service Star awards, which were presented by Luke Frazier, executive director of the Maryland Student Service Alliance, and Richard J. Steinke, deputy state superintendent, Maryland State Department of Education.

Elliot and Folk have been invited to attend the state-wide Service Learning Conference in Baltimore at the end of March, where they will be participating in workshops designed to promote quality service projects through the sharing of ideas and experiences of Service Star honorees.

AARP To Offer Free Help With Filing Taxes

The American Association of Retired Persons will sponsor a tax-aide program. This will be the eighth year that this program of free assistance in filing income tax forms has been available locally.

Volunteers, all of whom are certified by the Internal Revenue Service (IRS), will be available at various times from February through April at the senior centers in Garrett County. All taxpayers with low to moderate income are eligible to take advantage of this free assistance with tax preparation.

The tax assistance service will be available at the Mary Browning Senior Center, Oakland, every Tuesday and Thursday beginning Feb. 3 from noon to 4 p.m. and on Wednesday evenings from 5 to 7 p.m.

The volunteers will arrange appointments at other senior centers and will visit the homebound upon request. Anyone wishing to arrange an appointment may contact the Community Action's Area Agency on Aging at 301-334-9431, ext. 142 or toll free at 888-877-8403.

The tax-aide program assists an estimated 1.5 million people each year with filing federal and state forms. Sites are established nationwide. Special arrangements are made to assist shut-ins, hospital patients, nursing home residents, and persons with disabilities.

Those who access this assistance are asked to bring the following documents in order to prepare Form 1040 EZ, 1040A, or the basic 1040: Forms W-2 and W-2p from each place worked during 1997; unemployment compensation statements; interest/dividend statements from savings accounts; social security numbers for all dependents; personal tax package with address label and a copy of 1996 tax return; child care provider information (name, employer ID, social security number); and all documents supporting claims such as estimated tax payments.

AURORA/EGLON NEWS

AURORA HOMEMAKERS

Aurora Homemakers and their spouses and friends met on Saturday evening, Dec. 6, at the Fairlea Restaurant for a turkey dinner. Ressie Conrad asked the blessing of the meal.

Virginia Martin and Martha Bolyard, members of the arrangements committee, led games following the dinner and awarded prices to winners. Door prices went to Ben Myers, Dorothy Spaid, Ernest Kovalck, Deloris Slawter, Mildred Stemple, and Janice Tackett.

Those attending brought non-perishable food items which were given to a local needy family.

Attending were Martha Bolyard and Becky Lantz, Ressie and Bill Conrad, Delores and Keith Douglas, Mary Jane and Lorain Hanline, Fern Jamison, Mildred and Ernie Kovalck, Virginia Martin, Sue and Jim Mayne, Melinda, Matthew, and April Mayne, Ben and Opal Myers, Dean and Scott Sisler, Deloris and James Slawter, Dorothy Spaid, Thelma Simpson, Janice Tackett, Alice Penzo, and Kathy Hardesty.

The next meeting will be at the Union Ambulance Squad Hall on Jan. 20 at 7 p.m.

MOUNTAINEERS VISIT CORTLAND

Eglon Mountaineer 4-H Club visited the Cortland Acres Nursing Home on Jan. 2, the date postponed from Dec. 30 because of stormy weather. They provided a program for the patients, took along tray favors they had made at their December meeting, and visited with the patients.

Those who made the trip were Bridgette and Leslie Strawser, Linda, Becky, and Sarah Snyder, Dana Feather, Kevin Corbin, Melinda and Tracy Teets, Josh Mullenax, Tom Teets, Grant and Maria Harsh, and Elaine Roth.

Prior to leaving for Cortland Acres, Willie Lantz helped livestock project members and his wife Arlene helped "This is 4-H" members in a project workshop.

SHAFFER DEATH

Word was received here of the death of Clyde C. Shaffer, 80, who died Sunday, Jan. 4, at an Abingdon, Md., hospital near his home. He reportedly had been a patient there for the past five weeks.

Mr. Shaffer was born at Brookside, the son of the late John and Fanny (Ewing) Shaffer. He married Lucille Abernathy of Aurora, who survives him. A son, Dennis Shaffer, Abingdon, and a daughter, Karen Meager, also of Abingdon, also survive, as do three grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Memorial services were conducted on Jan. 4, and the body was cremated. The remains will be interred at a cemetery in Essex, Md.

PERSONAL MENTION

Martha, Merlin, Micah, Marilyn and Matthew Reish of Harrisonburg, Va., were Christmas holiday guests of Mrs. Reish's parents, Ellis and Marie Teets, Horse Shoe Run. They were joined for a Dec. 24 dinner by Mark and LaDeana, Tom and Lindsay Teets, and Rene Glaviz. Rene left the Teets home last week to spend the remainder of his exchange year in another setting.

Guests on Christmas Day of Louella Fike, Aurora, were Norman Fike and friend Carolyn of Belington; Gary, Cleta, and Brian Fike, Terra Alta; Kevin Fike, Oakland; and Becky Fike, Terra Alta. Mrs. Fike received word that a daughter, Dorothy "Dottie" Carr, Las Vegas, was hospitalized there with a heart blockage and, after being transferred to another hospital, was recipient of a heart device by surgical intervention.

Mary and Lester Kelly, Columbia, S.C., spent Christmas week with her mother, Maxine Hauser, on Stemple Ridge. Christmas dinner guests of Wickey II and Jodie Myers were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Eskridge of Thomas, Beverly "Kitty" Myers, and Don Beckman. Afternoon visitors were Ricky and Kelly Myers. On Sunday following Christmas, all of the Scott and Dean Sisler family went to the Hauser home for dinner. Attending were Michael and June Sisler and family, Donetta and Dane Nice, Tamara and Cody Fauber, Derrick and Cara Radford and son, and Paul and Shauna Perrine and son.

Joe, Stacy, Courtney, Joey, and Becca Fint of Aurora were Dec. 27 guests of his parents, Glenn and Ilene Fint, at Old Fields, along with Carl and Nancy Winters and family of Manassas, Va. On Monday, Dec. 29, Courtney joined other West Virginia 4-H members who were participating in a Russian exchange for two weeks in that country.

Betty Moats of Aurora, who operates Fairlea Restaurant, was a patient last week in Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Edith Robinson, 91, of Tunnelton, died there on Friday, Jan. 2. Services were held from the James Lobb Funeral Home in Kingwood on Monday, Jan. 5, with burial following in the Campground Cemetery.

GED TEST (MD HIGH SCHOOL DIPLOMA)

If you are a Maryland resident 16 years of age or older and not currently enrolled in the public school system you may be eligible to take the GED (MD High School Diploma) test. May we suggest that those persons not quite ready to take the test consider enrolling in one of the following ABE courses.

The GED test is scheduled to be held at the McHenry Campus of GCC Saturday, April 5, 1998. Persons wishing to test at this time must submit their application to take the test no later than March 3, 1998.

Please note: the State of Maryland has increased the testing fee to $25. For an application or general information regarding this test contact Patricia Baer at (301) 334-8304.

MEDICAL LANGUAGE SPECIALIST

Supported by the latest technology, the Medical Language Specialist curriculum provides the opportunity for individuals to learn to interpret and transcribe dictation by physicians and other healthcare professionals. At the completion of this intensive, nine-month course of study, successful students may be provided with the opportunity to participate in a one-year paid apprenticeship with The Accuracy Center (TAC), Inc., a Garrett County corporation. Many flexible career opportunities await qualified Medical Language Specialists/Transcriptionists.

The next group of students is scheduled to begin in September 1998, and entry into the curriculum is competitive. Candidates' English and typing skills will be assessed upon receipt of application materials. Potential students should call the Continuing Education and Training Division Office (301) 387-3069 for additional information. Deadline for applications is August 1, 1998. Financial aid is available to eligible participants.

Husky Grapplers Win County Tournament; Rams Second

It would seem appropriate for Garrett County high school teams to win the Garrett County Invitational Wrestling Tournament, and that just what happened on Saturday when the Northern High Huskies captured first place in the event, and host Southern finished second.

A complete list of other schools participating and their respective team scores were not received.

Coach Scott Stough's Huskies finished with four individual titles to their credit, while Coach Kurt Lear and the Rams recorded three championships.

For Northern, Brandon Stein decisioned South Harrison's Matt Jones, 15-5, in the finals of the 112-pound division; Seth Huber pinned Jimmy Lake of Hyndman to win the 119-pound class; Jimmy Warnick edged Derrin Hollingsworth of North Caroline, 5-4, in the finals of the 130-pound division; and Josh Boyd stopped Southern's John Hayhurst on points, 11-8, to win the 160-pound class championship.

Leading the Rams with individual titles were: Eric Rexrode, who got by Northern's Jessie Shimrock, 6-4, in the finals of the 135-pound division; Tommy Sweitzer, who nipped Jimmy Green of Northern, 4-3, in the finals of the 145-pound class; and Nick Dolan, who topped Hyndman's Ray Flannigan, 16-11, in the 152-pound final.

Shimrock and Green were awarded second places for the Huskies, as was John Hayhurst for the Rams. Finishing in third place for the Huskies were: Blake Huber (103), Jeremiah Guard (119), Paul Beitzel (125), Brandon Kamp (130), and Nate Kauffman (152). Third places for Southern were earned by: Jeremy Sweitzer (140), Jeremy Hayhurst (171), Russell Crosco (189), and Steve Shifflet (215).

The Hyndman Hornets went home with three individual titles, as R.P. Scritchfield won the 103-pound final, Aaron Elliott captured the 125-pound trophy and was named Most Valuable Wrestler, and Butch Davis captured the 215-pound division crown.

The Rams wrestled again Tuesday evening and edged Fort Hill (see separate story), and will be in action again this evening at Northern.

Mountain Top Season Begins; Results Noted

The Mountain Top Basketball League season got underway recently with two doubleheaders over the past two Sundays. Going into this Sunday's action, Condoerr leads the pack with a perfect 2-0 record.

In opening day play, Condoerr defeated Custom Furnishings 72-61. Dennis Gibson and Poke Winters each scored 19 points for the victors, while Jason Shank contributed 19 to Custom's efforts. In the second half of the twinbill 219 Motors downed Preston Distributing 75-66. Scott Shahan's 23 points led 219 Motors, Joe Refosco contributed 18 points and Mike Fazenbaker added 16 points. High scorer for the night was Chad Metheny with 26 points for Preston, and Greg Messenger added 16 points.

Last Sunday Condoerr stopped 219 Motors 88-56 as Tom Stern and Winters hit for 22 points each for Condoerr. 219's Fazenbaker went long distance by pumping in seven three-point baskets on the way to tallying 25 points. In the second game Deep Creek Ready Mix defeated Custom Furnishings 87-75. C.J. Getson's 24 points, aided by Jason Brenneman's 20 points paced Deep Creek to victory, while Doug Copeland scored 25 points for Custom.

The schedule for this Sunday's doubleheader pits Deep Creek Ready Mix vs. 219 Motors at 5 p.m., with Condoerr team members keeping score, and at 6 p.m. Preston Distributors goes up against Condoerr, with Deep Creek team members carrying out scorekeeping duties. Note that these times are not the usual times, as a change was made to accommodate Pittsburgh Steeler fans who may want to watch the NFL playoff game.

NHS Freshmen Whip Spartans

The freshman boys' basketball team of Northern High School recorded a 53-42 victory over host Bishop Walsh yesterday, as Jeremy Frazee and Greg Speicher paced the Huskies' scoring with 12 and 11 points, respectively.

The Spartans (0-4) were led by Aaron Wagoner with 11 points and Jeff Knight with 10.

The Little Huskies will play again next Thursday at Fort Hill, with tipoff slated for 7 p.m.

Ram Grapplers Edge Fort Hill For Third Win

After hosting and placing second in the Garrett County High School Wrestling Tournament on Saturday (see separate story), the Southern Rams recorded a big 36-34 victory over visiting Fort Hill on Tuesday. The win upped Coach Kurt Lear's team's record in regular meets to 3-1.

Earning pins for the Rams were Sean Conroy in the 125-pound bout, Eric Rexrode, 140, Tommy Sweitzer, 145, Nick Dolan, 152, and Russell Crosco, 189.

The remaining points for Southern were recorded via a forfeit in the 135-pound division for Jeremy Sweitzer.

The Rams will have a tough outing this evening when they travel to Northern. Then they will host Keyser next Wednesday evening. Both matches will get underway at 7:30 p.m.

Youth Wrestlers Capture Several Tourney Honors

Nineteen members of the Southern Mat Club wrestling team competed in the ninth annual Preston Mat Club Youth Wrestling Tournament on Saturday, an event that featured 250 grapplers from 26 teams representing four states. Thirteen of the local wrestlers finished among the top four in their respective weight and age divisions, with two earning championships and five gaining runner-up honors, four placing third, and three earning fourth places.

Individually, the SMC members won 33 of 59 matches and recorded 26 pins. Daniel Carr and Scott Wildesen each won all three of their matches to win first place in the ages 7-8/60 pounds and ages 11-12/80 pounds, respectively.

Carr won all three of his matches by pin, while one of Wildesen's victims was the top seeded wrestler from West Fairmont.

Daniel Sisler, age 7, although participating in his first tournament, won two of four matches to earn a fourth place.

Second place winners from the local team were: Nick Tressler, 7-8/45 pounds; Justin Ratliff, 7-8/60 pounds; Jeremy Gregory, 9-10/70 pounds; Nathan Sines, 9-10/75 pounds; and Tyler Gregory, U4/40 pounds.

Scott Wildesen (9-10/80), Travis Riley (9-10/125), Brad Palmer (13-15/250), and David Ratliff (9-10/70) each won third places, while Chris Hayhurst (11-12/80), Jason Weeks (11-12/95), and Daniel Sisler earned fourth places.

Other participants from the local team were Torri Riley, Mitchell Tasker, Geoff Tressler, Ryan Gregory, and Lex Ozias.

"All of the kids looked great," stated Coach Dave Taylor. "With teams like Parkersburg, Clarksburg, Fairmont, and Northern Garrett participating, we knew it would be tough, but our kids gave everything they had and beat some of the area's best wrestlers."

The Southern Mat Club team will split this weekend, with half of the squad competing in McClellentown, Pa., and the other half at Berkeley Springs, W.Va.

Thank You

We would like to thank our children who planned and hosted our 50th Wedding Anniversary celebration on December 13 at the Pleasant Valley Community Center.

We want to especially thank Ray and Rachael Miller and all our Amish neighbors who helped prepare and serve the meal and our neice Carolyn Riley for baking the cake. Thanks to everyone who shared our special day, every one who sent cards, gave gifts or helped in any way to make our day such an enjoyable one.

May God bless each and every one of you.

John Andrews Named Area's Top Offensive Soccer Player

JOHN ANDREWS

JOHN MENKER

A major post-season honor was bestowed upon a member of the Southern High School varsity soccer team last week, as junior striker John Andrews was named the Dr. Raul Felipa Offensive Player of the Year by vote of the area's coaches. The award also placed Andrews on the first-team All-Area squad.

Among those joining Andrews on the All-Area first team is teammate John Menker, a junior sweeper and two-year starter on Coach Tom Powers' team.

Andrews, who was a second-team All-Area selection last year, and Menker, a son of Southern assistant coach Mel Menker, led the Rams to their first winning season (7-6) since soccer returned to Garrett County as a high school sport five years ago, and to the runner-up spot in the Western Maryland Interscholastic League. The Rams were edged by Flintstone in the WMIL title match.

Andrews and Menker join Matt Sincell from the 1996 team as the only Southern Rams ever named to the all-area soccer team.

Andrews finished the '97 season as the WMIL scoring champion, as he recorded eight goals and two assists in league play. Overall, he finished third in the area scoring with 14 goals, three assists, and 31 points in 13 matches, for a 2.38 average.

"John is an outstanding athlete, whose ball-handling skills are as good as anyone's in the area," stated Coach Powers. "He's a very intelligent player, and has gotten a lot stronger and quicker since he was a freshman. There's no question that he will be the team leader next season."

Menker, who was a transfer student from Ohio, was second in scoring for the Rams this past season, as he recorded six goals and two assists, even though he was a primarily a defensive player. Because he had the strongest foot on the Southern team, he would typically be called upon by Coach Powers to take direct kicks. He scored on several of those kicks, including one blast from near mid-field.

Menker was the 15th leading scorer in the WMIL, with four goals in league competition.

Powers credited the Mountaintop Soccer Association's youth program with providing much of the improvement in the level of play by the Rams.

"The local youth soccer program, sponsored by the MSA, is really starting to pay big dividends to our program," he said. "Most of the kids who come out for soccer in the ninth grade have already played five or six years in the youth program. John Andrews is a perfect example of that."

Another big boost to the Rams' rising level of play is the off-season, non-school, indoor soccer program that is spearheaded by Coach Menker. Most of the members of the Southern varsity play in the under-19 division of the Arsenal Football (soccer) Club at major tournaments throughout the east.

Arsenal Teams Participate In Major Tourney

Two teams representing the local Arsenal Football (soccer) Club participated with great success in the Troyer Farms Crunch Classic indoor soccer tournament in Erie, Pa., over the weekend of Dec. 29-30. While the under-16 team was soundly defeated in its matches, the under-18 team won a match, was narrowly defeated in two others, and just missed reaching the under-19 finals of the tourney, which draws some of the top indoor teams in the east.

In the first match played by the under-18 team, Arsenal faced the Lancer Soccer Club from Bradford, Pa. Though Arsenal lost by a 3-1 mark, Coach Mel Menker said the local team played well, as it was the first time most of the players had ever experienced this calibre of indoor play.

The Arsenal goal was scored by Jeff McDaniel off an assist by Chad Lovett. Teammate Bo Jonson recorded 13 saves in goal.

Arsenal mastered the indoor game in the second match, Menker said, and shut out a team from Meadville, Pa., 2-0. Goals were scored by McDaniel and Jacob Snodgrass. Jonson finished with seven saves in goal.

Arsenal's third match became the semi-final for the division and was against a highly touted team from Ridgeway, Pa., which had won its previous matches by wide margins. Menker said Arsenal out-played and outshot the opponents, but finished on the short side of a 1-0 result.

"The showing by our U-18 team was just outstanding," Menker said. "They have reached a level at which they can play with the best and be competitive. They can easily play at Level A."

Members of the Arsenal U-18 team not already mentioned are Steve Allison, Chris Friend, Nick Glotfelty, Andrew Grant, John Menker, Steve Pariseau, Michael Schwalm, Dustin Slider, and Rick Vecchioni.

The U-16 Arsenal team, which features only one player who had any previous experience at this level of play, lost by big scores in all three of its matches. Chris Menker had 15 saves in goal in the first match, 12 in the second, and six in the third.

"Unlike our older team, this one has been together for only a few months and is still in its developing stages," Coach Menker said. "Even though we were soundly defeated, we saw improvement and some positive adjustments."

The site of the tournament was Family First Sports Park in Erie, which boasts two professional-style indoor soccer fields, 20 outdoor fields, a championship field, basketball courts, and a housing complex.

The Arsenal U-18 boys, U-16 boys, and U-16 girls will all be participating in tournaments in Bridgeport, W.Va., over the next two months.

Southern High's Billy Stoner Is All-Area Pick

Southern High School's Billy Stoner was named to the second-team All-Area squad this past week via voting of a committee of area coaches. The 6-1, 195-pound senior lineman was the only Garrett County player to place any higher than honorable mention in the All-Area balloting.

There were a number of honorable mention selections from Garrett County, however, including Stoner's teammates: quarterback Chad Warnick, running back Josh Bosley, end Nick Dolan, linemen David Lantz, Kenny Myers, and Steve Shifflet, linebacker John Ayers, and defensive back Tommy Diehl. Jason Weaver was named honorable mention on both the offensive team (running back) and defensive team (defensive back).

Northern High School gridders who received honorable mention were: running back Jimmy Green, end Jeremy Hoover, lineman Gary O'Brien, and as place kicker and punter, Matt Houser.

Clutch Rebounding Helps Rams Catch Wildcats In Final Minute

"One of the most exciting basketball games I've ever seen," was how John McEwen, staff photographer for The Republican, described the Rams' 57-54 victory over Westmar Monday night.

McEwen's assessment would likely be matched by fans of either team who packed the Southern gymnasium, as they witnessed the Rams battle back from a seven-point halftime deficit to finally take the lead with less than a minute to go in the contest.

Southern led 12-7 at the end of the first quarter, but the Wildcats roared back to take a 28-21 halftime lead. Westmar held the lead until the final minute, when the Rams boxed out their opponents below the boards and snagged several key rebounds to spark the exciting comeback and sweep the season series.

The Rams' Jessica Saturday and Westmar's Helene Duncan each scored 22 points to lead the scoring. Saturday sunk 10 field goals and two foul shouts while Duncan, who fouled out in the final quarter, hit nine field goals and a free throw. Saturday, Bridget Miller, and Liz Paesani crashed the boards for seven rebounds apiece for Southern.

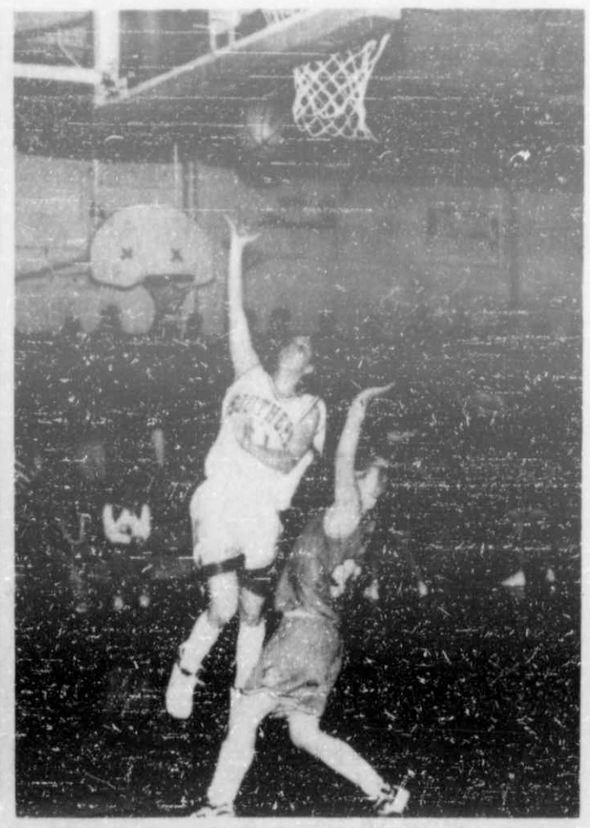
The junior varsity matchup saw Westmar defeat the Rams by a score of 35-27. Charlena Reeves put a game-high 22 points on the scoreboard for Southern in the losing effort, while Sara Gattens tossed in 14 for the Wildcats.

Last night's WMIL matchup pitting the Rams against Fort Hill was postponed due to a wet court in the Sentinels' gymnasium. It will be played at a date to be announced later.

The Rams boast a 2-1 conference record and a 4-3 overall record. They host Tucker County tonight and travel to Bishop Walsh Saturday evening. The junior varsity games begin at 6 p.m., and the varsity games commence at 7:30 p.m.

Southern (57)
Bridget Miller 4 3-8 14, Jessica Saturday 10 2-3 22, Liz Paesani 3 3-10 9, Laura Friend 3 0-0 6, Katelyn McBee 1 1-4 3, Becca Gangler 0 1-6 1, Jennifer Teagarden 1 0-0 2. Totals 22 10-31 57.
Westmar (54)
Jen Fazenbaker 2 0-0 4, Stacy Langham 3 0-1 6, Lauren Warnick 6 2-2 14, Helene Duncan 9 1-5 22, Stacey Moorehead 1 0-0 2, Andrea Gattens 1 0-0 2. Totals 22 3-8 54.

Southern	12	21	40	57
Westmar	7	28	42	54



WITH A QUICK CROSS STEP, the Rams' Bridget Miller, above left, leaves a Westmar defender flatfooted as she drives to the hoop Monday night in a 57-54 victory. The senior guard's all-around performance of 14 points and nine rebounds was one of Southern's keys in a home court victory that went down to the wire as the Rams came from behind in the final minute. Shown at right on the business end of a layup is senior forward Liz Paesani, who also helped the Rams snatch victory from the jaws of defeat. After a contest at Fort Hill was washed out due to a wet gym floor last night, Southern's WMIL record stands at 3-1.

Huskies Undaunted By 20-Point Defeat, Rebound Over Salisbury

Although Northern's girls basketball team started off the week's action on the receiving end by losing to Allegany, 66-46, it bounced back in a big way by blowing out Salisbury last night by 15 points, 45-30.

Against Allegany on Monday night, the home crowd saw the Huskies' eight-point first quarter lead evaporate before their eyes as the Campers roared back to take a 20-point victory by night's end.

Heidi Frazee's 15 points and Brooke Brenneman's 13 points and 12 rebounds for Northern were not enough to stem the Allegany onslaught, which was sparked by a 19-4 run in the second quarter.

Allegany's Cassie Murray, a sophomore, put together a WNBA-caliber performance for the evening as she scored 27 points, hauled down nine rebounds, dished out six assists, and nabbed five steals.

Allegany (66)
Kelly Keith 0 1-3 1, Cassie Murray 12 3-5 27, Tracey Little 8 3-7 19, Beth Miller 2 0-0 4, Melanie Reichert 1 0-0 2, Heather Laffey 2 0-0 5, TeAndra Smith 3 0-1 6, Jessica Snyder 1 0-0 2, Annie Kanner 0 0-2 0. Totals 29 7-18 66.
Northern (46)
Mimi Harvey 1 0-0 2, Jill Speicher 1 2-2 4, Kathy Arnold 2 2-2 6, Heidi Frazee 6 3-5 15, Laurel Wolf 1 2-2 4, Brooke Brenneman 4 5-11 13, Andria McBride 1 0-0 2. Totals 16 14-42 46.
Three-point goals - Allegany 1 (Laffey). Total fouls - Allegany 17, Northern 18. Fouled out - Arnold, Brenneman (Northern).

Allegany	8	27	46	66
Northern	16	20	31	46

Tracey Little, another Camper sophomore, added 19 points. The Huskies' Jill Speicher tallied six assists of her own.

The Huskies' junior varsity team did not fare any better than their elders, falling to Allegany's jayvee by 52-18. Walton had 13 points for the victors, while Heather Nugent scored eight for Northern.

The leadership and experience of senior forward Brenneman helped the Huskies rebound from the Alco game with a big win at Salisbury last night. Northern's defense held the hosts to a single free throw for the entire second period, while a fast-breaking attack mounted a 26-point halftime lead en route to a 15-point victory.

Northern (45)
Jill Speicher 1 0-0 3, Kathy Arnold 6 0-3 12, Heidi Frazee 7 0-0 14, Brooke Brenneman 6 4-4 16. Totals 20 4-7 45.
Salisbury (30)
Rachael Deer 4 2-3 10, Ashley Brown 1 0-1 2, Peggy Byrd 1 0-0 2, Lori Bodes 0 4-6 4, Megan Lishia 4 0-0 10, Jenny Pope 1 0-0 2. Totals 11 6-10 30.
Three-point goals - Northern 1 (Speicher), Salisbury 2 (Lishia). Total fouls - Northern 16, Salisbury 11. Fouled out - None.

Northern	15	25	31	45
Salisbury	8	9	16	30

Brenneman's 16 points, 17 rebounds and six assists paced a balanced team effort, as Frazee added 14 points and 10 rebounds, Arnold contributed 12 points, and Speicher handed out 12 assists from her guard slot. Rachael Deer and Megan Lishia put up 10 points apiece for Salisbury.

Northern's jayvee topped Salisbury 26-18 behind Jenny Murray's 10 points. Jenny Pope scored eight points for the opponents.

Northern's even .500 record means they now have nowhere to go but up or down. They stand at 4-4 overall, and 2-2 in the WMIL. The Huskies have a full slate at the Igloo this coming week, hosting Hancock tomorrow night, Beall on Monday, and a rematch with Salisbury on Wednesday. All junior varsity games begin at 6:15 p.m., with the varsity tipoff following at 7:30 p.m.

Huskies' Frosh Defeat Bishop Walsh, 53-42

Northern's ninth graders topped Bishop Walsh in Cumberland last night 53-42. Twelve points from Jeremy Frazee and 11 points from Greg Speicher led the way, while the Spartans' Aron Wagoner scored 11 points and Jeff Knight tallied 10 points.

The Huskies' next outing takes them to Fort Hill next Thursday evening, Jan. 15, at 7 p.m.

Despite 27 From Walters, GCC Falls At Hagerstown

A stellar performance by freshman guard Mary Walters was not enough for Garrett Community College's women's basketball team to get past Hagerstown Junior College last night, as the Lakers lost the JUCO matchup, 76-67.

Walters scored 27 points, pulled down 10 rebounds, and took the ball away from the hosts six times via steals. Erica McBride contributed 13 points, seven rebounds, and four steals. Hagerstown was led by Georgette Palmer's 26 points and six rebounds.

GCC's upcoming action has the Lakers traveling to Prince George's Community College for a conference match on Saturday and hosting Potomac State College on Wednesday at 5 p.m.

Oakland Rotary Dribblers Club Opens Saturday

The Oakland Rotary Dribblers Club will begin its 16th season this Saturday, Jan. 10, at Dennett Road Elementary School gymnasium. The youth basketball league is designed for third and fourth grade boys and girls living in the southern end of the county.

Third graders will begin play at 9 a.m., and fourth graders will begin play at 11 a.m. The 90-minute sessions will be held at the gym every Saturday through the end of February.

Participants will learn basic basketball skills, participate in skills competitions, play games, and most of all have fun. Any youngsters interested in participating may ask their local elementary school physical education teacher for a registration form. For further information, interested persons may call Oren Yoder at 301-334-9630.

Huskies Lose Halftime Lead And The Game

The varsity boys of Northern High School allowed a halftime lead to slip away in the second half Tuesday evening at Hancock and ended up dropping their seventh game in eight starts, 57-47.

The Huskies were on top, 21-17, at halftime, but let the Panthers score 40 second-half points to record the victory.

Netting all but a dozen of the Huskies' points were Dustin Long with 21 and Scott Sisler with 14, while Chris Noe paced Hancock with 17 points.

The Northern junior varsity was also defeated in the preliminary contest, 50-40. Spencer Shives had 13 points to lead the Hancock jayvees, and Greg Speicher netted the same number to pace the Huskies.

Northern is slated to play again this evening at Salisbury and will host Mount Savage next Tuesday.

Rams Whipped By Fort Hill In The Fourth

After playing almost evenly with the host Fort Hill Sentinels for three quarters Tuesday night, the Southern High varsity boys fell apart in the final quarter and lost their fourth game in eight starts, 69-46. While it was the fourth defeat for Coach Tom Bosley's team, it was the first in four Western Maryland Interscholastic League matchups for the Rams.

Southern trailed by 10 at the end of the first quarter, 18-8, but were down by just four at halftime, 33-29, and three after three quarters, 42-29. However, of the 34 total points scored in the final period, 27 of them were by the Sentinels, who improved their overall record to 5-1 and their WMIL mark to 3-0.

Leading four Fort Hill players in double figures was Josh Logsdon with a game-high 21 points. Jamie Kline netted 11 points, while Josh Page and Jared Fradiska each finished with 10.

Mike Pamepinto paced the Rams with 13 points and John Andrews, making his first appearance back with Southern after breaking his hand in the season opener, recorded 10 points.

The Southern junior varsity won the first game of the evening, 49-40, behind 14-point efforts by both Nathaniel Panther and Mike Browning. Leading the Fort Hill jayvees were Jeremy Snyder with 15 points and Eric Dudley with 13.

The Rams will play again this Friday at Mount Savage and will travel to Allegany next Tuesday.

Adams, Fields Lead Garrett Over Butler

Jerome Adams and Michael Fields each recorded 22 points for the Garrett Community College men's basketball team Monday night to pace the Lakers past host Butler CC, 102-93. It was the 10th win in 12 games for Coach Dennis Gibson's team, which is 5-1 in Maryland JUCO standings.

The Lakers were sluggish in the first half of action and found themselves down by 10, 48-38, at halftime. But they re-grouped at intermission, played much better defense early in the second half, and finally tied the score at 66 with about nine minutes remaining in the game. Their full-court defensive pressure down the stretch was too much for the Pioneers.

The Lakers' biggest lead was 14 points at about the five-minute mark.

Brian Lewanduwski led the Pioneers' offensive effort, and all scorers, by hitting 30 points, while Lamont Taylor finished with 16 and David McSeeture scored 12.

Also reaching double figures in scoring for the Lakers were Lionell Sewell with 18 points and Rob Wheeler with 14.

"We had only three days of practice before this game, after a three-week break," stated Coach Gibson, "so I was really happy with the way we played, especially in the second half."

The Lakers will play at Prince George's CC this Saturday, host CCAC South next Monday, and entertain nationally ranked Allegany College next Wednesday.

At Butler, Pa.

Rams Frosh Down Westmar, Tucker, Now Stand At 5-2

The Southern ninth grade basketball team defeated both Westmar and Tucker County on the road this week to up their record to an impressive 5-2.

In a 50-30 victory over the Wildcats, 10 Ram teammates made the scoring column, led by Jamie Bosley's game-high 15 points. Bryan Panther and Keith Steyer combined for 12 points in the balanced attack, while Josh Sharon's and Josh Stephens's hustling defense all but shut down Westmar's scoring opportunities. Mike Saturday dished out five assists. Southern led by only six points at halftime, but pulled away in the third quarter to take a commanding 36-20 lead on their way to the 20-point win.

Southern's next outing against Tucker County was a greater test of the Rams' mettle, as they prevailed in a hard-fought contest 34-31.

After holding the lead for the entire game, Southern fell behind when Tucker's Shane Whitehair sunk a three-pointer with 40 seconds remaining to give the visitors a 31-30 lead. Tucker then fouled Justin Disimone, who calmly sank both free throws to put the Rams on top 32-31.

When the Rams' defense held strong on the next possession, Tucker was forced to foul, and Ryan Ewing stepped to the line and hit both free throws to provide the winning margin.

Bosley led the scoring with 10 points, while Steve Eiswert pulled down 10 rebounds.

"Our defense again was the difference," commented Southern frosh head coach Jon Hegeman. "We are getting a total team effort defensively and that has led to our outstanding start."

Southern's ninth graders host Allegany tomorrow night in a 7 p.m. contest.

TURKEY HUNTING/DO'S AND DON'TS

The DNR announced the results of the 1997 fall wild turkey hunt, with just a few more birds taken in 1997 than 1996 (359 compared to 349). Of all Maryland counties, Garrett led the way with 169 reported harvested. The fall turkey season has been the same length since 1991 and the average harvest has been 439, with a high of 570.

The wild turkey population continues to flourish in western Maryland. Acorn crops were light this past fall; however, other food crops should carry turkey populations through the winter. The only real impact on the spring turkey population could be prolonged and heavy snowfall. Should such a snow condition develop, interested sportsmen can give the turkeys some help by distributing grain to the birds for as long as weather conditions warrant it. Here are some DO's and DON'Ts suggested by the editors of Field and Stream magazine regarding this subject.

For example, do not feed turkeys near occupied dwellings, busy roads, or in areas of high visibility. And, do not feed when there is little or no snow cover. But, do feed turkeys consistently until the flock fails to visit daily or severe conditions moderate. Feed at the rate of one cup of grain per turkey per day scattered over a broad area. Be careful not to diminish the bird's natural wariness. Keep human contact to a minimum.

Since we're talking about feeding wild game, here is a simple way to serve up feed to small furbearers and wild birds. Build a wooden tray with shallow sides. Install legs or mount it between trees about 6 feet up. Lean an 8-inch tree trunk against it so the small animals can access it and load with table scraps, bones, and scraps from big game carcasses.

REQUIRED READING

I recently picked up an old issue of The Saturday Evening Post (March/April '97) that had reprinted the classic William Faulkner short story "The Bear." In my opinion, anyone who has spent anytime alone in the woods will appreciate Faulkner's craft in capturing the essence of that experience...and more. This story, initially published by the same magazine in 1942, is timeless. Some literary critics regard it as the best short story ever.

WATERFOWL STAMP DESIGN CONTEST

The Maryland DNR has sponsored a design contest and produced an annual stamp from the winning entry since 1975. This year, The Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission will be a co-sponsor. Proceeds from the stamp sale go to the Wildlife Management and Protection Fund to be used for construction and placement of wood duck boxes, new wetland construction projects, and other efforts aimed at aiding migratory waterfowl.

Judging will be held on March 28 and contest entry forms and guidelines are available by calling Jeneanne Hunter at 301-292-8331.

There is also a competition for students, kindergarten through 12th grade, modeled after the adult Federal Duck Stamp competition. Participating art teachers, environmental science teachers, and classroom teachers are provided curriculum guides, lesson plans, and, on request, an instructive video tape. Winning entries are exhibited throughout the state. "Best of Show" is entered in the national competition.

For more information, contact Valerie Watson at 301-454-1461.

OFFSPRING OF THE WYE OAK AVAILABLE

The DNR Forest Service is encouraging landowners to plant trees as part of a continuing reforestation program...not that there is any shortage of trees in Garrett County. But, for anyone interested in propagating a little history, offspring is available from the famous "Wye Oak," long recognized as the largest white oak tree in the nation. The Wye Oak is located in the village of Wye Mills in Talbot County.

Estimated to be 450 years old, it has a circumference of 31 feet, a spread of over 103 feet, and stands over 70 feet tall. In 1939, the state purchased it from its last private owner and soon after the legislature declared it to be the living symbol of our state tree. The future of the Wye Oak is uncertain and nature will determine its course. Windfall is seen as the single largest threat to the tree as evidenced by scars on the tree from sudden loss of limbs in this century. This famous tree is a part of Maryland history and all that can has been done to extend its life. Hopefully, its life will extend for generations to come.

Seedlings offered for sale are approximately 10 to 18 inches tall and are shipped bareroot in the spring. Included in the package are planting and care instructions, a history of the Wye Oak, a letter of authenticity, and a Wye Oak print suitable for framing. The cost is $25 plus a $5 shipping charge. Interested parties should call the local DNR Forest Service office at 301-334-3296.

INDOOR ARCHERY LEAGUES

Archers interested in staying sharp over the winter through competition should call either D & B Sport Shop in Deer Park (301-334-9725) or Appalachian Mountain Crafts in McHenry (310-387-7064). Both of these shops conduct indoor leagues.

Local Accountant Awarded CFP Certification

Katherine B. Zimmerman, a Certified Public Accountant based in Oakland, has been authorized by the Certified Financial Planner Board of Standards (CFP Board) to use the CFP certification mark.

This mark identifies Zimmerman, a sole accounting and financial planning practitioner, as having met the experience and ethical requirements of the CFP Board, and having successfully completed the course work and certification examination covering the financial planning process, risk management, investments, tax planning and management, retirement and employee benefits, and estate planning.

As one of 31,000 licensed CFPs, Zimmerman must also agree to meet ongoing continuing education requirements and to uphold the CFP Board Code of Ethics and Professional Responsibility.

The CFP Board is a nonprofit professional regulatory organization established in 1985 to benefit and protect the public by maintaining and enforcing high standards of ethical professional conduct among Certified Financial Planner licensees.

Zimmerman is the immediate past president and current treasurer of the Oakland Rotary Club. She is a member of the Planned Gift Committee of the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Foundation, and serves on the board of Garrett County Habitat for Humanity, where she has held the offices of president and treasurer.

She is president-elect of the Western Maryland Chapter of the Maryland Association of Certified Public Accountants, a member of the West Virginia Association of Certified Public Accountants and the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

Zimmerman and her husband David are members of Bethel United Methodist Church, where she serves on the finance committee and is the senior high Sunday School teacher. They are also the parents of one daughter, Amy Flanigan, of Mtn. Lake Park.

Mrs. Robinson was the mother of Dorotha Forman of Amboy.

Jane Maye of Daleville, Va., has extended a visit with her parents, John and Rebecca Teets, Eglon, because of the illness of her mother. Mrs. Teets was taken by ambulance Friday to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where she currently remains a patient.

Mrs. Elsie Felton of Rowlesburg died Dec. 30 at the home of her niece at Terra Alta. Services were held on Jan. 3 from the Browning Funeral Home in Kingwood by her pastor, the Rev. John Crowe. Burial followed in Preston Memorial Gardens. Also attending services were Ellis and Marie Teets, Wilma Mae Teets, and Mary Rembold.

Linda and Tom Lewis went Saturday to South Charleston to the home of their daughter, Emily Lewis. They returned Sunday to Eglon accompanied by another daughter, Sara Lewis, who had accompanied her sister to Virginia Beach, Va., for an extended visit with Gary and Julie Baker, another sister.

David and Wilma Mae Teets visited recently in Goldsboro, N.C., with their daughter and son-in-law, Mary Lou and Dick Miller, and with their grandsons Michael and Stephen Lantz of North Pole, Alaska, and Stephen's fiancee, all who were visiting their mother. Stephen's fiancee will not be returning to Alaska but will join her parents in Chillicothe, Ohio, while Stephen the State Police Academy in Alaska.

Eileen Rembold, Pittsburgh, visited this week with her son and family, Bruce, Mary, Shawn, and Craig Rembold at Eglon.

Carl, Nancy, and Clayton Winters of Manassas, Va., were Friday overnight guests of his parents, Claude and Jean Winters, Eglon, and a family dinner Friday evening included Tom and Linda Lewis, and Richard, Mary and Caitlin Norwish.

Lectie Bonner spent the stormy holidays with her daughter and son-in-law, Leora and David Moon, Oakland. Guests on New Year's weekend were Justin Grimmett and his son of Akron, Ohio, who came to stay with Mrs. Bonner at Eglon and ski at Canaan Valley.

Sam Masters of Lewisburg was a weekend visitor with Terry, Jill, and Andrew Hauser at Eglon. He is Mrs. Hauser's father.

Linn and Ashley Crowe attended a wedding in Winston-Salem, N.C., this weekend and were guests of Hancell and Mildred Teets there.

Alice Penzo and her sister, Laura Frye, have returned to Aurora after a holiday vacation in Florida with Mrs. Penzo's son and his family.

Peggy Spaid, wife of Robert D. Spaid, Eglon, underwent surgery Tuesday at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Otha White has returned to her home near Aurora after being a recent patient in Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Local Attorney To Participate In Broadcast

Local listeners of the national radio talk show hosted by Jim Bohannon may want to tune in this Friday, Jan. 9, at 11 p.m. to hear a program that focuses on the good work that lawyers and judges do in the community. Guests on the program with Bohannon will be Peter J. Messitte, district judge for the U.S. District Court, District of Maryland, and James L. Thompson, a Rockville attorney and president-elect nominee of the Maryland State Bar Association for 1999-2000. Thompson resides about 40% of the time at his Deep Creek Lake home.

Thompson will describe the various public service activities and pro bono efforts of Maryland's attorneys, while Judge Messitte will share how the judges and the judicial system of the state are also working to help people. Judges, attorneys, and all other interested listeners will be invited to telephone into the show to share personal experiences and/or ask questions. Persons may phone into the one-hour program by calling, toll-free, 1-800-998-5462.

Bohannon's program, which is based at WRC AM 980, is considered one of the nation's top radio talk shows, and is aired on more than 300 radio stations nationwide, including WCBC, Cumberland.

Nealis Receives Promotion At Friends Aware

Paula Nealis was recently promoted to the newly created position of lead community support counselor for the Residential/Support Services Division of Friends Aware Inc. (FAI). FAI is a private, non-profit organization based in Cumberland that works with adults with mental retardation throughout Allegany County.

In her new position, Nealis will coordinate, train, supervise, and evaluate staff, all of whom assist consumers with their day-to-day needs and obligations as they live independently throughout the community. She is responsible for conducting consumer file reviews, which help the organization maintain quality services while, at the same time, meeting criteria for state licensure. Nealis also will meet with consumers on a regular basis to ensure their satisfaction with the delivery of services.

Prior to this promotion, Nealis had worked as a residential home supervisor since joining FAI in 1988.

A native of Bloomington, Nealis attended Garrett Community College and is a graduate of Frostburg State University, with a bachelor's degree in psychology. While attending GCC, she worked as a travel counselor for the Garrett County Promotion Council in Oakland.

Women's Comm. Seeking Hall Of Fame Nominations

The Garrett County Commission for Women has requested nominations of local women for induction into the Garrett County Women's Hall of Fame.

"Nominees should represent women who have made outstanding contributions to Garrett County and are examples for tomorrow's leaders," stated Susan Athey-Oxford, chairperson of the local commission.

Utilizing the general rules of selection, an independent selection committee representing a cross section of county citizens will review the nominations and select up to three new Hall of Fame members.

The Hall of Fame was established in 1995 as a permanent means to recognize the significant contributions of Garrett County's women throughout the county's history. "This year's celebration brunch will have unique significance as 1998 marks the 150th anniversary of the women's rights movement," said Athey-Oxford. "The commission would like to encourage the submission of historical nominations."

Nomination packets with complete instructions may be obtained by calling Pam Nelson at 301-334-9431. In addition, packets will be available at the Ruth Enlow Library in Oakland and Grantsville. The deadline for filing is Feb. 6.

Friends Celebrate 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. A.T. Friend, Friendsville, recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. The celebration was held in the Garrett Room of the Grantsville Holiday Inn and hosted by the couple's children and grandchildren: Sherry Friend and daughters Shayne Couch, West Palm Beach, Fla., and Tonja Dixon and husband Bill, Mineral, Va.; Penny and Rick Bathum and sons Wills and Jon Roy, Enumclaw, Wash.; and Terry Friend, Cumberland.

Mr. and Mrs. Friend were married December 24, 1947, at the Grace Lutheran Church in Friendsville by the Reverend Robert Johns. Attendants were Algene Mitchell Humberson and John Wade Humberson, Nina Jenkins Laudermilk and Shirley Friend Wirsing. Evangeline Glenn was organist.

Mrs. Friend, the former Bernadine Devine, is the daughter of the late Helen and John Devine. She is a retired Garrett County teacher. Mr. Friend is the son of the late Minnie and Bruce Friend. He is a veteran of World War II, having served with the U.S. Army in the Pacific Theatre. He is a retired welder, having worked for the Hillman Barge Company of Brownsville, Pa., until his retirement.

The celebration by friends and relatives was highlighted with a social hour, dinner, a blessing of vows, a display of family photographs, and the cutting of an anniversary cake, which was topped with the original bride and groom figures from 1947. The couple also danced to "Star Dust," the first song the couple had ever danced to. Mr. and Mrs. John Wade Humberson, attendants at the 1947 wedding, were in attendance.

Officiating at the renewal of vows was Pastor Randy Nairn of the Grace Lutheran Church, Friendsville. Pastor William Carlson, former pastor of Grace Lutheran for 35 years, led the grace. Pastor Stephen Yelovich, also a former pastor of Grace, read Psalm 27, and Pastor Jack Park, nephew of the Friends, read Psalm 23.

The couple were presented an antique-framed enlargement of their wedding picture and all guests received a miniature copy of the couple's wedding day photograph.

Mary E. Friend, cousin of the "groom," and Eva Whiteman, cousin of the "bride," registered guests, and General and Mrs. Dale Schroyer, nephew and niece, cut the cake. They were assisted by the Friends' daughters, Sherry and Penny. Grandchildren Wills, Jon Roy, Tonja, and Shayne served the cake, and were assisted by niece Kim Thomas and grandnephews Remington Friend, Jason and Chris Thomas, and Willie Gallagher.

The three-tiered cake was baked and decorated by Chris Thomas, Friendsville. Floral arrangements were designed by Phyllis Finzel, niece of the Friends and owner of the Flower Loft in Grantsville. Floral arrangements complemented the mauve and green color scheme of the dinner. Photography was done by Tom and Rhoda Pyles of Fort Ashby, W.Va.

Approximately 140 guests attended the celebration. The couple received congratulations from the House of Delegates and Delegate George Edwards.

Tammy Madura Becomes Bride Of Douglas Beitzel In August Ceremony

Tammy Rose Madura and Douglas Ray Beitzel were joined in marriage at Dubbs Memorial United Church of Christ on August 2, 1997. The officiating pastors for the ceremony were Rev. Cliff Herring, Whitehall, Pa., and Oren Bender, Accident.

The bride, originally from Allentown, Pa., is the daughter of Joe Madura Sr. and Richard and Margaret Baatz, Allentown. The groom is the son of Melvin and Gloria Beitzel, Salisbury, Pa.

Escorted by her fathers, Joe Madura Sr. and Richard Baatz, the bride wore a designer ivory gown made of China satin, accented with pearls and Aleçon lace, with a matching crown style veil. She wore her mother's emerald and diamond studded necklace. The bride also carried her grandmother's handkerchief and a floral bouquet set into a Victorian tussy mussy. The bride's floral arrangement consisted of roses, carnations, lilies, and orchids embedded in greens and baby's breath.

The bride's sister, Lisa Madura, Allentown, was the maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Julia Maust, Marlena Halteman, Alissa Haleman, and Clarissa Canan, all of Accident. The bridesmaids wore Victorian style gowns with flowing chiffon train.

Mark See, Columbus, Ohio, was the best man. Groomsmen were Sheldon Maust, Accident, Rob Yoder, Grantsville, Darrick Moser, Springs, Pa., and Jeff Beitzel, Harrisburg, Pa. The groom, groomsmen, and ring bearer wore black English style tuxedos designed by Oscar De La Renta, Dimention II.

Kara and Melanie Graber, daughters of Corby and Christian Graber, Accident, were the flowergirls. Both wore Victorian style gowns accenting the wedding colors, plumb and ivory. The nephew of the bride, Andrew Madura, was the ring bearer. Andrew is the son of Joe Jr. and Diane Madura, Bethlehem, Pa.

Heather Miller, cousin of the groom, was guest book attendant. Marcia Brenneman and Tonya Brenneman, cousins of the groom, were reception hostesses. The wedding coordinator was Carla Cumberworth, aunt of the groom. Photography was provided by Jeannine St. Marie of Photography by Jeannine, Frostburg. Videography was provided by Beitzel Video Productions, Grantsville, Craig Cumberworth, and Dave Brenneman, also of Grantsville.

The reception was held in the reception hall at Dubbs. The master of ceremonies was Paul Raszlor, Allentown. Food was provided and served by the Tretler Class of Dubbs. The cake was three tiers, with two smaller side cakes. The vanilla cake was coated with an ivory icing patterned with ribbons and roses. The cake was created by The Village Bake Shop, Allentown.

Best man and musician Mark See wrote and performed a special song titled "Two Souls" for the bride and groom. After a honeymoon in Cannan Valley Resort, Cannan Valley, W.Va., the couple located in Grantsville.

Tammy is a 1991 graduate of Dieruff High School, Allentown, and a 1993 graduate of Cazenovia College in New York, where she earned an AAS degree in interior architectural design. She then attended Penn State and majored in theater production. She has been employed by Casselman Lumber, Grantsville, since 1995 as a design consultant.

Douglas is a 1991 graduate of Meyersdale Area High School, Meyersdale, Pa. He has been employed by Casselman Lumber since 1991 in inside sales. He is also a part-time videographer with Beitzel Video Productions, Grantsville. B.V.P. specializes in wedding videography, but also films sporting events, family events, promotional videos, and has done work for the History Channel.

Marriage Permits Recently Issued

Seven couples applied for their marriage licenses this week, according to David Martin, clerk of Garrett County Circuit Court.

Bernard Victor Bossio, 39, and Susan Madsen Oliverio, 34, both of Morgantown, W.Va.

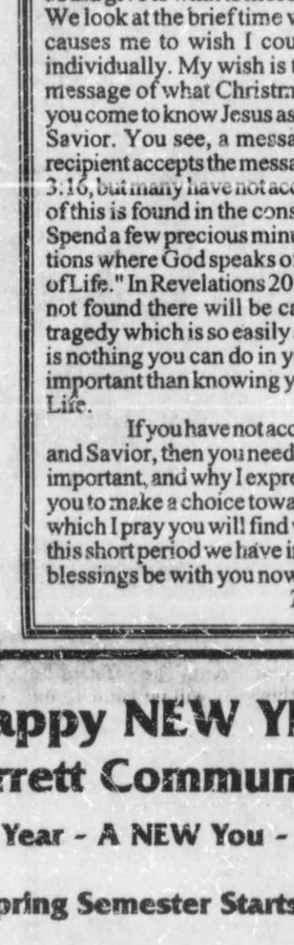
Ronny Warren Covey, 27, and Elise Hanson, 35, both of Warrington, Pa.

Chris Allen Watson, 28, and Elizabeth Ann Harsh, 24, both of St. George, W.Va.

Edwin Frank Dunson III, 19, and April Marie Pyles, 19, both of Tunnelton, W.Va.

Earl Wilson Claborne Jr., 31, and Barbara SueAnn Nethkin, 19, both of Morgantown, W.Va.

Paugh-Livengood Couple Engaged



Leon and Carol Paugh, Kitzmiller, announce the engagement of their daughter, Brenda Loretta, to John R. Livengood Jr. (Rick), Swanton.

Rick is the son of John R. Livengood, Swanton, and Jean M. Wilt, also of Swanton.

The bride-to-be is a graduate of Southern High School and the Pittsburgh Institute of Mortuary Science in Pennsylvania with an associate's degree in funeral science. She is currently a nursing student at Allegany College of Maryland.

The groom-elect is a graduate of Southern High School and is employed in sales at Team One, Oakland.

No wedding date has yet been set.

An Important Message - New Year

May I extend my best wishes to everyone who may view this message. Better than anything I could give is what is more important than life itself. We look at the brief time we are here on earth, and it causes me to wish I could speak to each person individually. My wish is that you may find the true message of what Christmas means, but better, that you come to know Jesus as your personal LORD and Savior. You see, a message is only of value if the recipient accepts the message. Many have heard John 3:16, but many have not accepted Jesus. The necessity of this is found in the consequences if one does not. Spend a few precious minutes in the Bible in Revelations where God speaks of the opening of the "Book of Life." In Revelations 20:15, anyone whose name is not found there will be cast into the lake of fire. A tragedy which is so easily avoided by all of us. There is nothing you can do in your entire life that is more important than knowing your name is in the Book of Life.

If you have not accepted Jesus as your LORD and Savior, then you need to take a look at what is so important, and why I express my urge to you, and ask you to make a choice toward this eternal perspective which I pray you will find while you have a chance in this short period we have in eternity. May His richest blessings be with you now and always.

BSA Troop 53 Marks Successful Inaugural Year

The first full year of existence for Troop 53, Grantsville, has been a busy learning experience for its 18 Boy Scout members. Troop 53's activities for 1997 included canoeing, backpacking, Ski Night, a wilderness survival outing, Troop Cook-Off Camping weekend, Camporees, First Aid Meet/Winter Campout, and Scout Camp, according to scoutmaster John Carey.

The troop also made a trip to the Antietam Battlefield to see an reenactment.

The first annual Pig Roast Fund-Raiser was held at Grantsville Park in September.

Troop 53 conducted its first annual Court of Honor Banquet in November, recognizing the Scouts for their efforts by presenting earned merit badges, rank advancements, and service pins. Blake Huber and Collen DuBose earned their Star Rank. First Class Rank was earned by Jess Carey. A total of 63 merit badges were awarded to the Scouts.

Jess Carey was installed as the new senior patrol leader, and Life Scouts Johnny Carey and Ian Flockhart were installed as junior assistant scoutmasters. Special recognition was made to Jared Resh for attending the most nights out (16 of 16) and meeting attendance (39 of 43). Jess Carey was also recognized for attending the most nights out (16) and the most activities (21 of 21).

The year was concluded with a Christmas party held in December at New Germany State Park. Each Scout shared how he "made a difference" in his community this past year.

Any boy 12 years and older who would like more information about Troop 53 may contact scoutmaster John Carey at 301-895-5032. The troop meets every Tuesday evening from 7 to 9 p.m. at New Germany State Park.

Oakland-Based Data Firm To Mark 40th Year

In 1998 The Data Entry Company (TDEC) will celebrate its 40th anniversary. This Oakland-based firm has been providing data entry and related services in the region since 1958.

In addition to its Oakland facility, the company has a production facility in Winchester, Va., and offices in Bethesda. TDEC employs approximately 300 people throughout the region, including 200 in Oakland.

Located on South Arch Street, TDEC-Oakland has grown from a small shop employing a handful of people to being the third largest employer in Garrett County.

Originally founded to process insurance claims, the company has seen the demand for its services grow as the business community has become more dependent on electronic data to conduct its affairs, a spokesman for TDEC explained.

TDEC has evolved from the era of large mainframe computers and punch-cards to today's world of digital images and the Internet.

Originally named Integrated Business Methods Inc., the company's first office was a card-punching facility in the Georgetown section of Washington, D.C.

In 1965, current president Maurice DuFour took over management of the company from his father and moved the company's operations facility to Oakland. "The company thrived in Oakland, and in 1986 a second facility was opened in Winchester, Va.," the spokesman said.

Maurice DuFour has expressed positive feelings on the future of the company. "We're very excited about 1998. Not only is it a big milestone for us, but I think it will also be a year of unprecedented growth," he said.

He noted that TDEC has the opportunity for growth because of a combination of hard work and strategy. "We've got the best people in the business working for us, and we are starting to take advantage of that with aggressive marketing and expansion plans," DuFour said.

Highway Deaths Down In State; Enforcement Up

Maryland State Police released information which indicates that when the final figures are calculated, the highway fatalities in Maryland in 1997 may be the lowest in many years. Vigorous enforcement efforts have been credited in part for this statistic.

Each state police barrack will focus on at least one special traffic initiative each month to curtail the most frequent causes of fatal accidents on state roadways.

In accordance with the statewide effort to continue concentrated efforts on enforcement of traffic regulations, Barrack W, McHenry, has launched Operation WISP, the Winter Initiative Safety Patrol.

The goal of this project is to increase highway safety and prevent or reduce the number of accidents by targeting specific motor vehicle violations which are prominent in Garrett County.

Troopers will be looking for vehicles with broken or inoperable equipment, vehicles with poor visibility caused by snow that has not been cleared, and drivers who are not compliant with regulations regarding stop and yield signs at intersections.

Town Hall

ACCIDENT

The town meeting was held Monday, Jan. 5.

- The Accident election convention will be held the first Tuesday in February. At that time nominations will be made for two seats on the town council.
- Representatives of Rodeheaver and Associates reviewed the town's 1996-97 financial report.
- Sheriff Sanders met with those present to offer the assistance and support of his office. The council spoke to him of the traffic problems in Accident. The sheriff will work with the town to correct these.
- The mayor and council reviewed the contract for renewal of cable service by Frontiervision. No action was taken.

The next meeting will be held Monday, Feb. 2.

FRIENDSVILLE

The council member list last week in this column included former member Wayne Friend, but Roger (Doug) Sines was omitted.

The mayor and council met Monday, Jan. 5.

- The following people have registered as nominees for town council in the upcoming elections on Feb. 10: Carroll Forsyth, Frances King, James Linginger, and Robert Sines. There will be two name on the ballot for town mayor: Herschel Allen and Spencer R. Schlosnagle.
- Deputy Corley of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office addressed those present and asked for information on any problems. Council members reported additional vandalism in the town park. All residents are asked to report any incidents of vandalism to the mayor, a council member, or the town office.
- There will be a special meeting on Jan. 14 for input on future use of the town park. (see story)
- The town truck will be advertised for bid.
- Garrett Medical Group will open its office in Friendsville Monday, Jan. 12.
- The town clerk will soon report to the county treasurer the names of those who have not paid town taxes. Anyone who has not yet made payment is urged to do so.

The next town meeting will be held Tuesday, Jan. 20.

GRANTSVILLE

The regular monthly meetings of the Grantsville town council during the winter are scheduled for the third Monday of each month. This is a change from what was noted in this column in last week's edition of The Republican.

The next meeting will be held Monday, Jan. 19.

LOCH LYNN

The Loch Lynn town meeting was held Monday, Jan. 5.

- New town council members Sheila O'Neil and Roger Shaffer were sworn in. Shaffer returns to his seat for another term while O'Neil is a new member of the council.
- A vote was taken to continue work on the project to annex the Pleasant View South complex.

The next town meeting will be held Monday, Feb. 2.

OAKLAND

Oakland's regular town meeting was held Tuesday, Jan. 6.

- The February and March town meetings will be held on the first Tuesday of the month.
- Town elections will be held the second Monday in March. Voters will select a town mayor, three council members and a treasurer.
- Sheriff Sanders met with those present to discuss continuation of cooperative efforts between the town and his department.
- Three zoning permits were approved. Among them was a permit for Our Town Theatre. The work will include interior renovation and upgrading the entrance for handicapped accessibility.
- It was decided that the council would request the assistance of the GCSO in the investigation of vandalism at the Oakland cemetery that occurred several weeks ago.
- The town truck which had been replaced was awarded to the highest of 12 bidders.
- Approval was given to begin early spring repairs on water lines on Route 39.

The next town meeting will be held Tuesday, Feb. 3.

IN MEMORY of Garrett County Commissioner Roger Glotfelty, the Northern Republican Women's Club made a donation to Hospice of Garrett County, Inc. Carolyn Ganoe, president of the club, said the members had voted last May to make their Christmas donation to Hospice. After the commissioner's death last month, it was decided by the women's group that the donation would be a memorial to Glotfelty. Brenda Butscher, executive director of the local hospice organization, left, receives a check for $250 from Ganoe on behalf of the club.

4-H Club News

COVE KIDS
by Rachel Schmidt, reporter

The regular meeting of the Cove Kids 4-H was held December 11 with the annual Christmas dinner.

At the Christmas dinner Alice Long, Cove Kids 4-H leader, read thank-you notes from Mrs. Helen Harman, Myrtle and Walter Hanft, and Shirley Bowser, thanking the group for their food shares. Alice gave out a perfect attendance award to Lindsay Swearman. Awards were also given for only one meeting missed. Those awards were given to Michele Bender, Rachel Schmidt, Keenan Kabell, and Beth Long.

Awards were also given for graduating seniors, Jason Bender and Melissa Paugh. Melissa was not present, though. Each club member was given a gift certificate from Wal-Mart as a Christmas present from the club. Jody Brenneman was given a gift for raising the most money selling knives.

Door prizes were won by Darlene Schmidt, Pam Margroff, and Pastor Kabell. Each family was presented a table decoration made by Alice Long and Darlene Schmidt.

Alice asked each volunteer leader to continue in his/her present positions. They are as follows: Community Service, Pastor and Cathy Kabell; Activity, Carla Swearman; Livestock, Phil Margroff; Woodworking, Doug Bender; and Crafts, Darlene Schmidt. Alice was presented a gift from the club.

Each club member answered roll call by naming a favorite Christmas carol.

The next meeting will be held today, Jan. 8.

Cancer Society Taking Orders For Daffodils

The Allegany/Garrett Unit of the American Cancer Society is now taking orders for Daffodil Days. Freshly cut daffodils will be available the week of March 16 through March 22.

According to a spokesperson, the suggested donation is $5 for a bouquet of 10, and $7 for potted bulbs.

Flowers may be ordered in advance by calling Connie Margison at the Water Street Market Place at 301-334-5747 or by calling the Allegany/Garrett Unit of the American Cancer Society at 301-722-2145.

Local Anti-Theft Effort Launched By Task Force

In an effort to address the problem of thefts of skis and snowboards at the Wisp Ski Resort, local law enforcement officers are forming an anti-theft task force.

This initiative will bring together members of the Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, the Natural Resources Police, and the Garrett County Drug Task Force, under the supervision of Sgt. Wayne Paugh of MSP, McHenry barrack.

Paugh said the officers will be assigned various observation points at the Wisp. Pieces of ski equipment will be placed in an area where the majority of thefts have occurred and officers will maintain surveillance.

Horse Salve Eases Arthritis Pain

LOUISVILLE KY. – An ingredient derived from hot peppers that decreases inflamation in racehorse's legs, has now been approved by government researchers for human use. The ingredient has been formulated into a product called ARTH-Rx®. ARTH-Rx comes in a strength designed for humans. Researchers are excited and say the formula can relieve arthritis pain for millions.

Developed by the Phillips Gulf Corporation. ARTH-Rx is a breakthrough in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, tendonitis, backache and more.

Although the mechanism by which ARTH-Rx works to relieve pain is not totally clear, scientists suggest that pain is relieved because ARTH-Rx intercepts the messeger substance that send pain signals to the brain.

ARTH-Rx is available in a convenient roll-on applicator without a prescription. According to a spokesperson for the company, due to the overwhelming demand for ARTH-Rx, supplies are sometimes limited. ARTH-Rx can also be ordered by calling 1-800-729-8446.

ARTH-Rx is available at:

Nolan Named To Who's Who

Charles R. Nolan, a junior at Southern High School, has been notified that his name will be included in the 1996-97 publication of Who's Who Among American High School Students.

Charles is active in the marching band, stage band and concert band, where he plays trumpet and tuba, and is a manager for winter guard.

He has participated in several productions with the Ecumenical Youth Ministry and with the Garrett Choral Society. He is currently a member of Troop 22, Boy Scouts of America.

Last year, he was nominated for inclusion in the annual publication of the American Achievement Academy.

Charles is the son of Charles and Jane Nolan and resides in Deer Park.

Sincell Dies

According to the editorial, Mrs. Sincell still walked to work every day and climbed the 29 steps to the newspaper office several times a day to read approximately 2,500 columns of news copy and 4,000 to 5,000 inches of advertising for each issue of the paper.

"We wish to emphasize that Elsie's position here at The Republican is not as a figure head. She puts in her time just like everyone else in the office and the work she does is tedious and exhausting, even for a person half her age," said her grandson in the editorial. "She remains totally dedicated to the task at hand and continues to strive to correct every mistake before it is published."

Mrs. Sincell remained in her own home, located along Pennington Street, her entire adult life, and was in the hospital only 24 hours before her death.

Mrs. Sincell died just short of her goal of living to the year 2000 — to be able to have lived in three centuries — but her long, full life of experiences and contributions were ample consolation, according to her grandson Don, who is one of seven grandchildren. She is also survived by 15 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday at St. Mark's Lutheran Church with the Rev. Michael Robinson officiating. Interment was at Oakland Cemetery.

The family has requested that memorials take the form of contributions to St. Mark's Lutheran Church or an organization of the contributor's choice.

will have nothing to announce about the facility. Several firms have expressed interest in the building over the past months, although none has made any formal announcement of any definite intentions.

Edwards said he is optimistic about the future employment opportunities in Garrett County.

The public is invited to attend the meeting.

Out On Tangent

give an empty box, I filled each one with an assortment of chocolates and hard candy. They were stacked carefully in a bag and put up on the shelf. I know I put them on the shelf. I swear! I'm positive that's what I did. Really!

On the sixth day of Christmas (Tuesday), I came home from a meeting after work and my monosyllabic, older son tears his eyes away from the computer screen to announce, "The dog (remember cute, lovable Spike?) got into your stuff." Cute, lovable Spike had chewed holes in one box, put serious teeth marks in another, and devoured a pound, or more, of candy from various boxes. I think I stayed reasonably calm. At least, I don't think the neighbors heard me screaming. The candy could be replaced, but the boxes had been purchased months ago. Luckily, I had one extra and on Friday I gave the one with serious bite marks to my friend Gloria, who I knew would understand since she knows Spike personally. All night Tuesday, this dog with unimaginable indigestion, who sleeps under our bed, would jump up and run out of the room because he was afraid of his own noisy flatulence. Serves him right, I thought, although none of us got much sleep because of the odors and noises emanating from this dog's digestive tract. Little did I know!

On the seventh day of Christmas (Wednesday), I went into the bedroom after dinner and noticed a peculiar odor. Was this left over from the night before? Was having a gassy dog in your bedroom all night like having friends over who smoked? You know how that smell will linger for a few days as a familiar reminder. This odor, however, was different and seemed to become stronger as I got closer to my closet. Sometime during the day, Spike, scared and sick, sought comfort amid the haven of my shoes on the floor of my closet. And, I do mean sick. All over my shoes. Two shoe-scrubbing, closet-deodorizing hours later, I was ready to call an end to the day. After all, it was 8:30.

On the eighth day of Christmas (Thursday a.m.), I actually made it to work on the dot of the time I'm supposed to be there. My coat is halfway off, and I get a phone call from my forgetful, younger son. I think he is probably sick, so I am relieved to hear, "Mom, I forgot to bring nice clothes for the band's Christmas concert this morning, could you bring me some?" All the parenting advice is, "If he (your child) forgets it (whatever), since it was his responsibility in the first place, he (your child) should do without it (don't take it to him no matter what!). "Okay," I said, "when do you need them?" "Twenty minutes, and could you bring the black pants that were on my bedroom floor?" "They're in the washer." "Just bring something nice, please."

It takes me twelve minutes to get home, five minutes to find clothes—do these pants still fit?—doesn't that shirt need to be ironed?—does he need a belt?—stick one in the bag, just in case, fourteen minutes to the school. Adrenalin courses wildly through my veins, as my middle-school child greets me with a big smile and the words, "thanks, Mom, but I don't need them now, we're already warming up." Remember, it is illegal to strangle your child . . . remember it is illegal to strangle our child . . . remember . . . .

Again on the eighth day of Christmas (Thursday p.m.), I decide to make lemon pound cakes for the office party the next day. On the way to the cupboard, I reflect on the amazing fact that I still have this mixer and it still works. Never, ever acknowledge when something is going right! This mixer is an old Sunbeam Mixmaster I have had for more than twenty-five years that my mother gave me after she purchased it at a yard sale. Who knows how old it was when she bought it. Anyway, I pick the mixer up and the mixer-part immediately detaches itself from the mixer base and goes flying across the length of the kitchen floor! I decide it's past my bedtime and go to bed.

On the ninth day of Christmas, Book Group had a lively discussion and a lovely party. I stopped and bought macaroni salad and chips for the office party, which was festive and fun—hey, what's happening?—things seem to be okay.

On the tenth day of Christmas, I caught the company cold. I tracked the progress of that bug as it crept around the perimeter of the typesetting room, into the advertising room and back out again to sneak around the corner and jump into the darkroom. That cold kept me company all through the holidays, like a long-lost relative. It also seemed to be the end (knock on wood) of the "Twelve Disasters of Christmas." And if you see me out and about I don't want to catch you staring at my shoes!

months. We will also continue to work against the divided four-lane highway being proposed for Rt. 219. Despite the fact that you haven't heard much about it lately, this issue is alive and well. The only difference now is that it is not being called Continental One. We hope to get the politicians to finally "see the light" and honor the wishes of the people of Garrett County. If they don't come out and publicly state that they are "for us" on this issue, then we will know where they stand. And that is a very important thing to know in this election year.

Anyone wishing to join with us may do so by writing to us. There is no obligation other than your moral support and your willingness to be counted as one of us. Just send a note stating that you wish to be counted as a member and would like to be notified of meetings and events. Note: The thing that impresses the politicians most is numbers. When our numbers reach critical mass, they will have no choice but to "see the light." Write to G.C./CARE, Inc., P.O. BOX 321, McHENRY, MD 21541.

Simmers Tapped For Who's Who National Registry

Garrett County business owner Marcia Simmers was recently selected for inclusion in the upcoming edition of The National Registry of Who's Who.

Registered at the Library of Congress, this volume is published annually to recognize outstanding idividuals in the business community. Simmers, whose business is Simmers Realty, was chosen because of her attention to the people she serves, a spokesperson said, noting that she puts her clients "ahead of the bottom line."

As a member of the board of directors for Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc., Simmers was instrumental in developing two programs to help first time buyers become homeowners.

Through her business she has also had the opportunity to serve as a consultant to those who contact her for information on the home buying process.

Simmers commented that she had been in 4-H for all the years she was growing up, and through that experience developed a sense of service and commitment.

Paugh was transported to Garrett Memorial Hospital by Southern Rescue Squad, where he was admitted for treatment. Deer Park VFD also responded to the scene.

Police charged Paugh with negligent driving and driving while intoxicated.

Following his arrest Ford was released on his own recognizance by the court commissioner.

Jones Earns WVU Degree; Begins Master's Program

Thomas "David" Jones Jr. graduated from West Virginia University's School of Social Work in December. He achieved a bachelor's degree, with a major in social work and a minor in philosophy. He was also selected for the master's degree program at the school with advanced standing.

David is the oldest son of former Oakland residents Thomas and Alana Jones, and is the grandson of Joyce Skidmore, Oakland.

Since graduating from Southern High in 1994, David has completed over 250 hours of volunteer work, had multiple mentions on the Dean's list of scholars, completed an internship as an individual and group therapist, and has served as a crisis intervention specialist at the Valley Mental Health Center in Morgantown, W.Va.

He will begin his master's degree program this month.

Cancer Society Names Director For Local Unit

Kevin Tephabock, formerly of Kitzmiller, has recently been named to lead the Allegany/Garrett Unit of the American Cancer Society.

A 1979 graduate of Southern High School, Tephabock holds an associate's degree from Garrett Community College and a bachelor's degree in marketing from West Virginia University.

He returned to Western Maryland from Asheville, N.C., where he was active with the United Way, the chamber of commerce, the American Red Cross, an area AIDS project, and other human service associations.

The American Red Cross presented Tephabock the Norma Merchant Award for "excellence in program education." North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt recognized him for his work in disaster services.

In 1995 he was nominated for the North Carolina Volunteer of the Year for his work in AIDS/HIV education. He was previously employed as the community director for the March of Dimes in Asheville.

"Education about prevention and detection is clearly the key to fighting cancer. Early detection of breast and prostate cancer have been proven to save lives," Tephabock said.

He also stated that the quality of life of the cancer patient can be greatly increased through education. "Area churches, clubs, and businesses can play an important role by presenting programs on cancer," he suggested.

Tephabock pointed out that one in every four deaths in the United States results from cancer. "All of us know someone who is living with cancer or who has died as a result of the disease," he stated.

Cancer patients who are in need of assistance can learn more about the programs and services of the American Cancer Society by contacting Kevin Tephabock at 301-722-2145. The Allegany/Garrett Unit of ACS serves Grant, Hardy, Hampshire, and Mineral counties in West Virginia in addition to the two Maryland counties.

THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS-PAST filled the log plantation home of the Drane family in Accident this year as visitors were welcomed by the landowner and his wife and brought in to warm themselves by the fire. The Dranes' Christmas guest, Harmon Husband, entertained visitors to the family home with tales of his life and travels in Pennsylvania. In the photo at left are Becky Aiken as Priscilla Drane and George Lander as James Drane. Chaz Rittenhouse, as Harmon Husband in the photo above, relates stories of his life to Rosie Moon, as Rosie Moon. Rosie could probably tell Harmon of few tales of her 50 years serving the residents of Accident while working in the general store, Matthews Market. The table in the photo on the right is set and ready to accommodate those who gather for the Drane family Christmas meal. Photos by Diana Deal.

In Memory of Carlos Helms

Daddy, I don't understand why you were called away.
But there was nothing I could do or anything I could say.
I was so young when you left us,
I felt like there was nobody I could trust.
There's not a day that goes by that I don't sit and cry.
Although you went away you are in our hearts each and everyday.
You were the very best, but I guess God called you home so you could rest.
They say he only takes the best.
You were called away 40 years ago,
But I will always love you, just wanted to let you know.

Sadly Missed,

Farm Service Agency Explains CRE Program

Michael R. Kozier, county director of the Garrett/Allegany County Farm Service Agency Office, recently explained that the Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program (CREP) is identical to the regular Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) except for these factors:

* Special incentive payments. A percentage of the soil rental rate. Seventy percent (70%) for riparian buffers and fifty percent (50%) for filter buffers, wetland restoration, and land with an erodibility index greater than 15.

* Cost-share to establish practices needed. Fifty percent (50%) from USDA/FSA, an additional thirty-seven and one-half percent (37.5%) from the state of Maryland.

He said the Environmental Quality Incentive Program (EQIP) will help Maryland farmers address some of their most pressing natural resource concerns, including soil erosion, water quality, riparian areas and grazing lands. EQIP provides farmers with flexible, effective and voluntary conservation programs.

EQIP provides cost-share assistance for up to seventy-five percent (75%) of the cost of certain conservation practices such as grassed waterways, filter strips, manure management facilities and livestock exclusion.

Farmers interested in these or other USDA programs in Garrett County may contact the FSA Office at 301-334-6954 or the NRCS Office at 301-334-6950. In Allegany County, they may contact the FSA Office at 301-777-1536 or the NRCS Office at 301-777-1494.

Horticulture Course Offered At Garrett CC

Garrett Community College is now adding a horticulture concentration to the Agriculture Management program. This spring GCC will offer the first of a series of horticulture courses.

Plant Propagation covers the theory and practical techniques of plant reproduction. Methods of propagation include seeds, spores, cuttings, layering, and grafting. "This would be an excellent course for those employed in the horticulture field or for those individuals growing their own plants," said GCC ag instructor Willie Lantz.

The class will meet on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6 to 8 p.m. at the GCC campus. Those with questions and those who would like to register should contact Lantz at 301-387-3021. The spring semester at GCC starts on January 20.

Farming In Maryland.....

Maryland State Tech Committee To Meet Jan. 13

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) will hold a meeting of the Maryland State Technical Committee on Tuesday, Jan. 13, from 9 a.m. to noon in Annapolis.

The main agenda item is proposed funding allocations that provide financial assistance to farmers and landowners on local and statewide conservation projects under USDA's Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP). Last year, Maryland received $1.4 million for conservation projects through this voluntary 1996 Farm Bill program. EQIP funds are used to address priority agricultural, natural resource and environmental concerns in local watershed areas. Additional agenda items will include updates on the Wildlife Habitat Incentives Program (WHIP) and conservation buffer programs.

The primary role of the Maryland State Technical Committee, an advisory group, is to assist in the development of technical guidelines necessary to implement the conservation provisions in the 1996 Farm Bill. David P. Doss, NRCS Maryland state conservationist, will chair the meeting.

The meeting will be held at the NRCS Maryland State Office, 339 Busch's Frontage Road, Annapolis, in the main conference room. The meeting is open to the public. For more information, those interested may call 410-757-0861, extension 313.

Farmers Assess New Tax Law

As the new year begins, Americans are turning their attention to an annual ritual: calculating their taxes. After observing all of the fanfare over the tax reform bill signed into law last year, many are wondering just what its effect will be on their own taxes.

Overall, farmers and ranchers should see a better tax year. Capital gains rates were lowered, and tax law was clarified so farmers' use of deferred payment contracts would not trigger the alternative minimum tax calculation. The health insurance deduction for the self-employed, currently at 40 percent, goes up to 45 percent in 1998 and begins its gradual increase to 100 percent by 2007. The $600,000 estate tax exemption increases to $625,000, on its way to $1 million in 10 years.

Farm Bureau will continue to place a high priority on tax reform and efforts to improve upon last year's tax changes if Congress writes another tax bill this year, according to Pat Wolff, an American Farm Bureau Federation senior governmental relations director. Congressional leaders have said they may consider further tax cuts if budget projections due out later this month show an improved economic outlook.

While last year's changes are a good start, Farm Bureau wants to see the capital gains tax "lower and simpler," Wolff said. The rates are down, but the new law made the tax more complicated by setting up multiple rates depending on income and amount of time an asset is held.

The eventual $1 million estate tax exemption is a good first step, Wolff said, "but 10 years is too long to wait." Farm Bureau is seeking to step up the pace and the amount of the exemption.

Farm Bureau will also seek earlier implementation of the full health insurance deduction for the self employed.

There are a number of other tax measures that Farm Bureau will seek to clarify or correct. The 1997 tax reform law created income averaging for farm income, a provision that helps even out income fluctuations so prevalent in farming and ranching. That portion of the law, however, does not go into effect until the 1998 tax year and sunsets after 2000, so Farm Bureau will work to make income averaging a permanent part of the tax code. The organization also will seek to pass legislation allowing farmers and ranchers to place pretax dollars in special savings accounts for withdrawal in times of financial need.

The Internal Revenue Service is denying the earned income tax credit provision to some dairy and livestock farmers. Lower-income taxpayers can claim the EITC provided they do not have more than $2,200 of net income from capital gains. But because the IRS does not distinguish between capital gains income from the sale of investment assets and the sale of farm commodities, some dairy and livestock farmers are ineligible for the EITC. Farm Bureau will seek legislation to clarify that these livestock sales are not treated as capital gains.

Farm Labor Shortage Reported

A recent report by the General Accounting Office claims that no agriculture labor shortage currently exists in the United States despite contrary reports by farmers in several regions of the country.

Farm Bureau and other industry organizations have called for an increase in the number of temporary foreign workers allowed to enter the United States, contending that stricter immigration policies have helped shrink the agriculture work force.

Farm Bureau Elects New President

Stephen Weber was elected the Maryland Farm Bureau's 21st president at the organization's recent convention in Ocean City. Weber, a vegetable farmer in Baltimore County, succeeds William Knill, who had served as president for six years.

Weber, a long-time agricultural leader in Baltimore County as well as the state, was also recognized recently as a trend setter. The 14-acre farm and cider mill that he and his wife, Jo Ann, operate on the outskirts of Baltimore has been noted in The New York Times for its innovation in "entertaining farming."

He has also served as the Farm Bureau point man on environmental issues, a major concern for the state's largest farm organization as it enters a legislative year expected to be full of contentious environmental issues.

President To Ask For Food Safety Funding

Citing an increase in the number of food-borne illnesses in the United States, President Clinton is soon expected to ask Congress to increase funding for food safety programs.

Clinton, who has expanded food safety expenditures by more than 60 percent since taking office, is proposing a package that could total $817 million for federal food safety programs. The new funds would be used to hire more scientists and overseas inspectors.

Pain may be eliminated for millions

(SPECIAL) A drug that is exciting researchers in the treatment of pain has been formulated into a new product known as "Arthur Itis$_{\alpha}$" and is being called a "Medical Miracle" by some, in the treatment of debilitating conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, painful muscle aches, joint aches, simple backache, bruises, and more. Although the mechanism of action is unclear, experiments indicate that Arthur Itis$_{\alpha}$ relieves pain by first selectively attracting and then destroying the messenger chemical which carries pain sensations to the brain, thus eliminating pain in the affected area. Arthur Itis$_{\alpha}$ is available immediately without a prescription in an odorless, greaseless, non-staining cream or new roll-on lotion form. Arthur Itis$_{\alpha}$ is guaranteed to work or your money back.

Nation's Largest Ag Group To Hold Annual Meeting

Farm Bureau members from throughout the nation will gather next week in Charlotte, N.C., for the 79th annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

The Jan. 11-15 meeting will feature conferences, keynote speakers, contests, exhibits, entertainment and awards. In addition, delegates will vote on policies to guide the organization during 1998.

AFBF President Dean Kleckner will deliver his annual address on Monday, Jan. 12. Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman is expected to address the general session on Jan. 12, and Elizabeth Dole, president of the American Red Cross and Cabinet officer in the Reagan and Bush administrations, will deliver the keynote address on Tuesday morning, Jan. 13.

Annual meeting participants have a wide selection of conferences to choose from on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Sunday's lineup includes commodity marketing conferences on cattle, swine, wheat, rice, poultry, feed grains, cotton, dairy, peanuts, timber and tobacco. In addition, there will be sessions on crop insurance, dairy order reform, agricultural exports, trade disputes, nutrient management, tax strategies and risk management.

Conference topics Monday include alternative crops, use of technology, animal disease, reducing environmental conflict, farm policy, conservation and transportation. Some of Tuesday's conferences include animal waste and nutrient management, livestock pricing, pesticide use, water quality, agriculture and the Internet, international treaties and private property rights.

The annual Young Farmer and Rancher contests will be held Sunday, Jan. 11. Some of the top young farmers in the nation will participate in the YF&R Discussion Meet and the YF&R Achievement Awards.

The Farm Bureau Women's Conference, regional caucuses and luncheon will also be held on Sunday.

Farm Bureau members will be entertained Tuesday evening by two well-known country music acts. The Gatlin Brothers, a Grammy Award-winning group, will headline the evening's entertainment. Country music artist Terri Clark will be the opening performer.

Dear Sir/Madam:
We recently concluded the purchase of a unit in Ski Harbor and we wanted to drop you a note to tell you about Ann Smith and how she made the whole process pleasant and rewarding. Both of us have been agents in the past and we have a good understanding of how things work and the difference between taking care of a client and just getting the job done. From the very beginning, Ann took us under her wing and made us feel comfortable and at home. Her honesty and willingness to go beyond what is required by any agent, made us feel like we had someone who cared about us by our side. . . She is professional, competent, and goes the extra mile to get the job done. Beyond that she cares about people and makes that very evident. We would and will recommend her and your agency to others who might inquire.
Sincerely, Orysia and Gaspare Aluzzo

Alfalfa vs. Alfalfa/Orchardgrass
(reprinted from Penn State Crop Talk)

One reason many producers give for planting mixed alfalfa/grass stands is to reduce weed invasion as the stand ages. The theory is that as the alfalfa begins to die out, the grass will become dominant and keep the weeds at bay. Weeds can contribute to total forage yield but are seldom as productive or as high in quality as forage species. A recent study by Eric Spandl and James Kells from Michigan State University provides some interesting insight to this theory. They took forage yields and quality measurements from 3- and 4-year-old alfalfa and alfalfa/orchardgrass stands in Central Michigan. They also measured percentages of alfalfa, orchardgrass, and weeds in each cutting during the two-year study.

The alfalfa/orchardgrass stand produced higher tonnage during both years of the study compared to alfalfa alone. Alfalfa/orchardgrass yields were about 13% higher than alfalfa alone. Keep in mind these are older stands with decreasing alfalfa density. As expected, weed yields were much higher in the solid-seeded alfalfa stands.

Forage quality tended to be higher in alfalfa alone compared to alfalfa/orchardgrass even though the alfalfa had a much higher level of weeds in the stand. Quality differences were greatest for first cutting where delayed harvest can affect orchardgrass quality while alfalfa quality is not affected as much by harvest timing.

So what does this mean for you, the producer? If you typically keep fields in hay for 4 or 5 years, planting alfalfa/grass mixtures can be a way to maintain yield through the later years of the stand. This is especially true if you have soils that are not well suited for alfalfa. A mixed alfalfa/grass stand will also compete better with invading weeds as the alfalfa dies out. On the other hand, solid-seeded alfalfa may be a better option if you rotate hay fields after 2 or 3 years of production.

Maryland Farmers Lose Big Bucks on Deer Damage

This March 1998, the Agricultural and Resource Economics Department, University of Maryland, conducted a random state-wide survey of deer damage to grain crops. Across the state losses were determined on corn, soybeans, and wheat with the exception of Garrett County where only corn grain damages were calculated. It was estimated that Garrett County corn growers lost approximately $195,000. to deer damage. Garrett County farmers fed the deer an average of 12.4 bushels of corn for every acre planted for grain. If we would add in the damage deer do to corn silage, alfalfa, small grains, soybeans, fruits and vegetables, the economic damage would probably approach more than a million dollars. State-wide the grain producers fed the deer approximately $37,941,000 (almost 38 million) of corn, wheat, and soybeans.

Food Safety Campaign To Begin In Spring

An awareness campaign will be launched this spring by three of the country's leading food and agricultural associations to educate consumers about food safety and irradiation.

The three groups—the American Farm Bureau Federation, the Grocery Manufacturers of America and the Food Marketing Institute—represent a farm-to-retail partnership aimed at dispelling myths about food safety technology.

JACKIE KENNEDY ONASSIS: AMERICAN ROYALTY

Jacqueline Bouvier Kenaedy Onassis remains one of our icons despite the slow chipping away of the Camelot White House myth. According to January's Biography magazine, while cultivating an image of poise and control, she bit her nails and secretly chain-smoked. She could be extravagant with other people's money but tightfisted with her own. She spoke in a whispery, little-girl voice but could turn sarcastic.

Interested in art and culture, Jackie despised politics. Born into a wealthy family, she was pressured to find a rich suitor. The handsome, wealthy Congressman John Kennedy seemed just the ticket. And she was perfect for his political ambitions. Despite Jackie's awareness of Jack's roving eye, the two were wed, with over 800 prominent guests attending.

The early years were lonely, with Jack frequently on the road. She tried to fill the void with children but had a miscarriage, followed by the premature birth of a stillborn. Finally, Caroline and JFK, Jr. were born. As First Lady, she had no interest in policy or causes. She often begged off unappealing official activities, refusing to meet with "banana-republic presidents." After another premature stillbirth, the couple grew closer in shared grief. For the first time, Jackie agreed to officially accompany Jack — ironically, on the fateful Dallas trip.

Afterward, she fled to New York where, shortly after Bobby Kennedy's assassination, she agreed to marry billionaire Aristotle Onassis. Her profligate spending and wild partying made headlines. Onassis became disillusioned and hired a divorce lawyer, but died before making it official.

Jackie's last years marked a return to grace. Although she didn't need the money, she held a satisfying job as a part-time book editor. She was involved for 12 years with diamond merchant Maurice Tempelsman, with whom she was living when she died of cancer at 64. She was buried next to JFK.

Q. What's the difference between a flax wheel and a spinning wheel? Is one more valuable than the other?

A. A flax wheel is a spinning wheel. There is a difference between a flax spinning wheel and a wool spinning wheel. The flax wheel is treadle-operated, so the spinner sits. The spinner walks back and forth to use a wool wheel. The wheel part of the wool wheel is larger than a flax wheel.

Both kinds sell for $100 to $300, depending on age, condition and decoration.

Q. I saw an old wooden toy in an antiques store. It involved flipping a small clown figure from one wire to the other. The sign said it was made by the Wright brothers of airplane fame. Can you help me?

A. Orville Wright patented the Flips and Flops toy in 1925, 22 years after he and his brother, Wilbur, made the first airplane flight. Legend has it that Orville first made the toy to entertain his nieces and nephews.

Eventually, the toy was manufactured by the Miami Wood Specialty Co. of Dayton, Ohio.

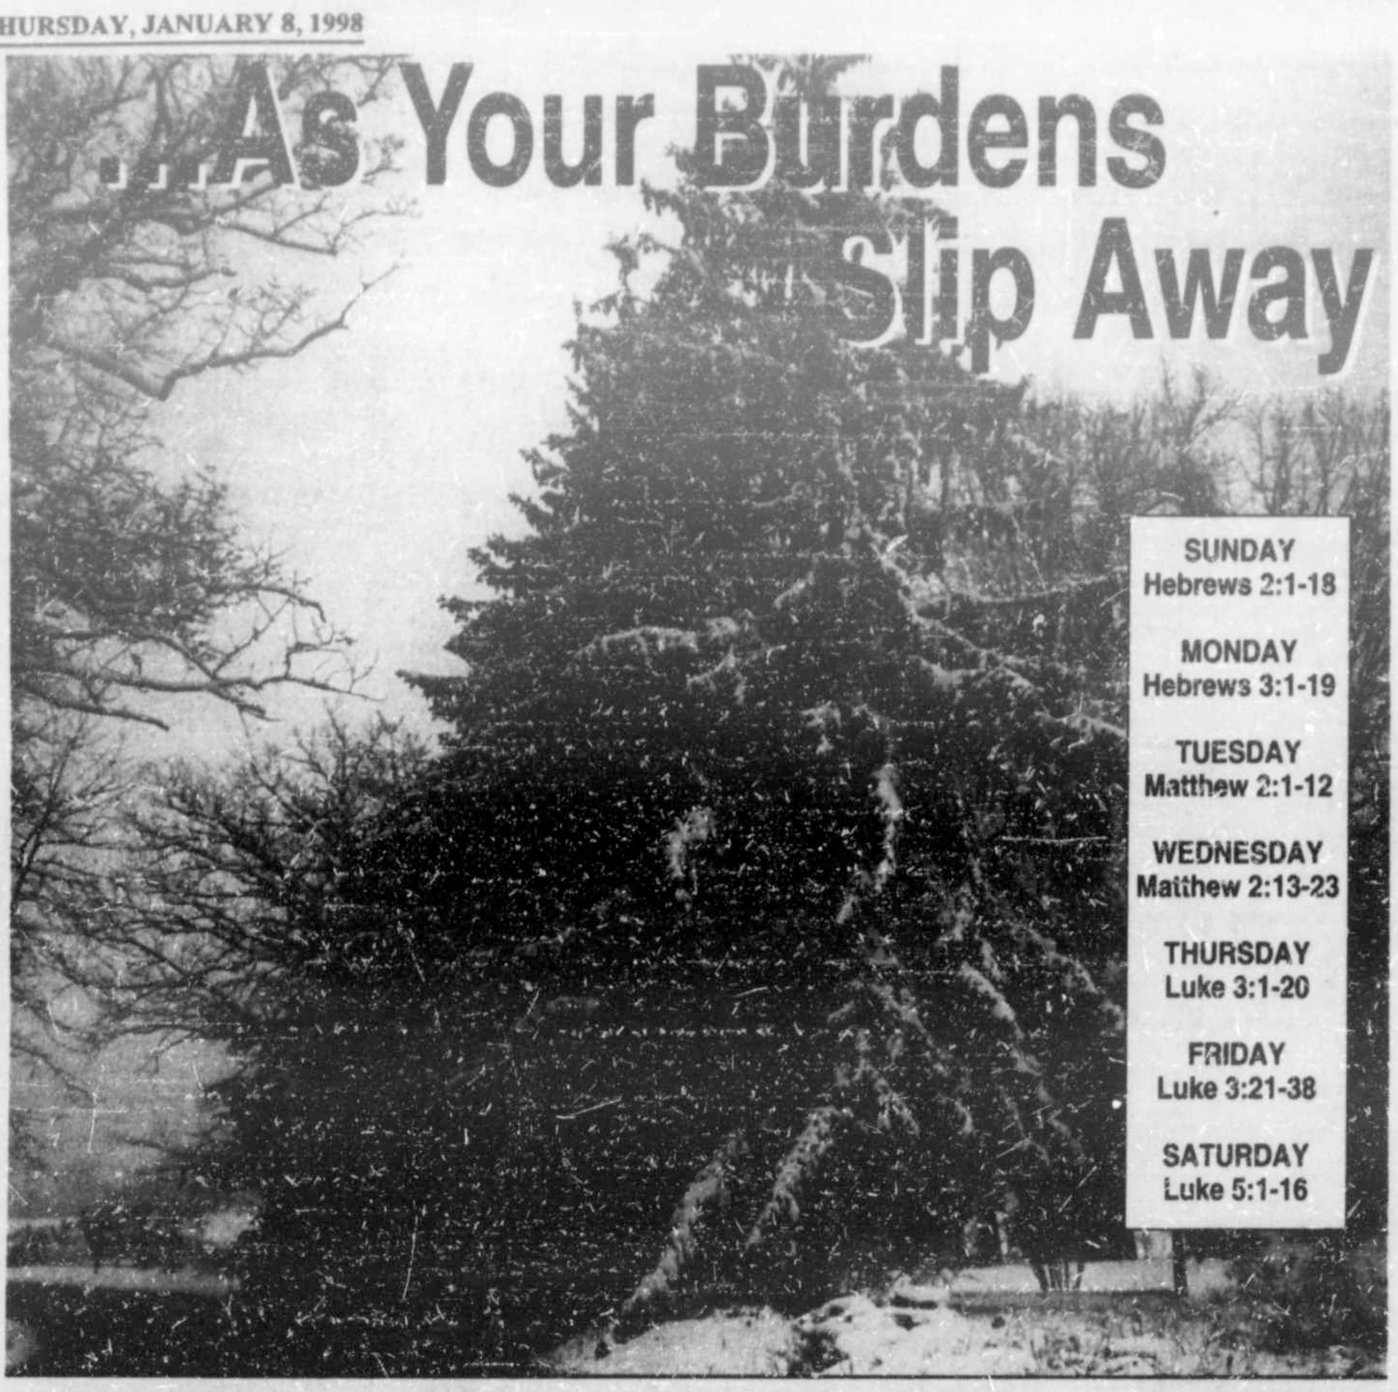
OUT ON A LIMB by GARY KOPERVAS

...As Your Burdens Slip Away



It seems a phenomenon of nature...such a tall and massive tree humbled, limbs bent toward the ground by snowflakes so tiny and light that they float through the gray winter sky. Yet, as they pile one upon the other, they become a heavy burden. Somehow the tree looks sad.

Yet, this is no time to be sad, for our Creator sends the sunshine and, hour by hour, the icy burden melts from each branch until the tree in its entirety has bounced back to once more decorate the winter landscape with welcome greenery.

Sometimes, life seems to leave us cold and stooped by cares that pile upon our shoulders. Don't despair, for God has a plan and a purpose for your life. Trust Him. "Stand firm, and do not let yourselves be burdened again..." Galatians 5:1

Worship each week in your chosen church or synagogue. Hear God's Word in prayer and in praise as your burdens slip away.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

THE SOLITARY CHRISTIAN
January 11, 1998

Background Scripture:
1 Peter 2:1-10
Devotional Reading:
2 Corinthians 1:3-14

As a pastor, I have frequently been asked: "Is it possible to be a Christian without being a part of the Church?"

My usual answer is that in God's world, I suppose, anything is possible, but it would be extremely unlikely. I have also gone on to say that we may perhaps be Christian without joining a church, but not without being part of the Church.

Unless you live on a desert island, being a Christian alone is a virtual contradiction in terms. To be a Christian means to follow Jesus Christ and, although Jesus sometimes went away to a quiet place to be alone or with only his disciples, still he spent most of his time with people—healing, preaching, and teaching.

In 1 Peter 2 the writer metaphorically likens Jesus to a stone. First, a rejected stone: "Come to him, to that living stone rejected by men but in God's sight chosen and precious." This is an allusion to Psalms 118:22: "The stone which the builders rejected has become the head of the corner." The rejected stone, Peter says, has turned out to be the most important stone of all. Jesus had been rejected by many, but as resurrected Lord he was proven the cornerstone of God's kingdom.

A 'LIVING STONE'?

But also, he is a "living stone." This is really a mixed metaphor, because "living" and "stone" seem to be self-contradictory. Stones don't live and if you're alive you are hardly a stone. But Peter knowingly uses this mixed metaphor because he wants to convey both the solidity of Christ's place in the kingdom and the certainty that this Christ-the-cornerstone is vibrantly alive. (As I read this passage again today I was fascinated to think that it is Simon, whom Jesus called Peter—"the Rock"—who makes this analogy of Jesus as the "living stone.")

Finally, we come to Peter's words which obliterate the concept of the solitary Christian: "...and like living stones be yourselves built into a spiritual house..." (2:5). The only physical presence Jesus Christ has in this world is the physical presence of those of us who follow him. It is we, the living stones of Christ, who make up the Church in this world. As Annie Johnson Flint wrote:

Christ has no hands
but our hands
To do his work today;
He has no feet but our feet
To lead men in His way.

A SPIRITUAL HOUSE

And it must be abundantly clear from these analogies that the Body of Christ can exist only when Christians are connected to each other in some way. We are called, not to be spiritual hermits, but "living stones...built into a spiritual house." The "spiritual house" is the physical representation of Christ in our world. Paul likened Christians to parts of Christ's Body—some representing the head, others the hands, and so on. But all these parts of the Body of Christ must be connected if the Body is to do anything in the world.

Peter proceeds with another mixed metaphor, the "living stones" turning into a holy priesthood to offer spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God through Christ" (2:5). In verse 9 he expands that corporate concept, saying: "But you are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, God's own people, that you may declare the wonderful deeds of him who called you out of darkness into marvelous light." No Christians standing alone here.

There is not one word there to encourage the concept of the solitary Christian. We come together and work together because God has a great work for us to take up for Him and it is a work that requires us to work together with other disciples.

There's an old Jewish saying: "Ein Mensch ist kein Mensch" "One man is no man." I think we might apply that same concept to Christian discipleship. A Christian alone is no Christian.

Our Legacy From the Medicine Man

Who would ever think on entering today's streamlined pharmacy that many of the medicines available had their early beginnings with the medicine man. Of course, they have undergone many changes and refinements. In early days Indians chewed on roots (or leaves) of certain plants in order to extract a "magic substance." This later evolved to a "more sophisticated" technique of cooking the roots for hours and then boiling down the resultant liquid.

Thousands of years have passed since these earliest processes were begun. Our contemporary drugs may bear little resemblance to their crude ancestors. But many of the basic chemical substances do date back to the medicine man.

COVER STORY

People's Choice Awards: entertainment democracy

Whoopi Goldberg

Let's make one thing quite clear: There's to be no complaining over the outcome of the People's Choice Awards, airing Sunday, Jan. 11, on CBS, with host Ray Romano.

In this long season of awards – from the Nobel Prizes to the Golden Globes, Grammys and Oscars – the People's Choice ceremony truly has the common touch.

As the name implies, these are fan-based honors, not the selections of a panel of judges or an industry peer group. In this celebrity-crazy country, it isn't too much to ask to have at least one award chosen by the people.

Submitted for your approval are this year's nominees, as selected by the Gallup poll:

In the category of favorite male musical performer, the finalists are Garth Brooks, Elton John and George Strait. Female favorites are Whitney Houston, Jewel and Reba McEntire.

The finalists for favorite male TV performer are Tim Allen, George Clooney and Jerry Seinfeld. Nominees in the women's division are Julia Louis-Dreyfus, Helen Hunt and Oprah Winfrey.

The drama series nominated are ER, NYPD Blue and The X-Files. The year's most popular comedies are Frasier, Home Improvement and Seinfeld. Among daytime serials the nominees are All My Children, Days of Our Lives and The Young and the Restless.

Liar Liar, Men in Black and My Best Friend's Wedding are nominated for favorite movie comedy. In the drama category, the selections are Air Force One, Contact and Jerry Maguire. Predictably, the nominees for favorite actor in a motion picture are Tom Cruise, Harrison Ford and Will Smith, and the nominated actresses are Jodie Foster, Demi Moore and Julia Roberts.

Nominated performers in new TV series are actors Tony Danza, Bob Newhart and Fred Savage, and actresses Kirstie Alley, Calista Flockhart and Jenny McCarthy. Among new series, the drama nominees are Brooklyn South, Dellaventura and 413 Hope St. The comedies are Ally McBeal, Dharma & Greg and Veronica's Closet.

Also scheduled is a tribute to versatile actress and comic Whoopi Goldberg. The winner in the tribute category is chosen by the benign dictatorship of executive producer Walter C. Miller and sponsor Procter & Gamble. Past honorees include Aaron Spelling and Michael Douglas.

"It's based on what's best for the show," Miller observes. "In honoring Whoopi, we certainly hope we will bring out some interesting (celebrities)."

If there is a bone to pick with this 24-year-old event, it's the failure of the voting process to advance with technology. The Nashville Network's Music City News Awards uses telephone balloting, and Nickelodeon's Kids' Choice Awards has a polling place on the Web, so why not the People's Choice Awards? A larger sampling of opinions would result, and the audience would have a vested interest in the show's outcome.

The People's Choice Awards limits itself to the categories it can cover in two hours. There are no honors for sports figures, children's TV, news – or, for that matter, politicians, pizza or "paper or plastic," although such a catalog of popular opinion might be possible if it were the people's choice.

IN FOCUS

Donna Mills plays a photographer determined to uncover the truth behind a deadly plot to swindle retirement-home residents in Moonlight Becomes You, premiering Sunday, Jan. 11, on The Family Channel.

Maggie's (Mills) reunion with her long-lost stepmother tragically is cut short when the older woman is killed.

When Maggie investigates, she discovers a link to several other deaths at the retirement home, putting her own life in danger.

Julie White

Q: What happened to Julie White, who used to play Nadine on Grace Under Fire? She was terrific. I can't imagine that she was fired. –John R., San Francisco.

A: She wasn't, John. While the tabloids sneered that White and Grace star Brett Butler were fighting, White tells me she was simply bored to tears with her role.

While few viewers may realize it, White is an exceptional theater actress, and one who is temperamentally ill-suited to a "sit-and-sip" supporting role like Nadine. You'll be hearing more from her, I promise.

Q: Is the little boy from the movie Liar Liar the same boy from One Fine Day with Michelle Pfeiffer? My husband says yes; I say no. –Melissa Lefferts via e-mail.

A: You're right. Justin Cooper starred as Jim Carrey's son in Liar. That's Alex D. Linz, currently in Home Alone 3, in One Fine Day.

Q: I never knew former Blondie singer Debbie Harry had an acting career until I saw her in L.A. Johns on Fox. Is she in other movies? How old is she? –Jodie Hayford, N. Monmouth, Maine.

A: Harry, 52, has been working in films and TV for nearly 20 years now, most recently in Sylvester Stallone's Cop Land. Her many other films include Six Ways to Sunday, Tales From the Darkside, Videodrome, Heavy and Forever Lulu. Additionally, she has appeared on Sabrina, the Teenage Witch, Monsters and Wiseguy.

Q: Whatever happened to the '50s movie actress named Joan Evans? –John Moore, Charlotte, N.C.

A: Film historian Leslie Halliwell reports that, following a 1949-1960 film career, Evans left Hollywood for a career in education.

Q: Did John Callahan (Edmund on All My Children) play Cesar Romero's son on Falcon Crest years ago? –T. Beck via e-mail.

A: Yes, Callahan played Eric Stavros on the popular nighttime soap (1986-88). Eric married Chase and Maggie Gioberti's daughter, Victoria.

FOOTNOTE: The things I learn here! After I noted a few weeks ago that the name of the robot in Lost in Space was simply "Robot" or "The Robot," reader and LIS maven Charles Blackburn of San Francisco wrote to add some trivia for other fans of the show. In the episode "Ghost Planet," the robot actually was referred to as "Robot Model B-9," while in "The Time Merchant," the front of the robot's packing crate read GUNTER (for General Utility Non-Theorizing Environmental Robot). Many thanks, Charles!

SOAP TALK

New year brings changes for soap world

By Candace Havens

Teresa Blake

With the coming of the new year, the soaps are cleaning house again.

Fan favorites Teresa Blake (Gloria, All My Children) and John Aprea (Alexander, Another World) have been let go from their roles. Both departures were dictated by story lines.

Aprea says he is grateful that he can now return to Los Angeles to be with his family.

Amy Carlson (Josie, AW) is also leaving, but she chose to exit the series. After four years of playing the same character, she felt it was time to move on.

Nick Stabile (Mark) is leaving Sunset Beach the hard way. His character is being murdered by a serial killer.

Dear Candace: The actress who plays Mary Hayes-Dr. M. Maude Boylan on One Life to Live reminds me of the matriarch (I think her name was Mary) on Ryan's Hope. Any chance it is the same actress? –Deguja on the Internet.

Dear Reader: Helen Gallagher, who plays Dr. Maude on OLTL, played Maeve, the matriarch of the Ryan family. Mary Ryan was played by Star Trek: Voyager star Kate Mulgrew.

Dear Candace: My boyfriend and I went to see Scream 2, and I was surprised by how many actresses from soap operas were in the film.

Can you tell me who they are and what character they played on the soaps? –Angie in Kansas.

Dear Reader: Sarah Michelle Gellar (ex-Kendall, AMC), Rebecca Gayheart (ex-Antonia Marchette, Beverly Hills, 90210 and ex-Hannah, Loving) and Elise Neal (ex-Janie Sinclair, Loving) all are in Scream 2.

Gellar can also be seen weekly on The WB Network's Buffy the Vampire Slayer.

Dear Candace: I've always loved Vanessa Marcil, who plays Brenda on General Hospital. She is a talented and gorgeous actress.

And I have to say the scenes where Brenda had a breakdown were some of the saddest I have ever seen on television. I sat there and sobbed. It was as if I could feel her pain. –Lisa H. in Ohio.

Dear Reader: Even jaded critics shed a tear for Brenda during those heart-wrenching scenes. Marcil did a terrific job.

BITTINGER NEWS

Doug Knupp conducted the Sunday morning services at the Bittinger Parish Lutheran Churches. He will conduct services on non-communion Sundays, and Bishop Alex Black will administer communion on Jan. 11 and Feb. 1 at all three parish churches. Pastor Mike Robinson of St. Mark's, Oakland, will be the interim pastor during the vacancy in the parish.

Emmanuel WELCA will meet Friday at 7 p.m. in the education building.

World has been received by Loretta Opel of the death of Carroll Coleman, Bethany Beach, Del., brother of former Bittinger resident Virginia Hesson. He died suddenly Sunday night while recovering from a recent illness.

Carol and Scott Bass attended the University of Maryland and Duke University basketball game at College Park on Saturday night. They spent the night at her brother's home in Frederick. Emma Bass spent Saturday and Sunday with her friend, Natalie McLister, in Frederick.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Glotfelty visited Mr. and Mrs. George Farmer in Baltimore on Friday.

New Year's Eve guests of the Kevin Bass family were the Rodney Glotfelty family, Lloyd Sussman and daughters, and Gary Mullick.

Marsha and Mike Neitzke and sons Chris and Matthew, Mechanicsville, were holiday guests of Ellen and Sam Housley. Other guests over New Year's Eve weekend were Jerry Moore, J.D. and Kim Moore, and John and Shane Moore, all of Ocean City, and Charlie Wesley of Lexington, Ky.

Dave Ramsey, Allison Buckel, and Sheila Southerly spent several days over the holidays cross-country skiing on the "Ponderosa." Allison will be leaving for Spain on Jan. 9 for four months to further her college studies in Spanish. She is currently a junior student at University of Maryland, College Park.

New Year's Eve guests of the Southerly family were Dennis Buckel and Peggy Chappell. Blair Buckel was a New Year's Day dinner guest.

Ferne Beachy and Cindy Stanton visited Mr. and Mrs. Bill Green and Ruby and Paul Orendorf on Saturday in Cumberland.

Cindy and Sam Stanton visited Clark and Sharon Glotfelty, Grantsville, on Saturday. Clark is recovering from hip surgery.

New Year's Eve guests of Lenny and Sally Poholsky were Vagnetti family and the McNally/Pullen family.

Pam Poholsky from Murrysville, Pa., was a weekend visitor of Lenny and Sally Poholsky.

Lea Stanton returned to her studies and Allegany College after her Christmas break spent with family and friends.

Christmas Eve guests of Dennis Buckel and Peggy Chappell were Shane and Allison Buckel and the Bill Southerly family.

Christmas Day visitors and guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Resh, Jennings, were Sheila and Bill Southerly and sons. Evening visitors of the Reshes were Roger Resh, Carol Resh, and Greg Lawson. The Southerlys traveled to Piedmont, W.Va., on Dec. 26 to visit with Bill's father.

Joan and Lloyd Sussman and family visited Mr. and Mrs. Allan Sussman, Blanche Sussman, Vicki and Norty Sussman, and Shirley Polley, Silver Spring, over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. James Glotfelty were Saturday evening dinner guests of Julius and Karmen Carey and sons, near Frostburg. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. James Carey, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Powell and Lydia, Mr. and Mrs. Darrin Carey and son, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Walker and daughters, and Evie Morris, all of near Frostburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwaine Platter, Smithsburg, were overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Glotfelty and attended a Christmas dinner and get-together at the home of his grandmother, near Jennings. Adam and Amanda Platter returned to Smithsburg with them after spending the holidays here with their grandparents, the Glotfeltys.

Sunday dinner guests of Ida Reckner were Linda Oester, Salisbury, Pa., Lillian Reckner, McHenry, and Mr. and Mrs. James Glotfelty. Afternoon visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Reckner, Confluence.

Mr. and Mrs. James Glotfelty recently attended a holiday dinner party hosted by Oester Trucking Company at Penn Alps, near Grantsville.

Masons To Meet

Oakland Lodge No. 192, Ancient, Free, and Accepted Masons, will have a regular communication on Tuesday, Jan. 13, at 7:30 p.m. in the Paul B. Naylor Masonic Temple. On this evening the 1998 officers will be installed. Refreshments will be served after the meeting.

State Releases Annual Calendar For Travelers

Maryland Celebrates 1998, the state's official listing of fairs, festivals, and events, is ready for free distribution to anyone who calls 800-719-5900.

The Maryland Office of Tourism Development, a part of the Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development, annually publishes the calendar as a service to residents and to travelers. Its 68 pages contain listings of events that range from craft shows to ethnic festivals, from historical re-enactments to parades, and from seafood feasts to music festivals.

Besides listing the date, time, and location of each event, the calendar also provides a complete description, information about admission fees and accessibility, and the phone number to call for more details.

BLASTING NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that PINE MOUNTAIN COAL COMPANY will be conducting blasting operations on Mining Permit No. SM-95-424 on the property of Lillie Weir in Election District No. 11, Garrett County, at Maryland State Grid Coordinates N. 644,500 E. 234,500 in accordance with all applicable state and federal laws. Such activities will commence and continue in accordance with the following schedule of dates and approximate times, as approved by the Maryland Bureau of Mines.

January 15, 1998
thru January 15, 1999
8:00 A.M. to noon
and 1:00 to 5:00 P.M.
No blasting will be conducted on Sundays.

At least ten minutes prior to each blasting activity, all accesses to the area will be controlled to prevent unauthorized entry, and a warning signal will be audibly indicated by three 5-second blasts with an air horn, at 2 second intervals. After the blast, the all clear signal shall be indicated by one 20-second blast with an air horn. These signals are in accordance with applicable state and federal laws.

Also, as approved by the regulatory authority, blasting activities will not be conducted at times other than those announced without prior notification, or in the event of an emergency situation where rain, lightning, or other atmospheric condition, operator or public safety conditions, dictate an unscheduled detonation.

Requests for pre-blast surveys may be made by writing the Director, Maryland Bureau of Mines, 160 S. Water Street, Frostburg, MD 21532.

SUBSTITUTE TRUSTEES' SALE OF REAL PROPERTY LOCATED AT STONE QUARRY ROAD
McHENRY, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND 21541

Under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in a Deed of Trust from Lincoln L. Pickett, dated November 25, 1995 and recorded in Liber 667, Folio 750 in the Land Record Office of Garrett County, Maryland, the holder of the indebtedness secured thereby having appointed Ronald S. Deutsch, Craig A. Parker and Shannon A. Coen, Substitute Trustees by instrument duly executed, acknowledged and recorded among the Land Records aforesaid, the undersigned Substitute Trustees will offer for sale at public auction:

AT THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR GARRETT COUNTY, AT THE COURT HOUSE DOOR, OAKLAND, ON
JANUARY 20, 1998
AT 1:00 O'CLOCK P.M.

All that property described in said Deed of Trust, the description of which is adopted and incorporated by reference as follows:

Beginning at an iron pipe, said beginning iron pipe being the beginning corner of the 2.0 acre parcel conveyed by Peter A. Laquer, et al., to George Pease, et ux., by deed dated December 1, 1978 and recorded in Liber No. 394, folio 916 one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, and running: thence from said beginning iron pipe, West 215.5 feet to an iron pipe; thence South 200.2 feet to an iron pipe standing in the northerly margin of a 30.0 foot roadway; thence with said northerly margin, West, 215.5 feet to an iron pipe, it being the second corner of said 2.0 acre parcel; thence leaving said northerly margin and running with the first line reversed of said 2.0 acre parcel, North 200.2 feet to the beginning, containing 1.0 acre, more or less. The improvements thereon are now known as No. Stone Quarry Road.

The property is commonly known as Box 616 Stone Quarry Road, McHenry, Maryland 21541. The property is being sold in fee-simple, subject to conditions, restrictions and agreements of record, affecting same, if any, and with no warranty as to the description of the improvements.

Terms of Sale: A deposit of $4,700 will be required at the time of sale in the form of cash, certified check or other form as the Substitute Trustees determine acceptable. If the noteholder and/or servicer is the successful bidder, the deposit requirement is waived. The property will be sold in an "AS IS" condition without either express or implied warranty or representation, including, but not limited to, the description, fitness for a particular purpose/use, structural integrity, physical condition, construction, extent of construction, workmanship, materials, habitability, zoning, subdivision, environmental condition, merchantability, compliance with building codes or other laws, ordinances or regulations, or other similar matters. The Substitute Trustees reserve the right to reject any and all bids, withdraw the property from sale, postpone same and sell the property at a later date. Balance of the purchase price to be paid in cash within ten (10) days of final ratification of sale by the Circuit Court. Time is of the essence as to the purchaser. Interest to be paid on the unpaid purchase money at the rate pursuant to the deed or Trust Note from the date of sale to the date funds are received in the office of the Substitute Trustees. In the event settlement is delayed for any reason, there shall be no abatement of interest. Taxes, ground rent, water rent, condominium fees, and/or homeowner association dues, if applicable, shall be adjusted to the date of sale and assumed thereafter by the purchaser. All other public charges and assessments payable on an annual basis, including sanitary and/or metropolitan district charges to be adjusted for the current year to date of sale and assumed thereafter by the purchaser. Cost of all documentary stamps, transfer taxes and settlement expenses shall be borne by the purchaser. Purchaser shall be responsible for obtaining physical possession of the property. In the event the property is occupied by tenants, the Substitute Trustees assume no responsibility for security deposits, or other monies paid by the tenants to anyone. Purchaser assumes the risk of loss or damage to the property from the time of sale. Should the property be damaged, there shall be no abatement of the purchase price. If the purchaser defaults, the deposit will be declared forfeit, and applied as required by Maryland law. In addition to any other legal or equitable remedies available to the Substitute Trustees or noteholder, the property will be resold at the risk and expense of the defaulting purchaser, who shall be liable for any deficiency resulting from the resale, and all costs and expenses of the resale, including, but not limited to, attorneys fees and all other charges incurred by the Substitute Trustees. If the Substitute Trustees are unable to convey good and marketable title, the purchaser's sole remedy in law and equity shall be limited to a refund of the deposit. Upon refund of the deposit, this sale shall be void and of no effect and the purchaser shall have no further claim against the Substitute Trustees or the noteholder. The Substitute Trustees, their attorneys, agents, auctioneer and/or the noteholder shall not be liable individually or otherwise for any matters relating to this sale and/or the property and purchaser agrees to hold them harmless.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR STRIP MINE PERMIT

Notice is hereby given that Patriot Mining Company, Inc., P.O. Box 4360, Star City, WV 26504 has submitted an application to the Maryland Bureau of Mines for an amendment to deep mine permit DM-90-109.

The proposed operation will occupy 3 acres of land to the north of Steyer Run, approximately 2.0 miles northeast of the town of Steyer in Election District No. 8, Garrett County. Affected landowners are C. Wayne Shillingburg, Marguerite E. Fink, and Lee Shillingburg.

Access to the site is from Audley Riley Road, 0.8 mile southeast of the White Church Steyer Road intersection.

The application proposes to construct a borehole at (N551,919 E150,025) for the purpose of transporting stone into the deep mine workings. Three thousand three hundred feet of existing access road off of Audley Riley Road will be used. Construction of seven hundred feet of new access will be necessary to link the borehole to the existing access road.

The permit area is within the U.S. Geologic Survey Gorman, MD 7.5 minute quadrangle. The location of the proposed amendment area is indicated on the accompanying vicinity sketch. A copy of the permit application is available for public review during regular office hours at the Bureau of Mines and the Soil Conservation District Office at 1916 Maryland Hwy., Mtn. Lake Park, MD.

Questions concerning any aspect of the application may be directed to Larry Bayles, Highland Engineering & Surveying, Inc. 301-334-6185 or the Maryland Bureau of Mines, Permits Section, 301-689-6405. A Public Hearing will not be held on this proposed activity unless requested. Girls' Varsity Soccer Given BOE Go-Ahead

Girls' varsity soccer teams will take the field at Northern and Southern high schools next fall as a result of a favorable vote by members of the Garrett County Board of Education Tuesday night.

Initial interest in adopting a new sport opportunity for girls in high school arose in the community. "Members of the community brought this idea to the Activities Review Committee," explained Maxine Miller, director of curriculum and instruction 9-12.

As a member of this committee, Miller presented the concerns of parents, students, and members of the community on the issue of girls' high school soccer to the board of education at the December meeting.

Currently, girls are permitted to play on the varsity soccer team along with the boys. These girls, however, are not allowed to play in the post-season playoffs.

Potential for injury to female players because of size and weight discrepancy was pointed out by Dr. Rex Archer, director of the Garrett County Health Department, during the December meeting. "As a physician, I say there shouldn't be 190-pound males crashing into girls who are under 100 pounds," he said.

The go-ahead for planning included the acknowledgement that funding would be an issue in need of further address, Miller

ICE IS THE WORD FOR THE DAY in Garrett County, as residents slip and slide about, dealing with the aftermath of a quiet ice storm that came in the night. School was canceled for the day because of treacherous driving conditions on most area roadways. The temperatures are to rise this afternoon, but then drop again tonight. Snow is expected tomorrow. All should take heed while walking along the streets today. Skating might be safer.

Freezing Rain Hits County, Closes Schools

In the early hours this morning freezing rain began. By 6 a.m. the emergency plans were in effect in the county, roads were being treated with solvents, and the schools were closed.

Road surfaces glistened and warnings were issued by the State Highway Administration that travel was particularly hazardous in the southern part of the county. Routes 50 and 560 were noted to be particularly dangerous.

A tractor trailer jackknifed on Sand Flat Road near Route 219 just prior to the morning commute, closing the road between Routes 219 and 135. No injuries were involved.

Those seeking information on road conditions are asked to call the SHA at 1-800-327-3125.

Limited Bear Hunting Season Focus Of Bill

In response to increased complaints from farmers and landowners concerning crop and livestock damage by black bears, a bill has been drafted to implement a limited black bear hunting season in Garrett County by District 1 Senator John Hafer and District 1-A Delegate George Edwards.

That bill, however, may not be introduced pending the legislators' meeting with Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) officials scheduled to take place sometime in the next two weeks, according to Delegate Edwards.

The idea of a limited hunting season that would employ the lottery system to select hunters from all over the state is not a new one. Those residents who have been the target of damage

Simon Pearce, Inc., Moving Into B&L Building; 150 Jobs Promised

Audible sighs of relief came from many of the 200 people in the theatre of Garrett Community College last Thursday evening as the announcement was made of a new company coming to occupy the vacant Bausch & Lomb facility. Simon Pearce Inc., a Vermont-based glass-making company, will be extending its business into Garrett County. The announcement was made during an economic update meeting called by Delegate George Edwards.

Stephen J. Lynch, regional [illegible] director for the Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development (DBED), made the long-awaited announcement, reporting that the company is to be making the move by the middle of summer and promises to employ a minimum of 150 local workers by the summer of 1999. The company manufactures a variety of blown glass products, including drinking glasses, vases, plates, and other items. In addition to the producing end of the business, Simon Pearce will also offer a tourism element.

"[illegible] is currently the third largest tourist attraction in Vermont. About 250,000 people come to see the operation every year," Lynch said, explaining that tours are offered in the New England plant, as they will be at the Garrett County location. "This is a well-respected company. They want to come to Garrett County because of the quality of life and the quality of the labor force here. They were very impressed by this place."

Lynch explained that the state will use "Sunny Day Fund" money to purchase the building for the time being. Improvements will be made in time for the company to move in by summer.

Lynch reported that Simon Pearce will be using the entire 193,000 square foot facility, and that the pay scale for employees will be "comparable to B&L's." He also stressed that the company should be a catalyst for more economic growth in the county. "This will dovetail nicely with a

Glendening Visiting: Will Read To Children, Attend Installation

Governor Parris Glendening is scheduled to be in Garrett County Friday and is slated to accomplish a range of activities, including reading to school children, touring a local business, attending the swearing-in ceremony for the newest county commissioner, and being the guest of honor at a Chamber of Commerce reception.

Glendening is to arrive at Broad Ford Elementary School in time to read to second grade students at about 3:30 p.m. This is past the regular dismissal time of 3:15, but special arrangements have reportedly been made at the school to accommodate for the gathering.

The reading activity is part of the governor's own "Be a Rising Star . . . Read to Achieve" challenge, in which all elementary and middle schools in Garrett County are participating. Glendening's office recently distributed bookmarks to all the participating students. The pupils are to read 10 books, keeping a record of them on the bookmarks. When the 10 books are finished, the participating

Yough Glades Opening Set; Riley Elected; AP Text Debated, Chosen

During the first meeting of the Garrett County Board of Education for 1998 Tuesday night, Patrick Riley was selected as president of the board, the date was set for the opening of the Yough Glades Elementary School, and a public debate preceded the adoption of a text book for use in the Advanced Placement U.S. history course.

Administrative

A list of administrative board concerns topped the agenda. Riley "accepted the gavel" from Dale Carpenter, who ended his year of service presiding over board meetings. James Raley accepted the position of vice-president.

Yough Glades School

Superintendent Dr. Wendell Teets announced the opening date of the new Yough Glades Elementary School, south of Oakland. Previously delayed because of late shipments of equipment and the need for minor construction corrections, the doors of the school are now slated to open to students on Feb. 10.

A tour of the building this week preceded Dr. Teets' decision. "The kitchen equipment is all in and we found just some minor things that need to be done," he said. Moving could take place on Feb. 5, 6, and 9. "Students could then start classes on the 10th, barring anything unforseen," he noted.

The students will probably tour the school prior to the move, Dr. Teets concluded.

AP Text Selection

Over two dozen people filed into the meeting room to participate in the public comment session scheduled for 7 p.m. The issue most had appeared to address was the recommendation for the text for AP history in the two county high schools.

During the December meeting of the board, a recommendation was made to the board by Maxine Miller, director of curriculum and instruction 9-12, on behalf

Wayne Johnson New Commissioner

Maryland Governor Parris Glendening announced last week that he has appointed Wayne R. Johnson as the new Garrett County Commissioner, succeeding the late Roger P. Glotfelty. The new commissioner will serve until the General Election of November 1998.

"With Wayne's lifelong commitment to the education and welfare of Garrett County families, he will be a true asset as commissioner," Glendening said. "As an educator and volunteer, he will be an experienced voice when making critical decisions on behalf of Garrett County residents.

Johnson was a teacher in the Garrett County school system from 1958 until 1970. He then served as an elementary school principal until his retirement in 1984. During his tenure, he also served as a coach. He currently serves as chairman of the Audit Commission of Maryland State Department of Elementary Principals.

A U.S. Navy veteran, Johnson resides in Oakland with his wife Jackie. He currently volunteers as a member of the Hospice of Garrett County Board of Directors, the Oakland-

Dr. Kaiser Among Honorees At Maryland Rural Health Conference

Two area health professionals were honored by the Maryland Rural Health Association (MRHA) at the Maryland Office of Rural Health Conference held in Annapolis December 4-6. Dr. Margaret Kaiser, who practices in Oakland, received the Outstanding Rural Health Practitioner award, while Donald Spencer, who recently retired as the executive director of the Western Maryland Area Health Education Center, was cited for Outstanding Rural Health Achievement.

Mikal McCartney, program specialist at Garrett County Memorial Hospital and president of the MRHA, said, "Both of these individuals have spent a significant portion of their lives impacting and improving the quality of health care and education. There are countless patients, families, students, organizations, agencies, and individuals who could join with us in presenting these awards." Each recipient was presented with a plaque and a decorative mirror. Dr. Kaiser was noted for her provision of "outstanding" care in the rural communities surrounding Oakland, as well as her collaboration and teamwork, involvement in the community, and lasting contribution to the rural health care system. She first came to Garrett County in 1982 as a medical resident from the University of Maryland Medical Center in Baltimore. Though she had planned to return to her native Portland, Ore., after her education, she says she "fell in love" with western Maryland and began working in the emergency room of Garrett County Memorial Hospital. In 1985 she started her own internal medicine practice. Currently, she is also the medical director of the Hospice of Garrett County and at the Cortland Acres Nursing Home in Thomas, W.Va.

Upon receiving her award, Dr. Kaiser said, "I truly love the people of Garrett County and will live there for the rest of my

General Assembly Session Begins, Edwards Comments On Key Issues

In contrast to budget deficits felt by the state in the early 90's, Maryland legislators this year are faced with at least a $260 million budget surplus that, while positive, could possibly lead to some problems that surface when a number of personalities, interests and jurisdictions are vying for money not yet earmarked for a specific use.

As the Maryland General Assembly began this week, lawmakers will grapple with many issues such as health care for uninsured children, education aid, and legalized gambling. But they will do so under the specter of a budget surplus in an election year.

"The budget is always an issue," said District 1-A Delegate George C. Edwards, "but even more so when there's a surplus." Edwards said that he's heard quite a few people talking about "how we can spend the surplus money, but not how we can save it."

Edwards indicated that he would like to see some of that surplus be given back to the taxpayers. In particular, he said, he would favor speeding up the phased-in 10% income tax cut (two percent per year for five years) passed last session, either by doing so in fewer years or with a higher percentage cut during each of the five years.

Other lawmakers would like the tax break to come in the form of lowered property taxes, which currently stand at 21 cents per

OOPS! DID SOMEONE DROP SOMETHING? It was not a humorous situation for trucker Franklin Brangard of White, Pa., last Thursday afternoon as he saw the load of lumber he had been transporting lying in the mud along a stretch of Garrett Highway, Route 219. Brangard had been headed north when he attempted to pass a vehicle that was stopped preparing to turn left. The heavily laden trailer traveled off the paved surface of the road, onto loose material. This caused the trailer to overturn, spilling the entire load of lumber, Maryland State Police reported. The incident required a brief closing of the northbound lane. No charges were filed and there were no injuries involved.

Communications Equipment Taken From Beitzel's

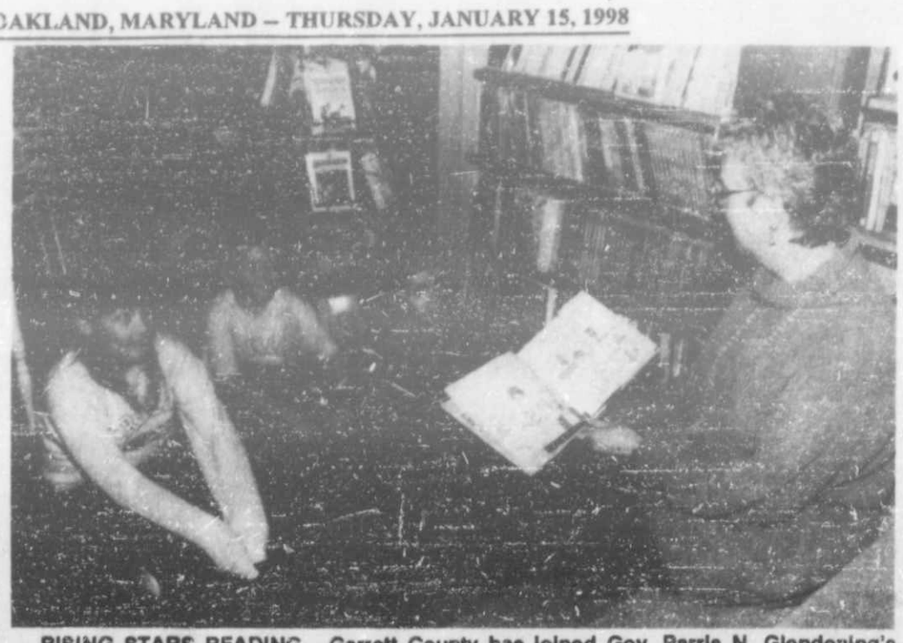
The Garrett County Sheriff's Office is investigating the theft of several pieces of mobile communications equipment from Beitzel Excavating in Oakland that occurred last week.

The loss to the local business is estimated at over $500, spread among two Cobra Classic LTD Citizen's band radios valued at $150 each, two external speakers valued at $39 each, and one bag cellular phone valued at $229. The devices were taken sometime between Wednesday and Friday from two dump trucks parked outside the business on Lumber City Road.

Thieves struck a second area business on Thursday night, as Tressler's Auto reported the theft of a child's battery-operated, riding four-wheeler from behind the shop in the 1400 block of Maryland Highway. The green and white Kawasaki Ninja four-wheeler had a value of $150, and belonged to the grandchild of an employee.

The Crime Solvers office is seeking information on these and any other investigations currently underway by law enforcement authorities. Citizens may reach Crime Solvers at 301-334-1975. Anonymous calls are accepted.

In other sheriff's news, Ervin Dale Brown, 36, Oakland, was charged with driving while intoxicated.



RISING STARS READING - Garrett County has joined Gov. Parris N. Glendening's challenge to each student to become "A Rising Star" by reading 10 books before the end of the school year. Schools, businesses, and members of the community are getting into the spirit of the effort, and around the county signs in front of stores flash messages to remind everyone of this challenge. Parents and neighbors in the community are signing up to go into schools to read or listen to students. At the Book Mark'et in Oakland Darlene Terlizzi participated by reading to, left to right, Chaz Lantz, Jacob Pike, and Derek Ludwig.

"Fill-In" Visit Of Bloodmobile Tops Expectations

A "fill-in" bloodmobile for the American Red Cross held at the American Legion, Proctor Kildow Post, Oakland, on January 2 did more than just "fill-in," according to Elizabeth Huxford, Garrett County Blood Services chairman.

"We were expecting about 50 people, planned for 65, had 80 show up and collected 74 productive units of blood," Huxford said. "We were thrilled to see all of these donors, especially after having such a good turnout just two weeks ago. Our records show approximately 600 people in this area have donated in the past. Between these two drives, 268 of them attempted to donate again. That's an incredible amount of support from this community!"

Over 10% of the donors were first-timers. They were: David Gilbert and Joretta Kuhn, both of Gormania, W.Va.; Donna Knox, Deer Park; Jerad Crouse, Westernport; and Jamie DeBerry, Janette Keller, Patricia Tusing, and Wendy Warnick, all of Oakland.

Milestones were reached by John Mauldin, who received a 1-gallon pin, Tom Matthews, who received a 2-gallon pin, and William Yoder who donated for the 32nd time to reach the 4-gallon mark.

Volunteers for this bloodmobile were: Don Forrester and Barb Sweitzer, registration; and Anne Forrester and Elizabeth Huxford, walkers and canteen.

"Special thanks goes out to the Proctor Kildow Post for providing the site and donating sandwiches for the canteen," Huxford said.

The bloodmobile will return to the Oakland Armory on Friday, Feb. 20, and to the Grantsville fire hall on March 2. Donors attending last Friday's bloodmobile are reminded that they will not be eligible to donate again so soon. Individuals can safely donate every 56 days.

Blood donors must be at least 17 years of age, weigh at least 105 pounds, and be in generally good health. Donor identification is important, so the Red Cross encourages individuals to bring their Red Cross donor card, driver's license, or other form of positive identification with them when they come to donate. Individuals with specific questions may contact the Red Cross toll-free at 1-800-54-BLOOD.

MVA On Wheels Brings Service To Western Md.

As part of Gov. Parris N. Glendening's customer service program for the Maryland Department of Transportation Motor Vehicle Administration (MVA), the MVA On Wheels mobile unit will make its next stop at Frostburg State University on Tuesday, Jan. 20, to serve customers in Garrett and Allegany counties.

MVA On Wheels is a converted Mass Transit Administration (MTA) bus that offers many of the same services as a full-service MVA office, including driver's license renewal, disabled persons' tags and placards, and tag returns.

The mobile service initiative is the result of a successful partnership between the MVA and the MTA.

"Families do not have time to conduct their government business when it is convenient for government," said Gov. Glendening. "Instead, we must make government services more convenient for people. MVA On Wheels will allow Marylanders to take care of their MVA business at times and locations that better fit their schedules and their busy lifestyles," he added.

MVA On Wheels will visit major employment centers and shopping areas around the state at regular intervals during the next several months. It will revisit Frostburg on Feb. 17, March 17, April 14, May 19, June 16, and July 21.

The bus will be located at 19 Braddock Street on the campus of FSU and be open 10 a.m. - 3 p.m.

Multiple Charges Filed By Police In Traffic Stop

Oakland Police made a routine traffic stop on Friday that resulted in multiple charges being filed.

The report stated that Richard S. Landis, 32, Mtn. Lake Park, was stopped for following another vehicle too closely. In addition to this violation, Landis was charged by the officer with operating an unregistered motor vehicle, operating an uninsured motor vehicle, displaying tags issued for another vehicle, and driving while intoxicated, the report said.

Landis was released on his own recognizance after being processed.

DWI

Randy S. Weeks, 41, Oakland, was charged with DWI last Thursday.

Friendsville Rd. Accident Sends Two To Hospital

An accident on Friendsville Road on Friday resulted in two people being transported to the hospital.

According to a report filed with Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, the incident occurred around 11 p.m. Sheila Fisher, 25, Bruceton Mills, W.Va., who was driving a 1985 Subaru, failed to stop/yield and was struck by a 1994 Ford Ranger driven by Robert Garlitz, 20, Terra Alta, W.Va., the report stated.

Northern and Southern rescue squads and the Friendsville VFD responded to the scene. Both drivers were taken by Northern Rescue Squad to Garrett Memorial Hospital, where they were treated and released.

Phone System Gives NHS Info; Calls Parents

Northern High School installed an automated phone system this year that provides information on school activities. It also has the capability to place outgoing calls to the homes of students.

"It's called the Bulletin Board," said Gary Reichenbecher, assistant principal at NHS, who is responsible for use and development of the system.

The caller can access recorded information on activities and policies at NHS by selecting from a menu and punching in four digits. "Right now we have the attendance policy, music department activities, athletic department activities, and information on the school discipline policy," Reichenbecker said.

He spoke of expanding this menu in the future to reflect interests of the community. "We are currently open to suggestions as to what people want to hear about," he added.

Aside from providing a bulletin board format of information, this automated system allows the school to keep in close touch with parents of the Northern High students, Reichenbecker noted.

On a daily basis, the name of each absentee is relayed to the student's home. "Each night we enter the name of each student who was absent. A recorded message is phoned to the home of each one," he advised. "The system can make 45-50 calls in an hour," he said.

The automated message system was used as a reminder to parents of the financial aid night that was held at the school. "We entered the name of every senior and a recorded reminder went to the home of each one. We had a cafeteria full that night and many parents said they would have forgotten without the phone reminder," Reichenbecker said.

This week a recorded note will go out to the home of each student with the message that report cards will be given out on Jan. 22.

He referred to the possibilities as limitless for the use of this system. "I don't think you can overdo getting parents involved and keeping them informed," he concluded.

Anyone wishing to access the Northern High School bulletin board may dial 301-746-8942. Suggestions for information to be included in the future may be directed to Reichenbecker or Martin Green, principal, at 301-746-8668.

THE JACOB ARMACOST FUND has been created to help offset the long-term medical expenses incurred by the family of Doug and Donna Armacost for their son Jacob shown above, who fell into a pool last June and nearly drowned. The Carroll County boy's father is a cousin of Oakland resident Pat Morfoot, who asks that local residents consider donating to the fund. With an initial goal of $100,000 in contributions to benefit Jacob's farm family which includes four sisters, the fund is currently seeking 503c status with the IRS so that the gifts will be tax deductible to the donors. Donations may be sent to The Jacob Armacost Fund, P.O. Box 430, Hampstead, MD 21074.

Town Hall

DEER PARK

The Deer Park mayor and council held the first town meeting of 1998 on Monday, Jan. 12.

•Sheriff Dick Sanders and Chief Deputy Gary Berkebile of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office met with the town officials to review law enforcement services provided by the sheriff's office. They offered to be available to meet with the council for discussions of problems and to seek resolutions.

•Speed limit signs will be posted at several points within the town. These will be installed soon on Main Street at the B&O railroad station; at the intersection of Edgewood Dr. and Main Street; and the intersection of Edgewood Dr. and Maryland Highway.

•Disruptions that resulted from installation of the new sewer system last summer continue to be addressed and remedied.

The next meeting will be held on Monday, Feb. 9.

Local Economic Picture Painted By Officials At Public Meeting

A public meeting was held last Thursday evening for the purpose of informing the residents of Garrett County about the economic status of the mountaintop. Delegate George Edwards called the meeting, with cooperation from James Hinebaugh, director of the county's economic development office, Senator John Hafer, and the Garrett County Commissioners.

The most significant item from the meeting was the apparently unplanned announcement of a Vermont glass-blowing company moving into the Bausch & Lomb facility (see separate story), but the majority of time was spent on other economic development information provided by Hinebaugh.

Edwards opened the meeting, explaining that he felt it important to keep the public informed on ongoing business developments in the county. He said he hopes to make the economic update a yearly event. The delegate commended the work of Hinebaugh and the county commissioners, and asked the crowd of approximately 200 guests to observe a moment of silence in honor of the late Roger Glotfelty, former chairman of the commissioner board, who died in December. Edwards said Glotfelty was partly responsible for a number of positive developments in the county and that his presence is greatly missed.

Hinebaugh opened his presentation with a report on the employment situation in Garrett County. He said the local unemployment rate is currently at about 11.7%, which constitutes 1,712 people. The average unemployment rate in Maryland is 4.5% and the national percentage is 4.3%.

"So even though the economy is the best it has been in 30 years, our unemployment rate is still alarming," Hinebaugh said. He said the average weekly wages in Maryland are $588, but in the county they are $393. The average family income statewide is $40,000. In Garrett, it is $25,000.

Locally, five areas of business and the percentage of persons working in those areas are as follows: services, 25%; retail, 21%; government, 15%; manufacturing, 13%; and construction, 7%. Wages by industry are as follows: manufacturing, $517/week; government, $506; construction, $392; services, $324; and retail trade, $241.

Hinebaugh said this break-down is "an important indicator" of the county's employment status. He said the areas expected to grow in the next several years are services and retail, mainly because of the expected growth in tourism.

Hinebaugh gave some examples of the causes of the lower employment rate in the county, consisting chiefly of the B&L closing. Approximately 387 direct jobs of county residents were lost, as were an additional 235 indirect jobs.

"These were some of the best jobs in the county," Hinebaugh reported, noting that the hourly pay was $9 to $10.

In addition to the B&L situation, other large businesses have initiated "downsizing" procedures. These include the coal and the banking industries.

More positive news was given in the area of businesses being initiated in the county.

"In the past two years, we have seen 27 new businesses start up," Hinebaugh reported. He said 14 of those were in the Deep Creek Lake area and five were in Grantsville. "This means about two thirds of the growth has been in the central to northern sections of the county." These businesses include fast food restaurants, the Foodland Fresh, Garrett 8 Cinemas, several car service operations, GRIC, and a Grantsville medical center.

He also reported that about 10 local businesses have undergone extensive expansions, hiring more people and actually adding space to their buildings. Among these businesses are Wood Products, Hobby House Press, Garrett Mine Supply, TDEC, and others.

Hinebaugh said grant money has been allotted to several of the businesses to help with their start-up or expansion costs. The Tri-County Council has issued six grants totaling $865,600, which has provided for 136 jobs. The Garrett County Development Corporation has issued three grants totaling $372,600 and providing 36 jobs. Other projects underway include the business "incubator" at Garrett Community College, which provides a start-up locale and other support to beginning companies, which then move out on their own.

Hinebaugh said the state of Maryland has helped the county extensively, with $3,339,000 already approved for various grant funding, and another $4,200,000 pending. This money has helped further develop the southern and northern industrial parks, has supported the new Small Animal Co-op, and has allowed for marketing work and feasibility studies in the county.

Hinebaugh listed the strengths in the county as the following: quality of life, affordable labor, available labor, a good work ethic, an excellent school system (among the top three to five in the state), natural beauty, and local cooperation among officials. He said Garrett Community College is also an asset to the county, terming it "a great partner."

Challenges to economic growth in the county, as Hinebaugh reported, include the need for the following: better infrastructure at industrial parks, a build up in the work force's skill base, a dispelling of outside misconceptions about Garrett County, basic improvements in accessibility, and a need for jobs with good pay and good benefits.

"There's no 'silver bullet' solution for the economic problems in the county," Hinebaugh said. "Solutions will take time — we need to be patient, but not too patient."

He said the county gets "great support" from the state, adding that Secretary James Brady "is here all the time and is very interested in seeing the county grow."

"Things are not all bad," Hinebaugh said. "We are making progress, but we still have lots to do."

Office Of Emergency Management Handles 22,835 Calls During 1997

Dispatchers at the Garrett County Office of Emergency Management remained busy in 1997, as they handled a total of 22,835 calls for assistance, according to statistics released this week by Brad Frantz, office director. The number was down about two percent from the 1996 total of 23,247, but Frantz pointed out that 1996 featured some events that could easily account for the difference.

"We had two declared disasters (snow/flood) in 1996 that probably accounted for a lot of the difference," Frantz said.

Of the total number of calls handled in 1997, 14,260 of them were classified as emergency calls, almost exactly the same number (14,271) for the previous year. The number of calls received over the 911 telephone line were also similar (7,072 for 1997, and 7,094 for 1996). Of the emergency calls received in 1997, 2,784 of them were in need of an ambulance/rescue squad, while 2,001 were for assistance from a local fire department.

The growing number of cellular telephones in vehicles and being carried by persons was revealed in the statistics, as the office received 1,250 calls from these phones in 1997, more than double the number (621) in 1996.

Dispatchers summoned units from the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad on 1,495 occasions, down from 1,512 in 1996, and dispatched Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad crews exactly 1,300 times, with Grantsville station units called 689 times, Accident crews 400 times, and Friendsville crews 211 times.

The Oakland Volunteer Fire Department responded to 342 requests for help, followed by the Deep Creek VFC, 336; Deer Park CVFD, 308; Friendsville VFD, 189; Eastern Garrett, 182; Grantsville, 165; Kitzmiller, 127; Gorman, 120; Bittinger, 101; Accident, 96; and Bloomington, 35.

A total of 95 different agencies, utility companies, and individual emergency service personnel were contacted by the office during 1997, with the following being the top in terms of numbers: Maryland State Police, 1,431 calls; Garrett County Sheriff's Office, 1,065; Garrett County Memorial Hospital, 503; Allegany County Civil Defense Office, 344; Home Health nurses, 302; county maintenance department, 217; Garrett County Sanitary Commission, 196; Animal Control, 177; Oakland City Police, 167; Emergency Management director, 161; Department of Natural Resources, 146; Garrett County Roads Department, 136; and Department of Social Services, 103.

The News is Good...

There were at least two favorable announcements in the local news this week: the appointment by Governor Glendening of Wayne Johnson as a Garrett County commissioner and the occupation of the former Bausch and Lomb site by a custom glass blowing company that will employ 150 persons.

In our tribute to the late Roger Glotfelty, Garrett County commissioner, we noted that, of all the attributes Roger brought to the commissioners' office, the most important ones were his integrity, his honesty, his openness, and his humility. We believe that Wayne Johnson likewise possesses these characteristics, and will thus pick up and carry the ball that Roger, unfortunately and through no control of his own, had to drop last month.

Wayne also brings with him a long, impressive record as an educator, having held the position of teacher, athletic coach, and principal. He performed extremely well in each of them, and since funding education is the largest single item on the county budget, we believe he will bring a fresh, positive perspective in that area.

The fact that he has also been employed in the business world at American Trust Bank, coupled with his involvement and leadership experience in numerous other capacities with agencies (including Hospice) and organizations (such as Lions Club), will also be major assets in his new job.

Secondly, we are elated at the decision by Simon Pearce Inc. to locate a plant in the former B&L facility. Not only will it bring sorely needed employment to the county, but the fringe benefits will include the likelihood of it becoming a major tourist attraction. The 150 jobs will perhaps be just the tip of the iceberg.

We appreciate the efforts of county economic development director Jim Hinebaugh, the county commissioners, and all others involved in working to attract business and industry to our county. We also strongly agree with them (and have said so in this column before) that it is wise to recruit businesses that employ scores of people rather than many hundreds (e.g., B&L), not only to provide diversity of em-ployment, but also to avoid a major hit to the local economy if a plant has to shut down (e.g., B&L).

Good luck, Wayne, and welcome, Simon Pearce.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I am a single parent in need of assistance. I tried to get help from Social Services and was turned down because I wouldn't move to Friendsville and leave my daughter with whomever or neglect her. If I did these things, then they would be able to take my daughter from me. Or maybe it's because I am a male and not a female.

Sincerely,

Garrett County Community Action Committee, Inc., wishes to express its appreciation to all the Community Action Head Starts, and Garrett County schools and churches that helped raise over 1,200 pounds of food for needy Garrett County residents in the Maryland Food Bank's "Harvest for the Hungry" campaign, and all the area businesses that donated prizes.

Because of the list of schools and businesses is so large, we do not wish to give names, as we do not want to overlook someone.

To the Editor:

The death of Brian Browning from melanoma points out a growing danger to each and every one of us. We remember seeing him, and our son, and a crowd of other little boys, marching in a Memorial Day parade, looking just alike in their Cub Scout uniforms. Since that day, cases of this deadly skin cancer have doubled in the United States.

Although melanoma is curable in its early stages, it is often fatal if it is not detected and treated soon. One help is that melanomas are colored darker than the surrounding skin. If you have a spot or mole that has changed, get it checked. If it hurts, bleeds, or itches; if it is larger than the eraser of a pencil; if it is more than one color; or if it is irregular in shape, or the color extends into the surrounding skin, make an appointment with your doctor without delay.

Check yourself often, and get someone else (or a well-lighted 3-way mirror) to check your back, since that is the most common site of melanoma.

To prevent melenoma, wear a sunscreen every day, and slather it on your children. Even a mild sunburn can hurt our skin's natural ability to fight dangerous cells. Repeated exposure to the sun makes us more likely to develop skin cancer later, especially for babies and children.

Please, for the sake of yourself and your loved ones, look and live.

To the Editor:

Back in the early stages of the space program, my father stated that every time they sent up a space ship the weather got bad until it returned. I always thought that that was an old fashioned view at something modern.

As the years went by and I watched the many launches of the space shuttle, I paid more attention to the weather, and I came to this belief: If "El Niño," with only a few degrees of variation in water temperature in the Pacific Ocean, can cause all the bad weather across this country, then what about this space shuttle?

If you take three tractor trailers loaded with 20 tons each, place them end to end, stand them on their end, and put enough rockets and fuel under them to launch them into outer space, the heat that was generated going through the stratosphere has to affect the weather. The large external fuel tank on that space shuttle has tons of fuel, plus those extra large external booster rockets will produce an extreme amount of heat that has to affect the atmosphere, jet stream, and the stratosphere.

All the news media believes that El Niño is the cause of our bad weather. I thought that it would be good to allow you to have another view that should be locked into. Maybe this is also causing the hole in the ozone layer.

This makes more sense to me than El Niño.

Thank you,

To the Editor:

Our community must once again deal with the loss of some very dear treasures with the passing of Roger Glotfelty, Elsie Sincell, and Brian Browning.

Each one was very special in different ways and each was a model that we would all do well to emulate. Roger restored our confidence in our local government at a time when it was sorely needed; his common sense approach, his sense of fairness, and his willingness to actually be the public servant that he was elected to be were traits that I wish for his successor.

Elsie lived such a full, abundant life and remains a tremendous example to us all as to how to approach life. Her work ethic, and her love for whatever she put her hands to do should teach all of us how to go about our business. I know full well of the mixed emotions the Sincell family feels at her passing, the sorrow of death tempered by the joy of her life and the assurance of her eternal riches. As my family nears an anniversary of our own loss, I remember the tremendous love and support that came so freely from Don, Bob and Mary. I trust they know it is reciprocal.

In Brian, there remains such a model of courage in the face of his circumstances, as he lived not in the fear of mortality, but in the quiet confidence of God's promise of immortality; committed to telling all who would listen about the peace that passes understanding.

They will all be greatly missed.

Sincerely,
Brad Frantz

To the Editor:

Well, since I wrote my letter about the Garrett County driving laws, I have gotten lots of suggestions about a couple of "laws" I failed to mention. I thought I would pass those along as well.

1. Signal lights are not required when making turns. It just confuses people to know where you may be going. Signal lights are permitted when you have absolutely no intention of making any turns for the next 5 miles.

2. When driving south on Rt. 219 from the lake area where the two-lane traffic begins at Little Sandy's, regardless of how fast you were driving, you must speed up to keep anyone behind you from passing. You also should never move into the right lane, which would allow someone to pass easier. If someone does attempt to pass on the right, you must keep increasing your speed until they clean out the ditch at the top of the hill where the right lane runs out. If you have been successful in keeping them from passing, you may again slow down to whatever speed you want.

As for me, I have been doing my best to remind people to turn on their lights when it is rainy or foggy. I have taken to blinking my lights and it seems drivers do one of 4 things.

* They turn on their lights.
* They slow down, thinking I am warning them about radar and don't turn on their lights.
* They totally ignore me assuming I have a short in my own lights.
* They thank me by telling me I am Number 1! (I guess that is what that finger means.)

At any rate, I am sure there may still be some I have missed and, if like last time, I will hear about them and I will pass them along as well.

To the Editor:

We are among the most blessed people on this earth. Often, as we face economic difficulty resulting from a challenged regional economy and as we endure the harsh continental climate of western Maryland, we forget to give thanks for our many blessings. Day after day we drive upon the same roads and forget to lift our eyes to see that we live in God's most beautiful garden.

Never can we walk along Garrett County's serene country roads and not fill our nostrils and ourselves with the winds of wood-burning stoves or that undefinable mixture of scents created by mountainous forest. We can hear our children's laughter as they are free to play safely. At the post office and the bank, we know the face behind the counter. While grocery shopping, we pass by many friends and acquaintances. At local businesses, we are patrons of many with whom we have grown up. This is community, and, for this I give many thanks.

I have just returned from traveling abroad for six months. Though I learned an unmeasurable amount, experienced more of God's earthly blessings, and met many beautiful people, returning home to Garrett County has filled my soul with comfort, love, and appreciation. I now realize the blessings which, for many years, I failed to notice.

The world is chaotic and violent. People are greedy, short-sighted, and shallow. Many look to satisfy their wants, forgetting respect and God. Cities serve as a melting pot of these evils and their entrapments. While Garrett County serves as a haven for those of us fearing this threat. Though we often face difficulty, we are surrounded in a much different luxury.

We must never forget our blessings. Whether we were born and raised here, lived here for many years, or are just moving here, we are lucky to call these mountains of the Appalachian range our home. We need to walk with respect for our Mother Earth and for our follow neighbors. We must always give thanks to the Most High and follow a path of goodness. Then, Garrett County will remain our haven. Then, we can continue to endure with pride.

This is a letter of thanks. Thank you for a wonderful community and a place to truly be at home, and I give thanks to God to be so blessed.

With respect,
Sherry Lebowitz

To the Editor:

The decision to remove prayer from our schools began June 25, 1962 in a Supreme Court decision (Eagel v. Vitale) that overturned the ruling of all lower courts' decisions, and effectively outlawed a simple prayer in a public school.

George Washington stated in his farewell address at the close of eight years as president: "Of all the dispositions and habits which lead to political prosperity, religion and morality are indispensable supports . . . and let us with caution indulge the supposition that morality can be maintained without religion . . . Reason and experience both forbid us to expect that national morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principles."

As a good example, in 1962 the S.A.T. total scores of American students stood at an average of 980 points. By 1980, that average had fallen to 890. This decline averaged approximately 5% for 18 years. It had been basically stable for the previous 10 years, and improved slightly after 1980.

The Bible is the only book that reaches man's highest aspirations. Many persons have attempted to satisfy their aspirations without being in touch with the true and living God, and His principles, and failed.

God and Judeo-Christian religion are under attack by our government, the judicial system, the liberal media, the satanic New Age agenda, and our educational system. Christian teachings promote honesty, truthfulness, kindness, no alcohol or drugs, hard working, and self-supporting charitable people. Now the other is being cultivated. We are reaping murders, thieves, rapists, violence, and elicit drugs out of control. The handwriting is on the wall; can't we see only Jesus is the answer?

King Solomon, King of Israel, was the wisest and richest man who ever lived (I Kings 10:23-25). He sought the Lord for guidance (I Kings 3:9-13). He was respected by all nations, and his kingdom was blessed as no other. Silver laid on the streets in Jerusalem like stones in Solomon's day (I Kings 10:27). The gold that came to him in one year was $127,872,000. Our U.S.A.'s annual deficit for 1997 was 23 billion. One king sought the true, living, and faithful God, that changes not. The other is the way that seems right to a man, but the end thereof is the way of death. Why was King Solomon, and his successful kingdom, never taught in secular history? When this nation was greatest blessed, the Bible was a school text book.

Which way will America choose?

Which way will you choose?

Respectfully,
Homer Mellott

of the committee established to select a text for the newly developed AP history course. The committee recommended A People and A Nation.

Once the recommendation was made, according to board policy, the text and supplemental materials were to be put on display for public review and comment. After receiving the recommendation of the committee, board members voted to also place on display additional books, which had been reviewed and not recommended by the committee.

Miller addressed the board Tuesday night on behalf of the text book selection group. She reviewed written public comments, which had been submitted.

She addressed criticism of the text, A People and a Nation, noted by several respondents that it did not include founding documents and works of the "founding fathers" of the United States. Miller pointed out that primary source documents were contained in the appendix of the text as well as in the supplementary readers.

The subject of "readability" was also considered. Miller noted that the recommended text was written on a 16th grade level, while the source books put forth by the board were rated 12th and 14th grade levels. "We want to challenge our students," Miller stated, noting a related board-established criteria for a text selection.

Several members of the community commented on a deviation from the established policy and procedure by the board recommending books. "I encourage the board to question. But in this case the procedure seems to go against the policy," said Sheila Edwards.

A change in the process was suggested by several who were present. "When the process began, the books should have been put on review," Lisa Whittemore said.

"I recommend that if this happens again, the books be put on display at the libraries," David Insley suggested.

Student board member Karlo Gesner was asked to give comment on behalf of himself and other students who had reviewed the materials. He said they had found the recommended text to be most challenging and well written. "It really makes you think," he said.

"Before you go against the committee, see if there is a preponderance of evidence against the recommendation," assistant superintendent Al Coviello said, noting there is a committee process established.

Dr. Teets said he found the process of selection and input to be detailed and complete. "In the five school systems in which I've worked, I've never seen the process of text book selection so well documented and researched. I recommend we take the texts recommended by the committee," he said.

Board member Rodney Durst addressed the issue raised by some that the committee text was too liberal. He identified himself as a life-long conservative. "But I'm not afraid of opposing views," he said. Arguments in the classroom make students think, he noted. "My desire is to have worldly-wise children. I believe in thinking skills. Let the arguments begin," he said.

Riley commented on the bias he believed to be in the text. "I found it to be liberally biased," he stated noting that many people "would not want to spend tax dollars on it."

The vote to accept the recommended text passed. Charlotte Sebold cast the only dissenting vote, without comment.

student returns the bookmark to then receive a special certificate from Glendening.

After his visit to Broad Ford Elementary, the governor will proceed to Wood Products, Inc., for a tour of that facility. This is to take place at about 4:30 p.m. Glendening will then move on to the Garrett County Courthouse, where he will attend the swearing-in ceremony for the new county commissioner, Wayne Johnson. The governor appointed Johnson to the county seat last week. David Martin, clerk of Garrett County Circuit Court, will officially swear Johnson in to his new position.

Also to be present at the proceedings are Commissioners Gary Fratz and Wayne Wilt, and several members of Johnson's family.

Following the ceremony, the entourage will proceed to Uno's Restaurant for a private reception hosted by the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce. Also slated to be present at the reception is Simon Pearce, the new employer planning to open a branch of his glass-blowing manufacturing company in the former Bausch & Lomb facility.

Glendening is slated to depart at approximately 7:15 p.m. On Saturday morning, he is to attend the Maryland Coal Association Breakfast at the Penn Alps Restaurant, Grantsville. He will then travel east, heading for Cumberland for various functions, ending with his attendance at the Cumberland Country Club Snow Ball.

$100 of assessed property value. But Edwards does not favor that proposal because, he said, that tax goes to pay the state's bonded indebtedness, and the state's "Circuit Breaker Law" assists low income and senior citizens.

"I think if we really want to help people, we would be looking at cutting the income tax," he said.

Edwards also stated that, even though a year with surplus money may seem like a good time to initiate new state programs, he cautioned that, except for "one-shot deals," it would be unwise to put, say, $60 million into a new program that needs continual funding throughout the years to maintain it.

"Or maybe we could even put some of it in the bank, the state's Rainy Day Fund," he added.

Education

Maryland Governor Parris N. Glendening is expected to propose spending in excess of $200 million on school construction, a significant increase over last year's $150 million, with a large portion going to Prince George's County. He is also expected to put forth a new state scholarship program for students in science and technology fields.

Delegate Edwards reported that Garrett County should receive a "significant" increase in its education funding of somewhere in the neighborhood of $300,000 to $400,000. He has aligned himself with State Superintendent of Schools Nancy Grasmick's proposal that would, he believes, be a more equitable sharing of state funding by all the state's jurisdictions.

Health

Edwards reported that he and his colleagues would also be debating the merits of a program that would provide health insurance for uninsured pregnant women and children after a similar effort last year, known as "Thriving By Three," passed in the House of Delegates but died in a conference committee.

Since the federal government has adopted a similar program, the state would be able to take advantage of the $61 million offered by the federal government for uninsured children by matching funds from the state in the amount of $29.4 million.

This type of community effort will help to keep

Volunteers Unite, Pull 25,000 Feet Of Wire Through Accident School

by Peggy Santamaria

The time was 8 a.m.; the day was Saturday. Vehicles began filling the parking spaces in front of Accident Elementary School. Members of the volunteer squad began filing into the school for a day of community effort. The uniform of the day: blue jeans and sweatshirts. The mission: pull 25,000 feet of wire through the building.

Following a national model, a Garrett County initiated Weekend Net Event brought members of the community into classrooms to lay the groundwork (or ceiling work) needed for computer link-ups in the Accident Elementary School classrooms.

The wire pullers who climbed ladders, moved ceiling tiles, installed outlets, and performed all the work essential to this endeavor were retired Bell Atlantic employees who were assisted by employees of the Garrett County Board of Education and several parents.

Chuck Trautwein, computer resource teacher, with the assistance of Dusty Stanton, library resource teacher, coordinated this comprehensive effort. "The purpose of the net weekend is to wire infrastructure for computer, video, and voice and to bring access to the Internet into each classroom," Trautwein said.

Last year a similar project was completed at Broad Ford Elementary School. That undertaking was funded through a grant, Trautwein said, with a cost that ran about $30,000 to $40,000. The Accident project has cost about $4,000. The big difference in cost is the volunteerism from community members.

Trautwein explained how the volunteer effort came about. Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent of Garrett County schools, had told Trautwein about a computer wiring project in a school system he had worked in previously. In that case, Bell Atlanic retirees had volunteered the time and expertise.

Coincidentally, a local group of Bell Atlantic retirees had been interested in finding a project for which they, as a group, could volunteer assistance. Even more coincidentally, a member of this group of retirees was Buck Trautwein, father of Chuck. "I approached my father about this," he said. And the rest, as they say, is history.

The senior Mr. Trautwein noted that the project fit the bill of what his group was interested in doing. "We all have breakfast together once a month in order to keep in touch. We talked about the project and decided it would be a good one," he said. This was the first major undertaking of this sort that his group had handled.

Were all his volunteers experienced in this type of work? "Some of these people did work in the field, but others were in the office," he explained. But on Saturday, everyone was "in the field."

There is a state mechanism that would eventually pay for bringing schools to the state standard of technology. "The state mechanism could take five years to get the schools wired for computers. With the pace that technology is moving, we can't afford to wait that long," Trautwein said.

There was no waiting going on Saturday at Accident Elementary School, where the dust was flying and people were bustling from classroom to classroom. Rows of ladders lined hallways supporting torso-less bodies that disappeared into the ceilings. Tiles had been moved aside and wires were being fed from one worker to the next in the relay of conduit from main source to classroom outlet.

Among the debris and clutter Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent of Garrett County schools, worked away diligently, cutting neatly through drywall and pulling wires through outlets. His blue sweatshirt was powdered with drywall dust.

Dr. Teets said he was pleased with the project and would like to involve the community in future undertakings like this one in Accident. "We would like to do all the schools this way," he said, referring to the community volunteers.

School principal Sandy Nesline stepped nimbly over wire as she helped feed it to installers. She said she was very pleased with all the help that people were giving. She pointed out various workers, including parents, teachers, students, and a Frostburg student who will be interning in the Garrett County school system. "These people really know what they are doing. They are very organized," she said.

Rob Sharps of the Advisory Committee on Education (ACE) said the group has been very interested in encouraging access to technology in the schools. "This is going to be a real contribution to education and to administration in the schools," he said.

The volunteer effort on Saturday underscored the willingness of the local community to invest time in education. "The community needs to support the school system and this is an example of doing just that," Sharps noted.

Things were back to normal at the school by the time buses arrived Monday morning. At 7 a.m. Tuesday, the volunteers were back. "They were finishing up with putting on some of the plates," Nesline said. "The children are really excited about this," she added.

Sharps, Trautwein, and Dr. Teets all spoke of hoping to carry this volunteer effort to wire schools throughout the county. They said they hope to find volunteers in each community who will offer to come in for a day and help out.

Garrett County classrooms on a par technologically with others across the state and nation. This idea was noted by all involved in the project.

Those who volunteered their time included parents Rodney Glotfelty, Tom Rosser, and Glen Seaman; custodians Tom Stemple and Doug Miller; Bell Atlantic retirees Clarence Stem, Jim Crabtree, Dick Kitzmiller, Audie Friend, Jim Miller, Neil Dunham, Thelma O'Brien, and Bill Neimith; and Joe Fink, a Bell Atlantic employee.

Among the board of education employees taking part in the day's activities were Mark Ravenscroft, Charlie Pariseau and son Mike, Beth Shaffer, and Dale Kimble and his wife Ellen.

Registration For Evening Classes At SHS Postponed

Registration for evening classes at Southern High School, originally scheduled for this evening, has been postponed until next Wednesday, Jan. 21, according to Tom Woods, coordinator. Persons should report to the main office of the school between 6 and 9 p.m. that evening.

Classes which were originally slated to begin January 21 will now begin Monday, Jan. 26.

GLAF Announces Discount Tickets For Performances

The Garrett Lakes Arts Festival is offering advance tickets for all 1998 GLAF performances at a 10 percent discount.

Discount tickets for reserved seats must be ordered by mail or phone at least two weeks prior to each performance. Mail orders should be directed to the GLAF Box Office, P.O. Box 151, McHenry, MD 21541, and phone orders can be made by calling 301-387-3082.

Regular admission prices for most GLAF performances are $8 for adults and $4 for youth ages 18 and under. Classical Music Series performances will be $15 for adults and $8 for youth.

The GLAF season will begin with a performance by the University of Maryland Symphony Wind Ensemble on April 26. Some of the events slated through the season include a production of "1776" by the Garrett Choral Society, a performance by the Duquesne University Tambouritzans, and performances by Brenda Brosnihan and Troupe and Betty Mattingly and Friends, as well as the Classical Music Ensemble and Symphony at Deep Creek Lake. The season concludes with a free performance by the U.S. Navy Band 'Country Current' on Sept. 5.

In Loving Memory of our Dad
who passed away Jan. 16, 1997

A million times we've thought of you
A million times we've cried.
If our love could have saved you
You never would have died.
It's so lonesome here without you
We miss you every day.
Our hearts still ache with sadness
Since the day you passed away.
To some you may be forgotten
To others part of the past
But to those of us who love you
Your memory will always last.

"It will be an honor and a privilege to represent the people of Garrett County and continue the efforts in growth and expansion under controlled circumstances," Johnson stated. "I'm very eager and excited about the appointment and ready to get started on the task ahead of me. I will do the best I can for the people of Garrett County, our staff, and employees. In all these actions, I will make the very best decisions possible for our citizens."

Johnson will be sworn into office on Friday at the Garrett County Courthouse at approximately 5:25 p.m. Glendening is to be present for the ceremony.

Bear Season

by the black bear have been pushing for such a season for many years. The impetus, however, seems to have become stronger in the past few years as the resident bear population has increased, according to DNR sources. And the concept gained even more ground since the recommendations of the Black Bear Task Force were released two years ago.

One of those recommendations was to "allow for bear population reduction by hunting bears in limited areas where the population has exceeded cultural carrying capacity . . . defined as a function of the tolerance of humans to the presence of bears, or the maximum number of bears that people will allow to coexist with local human populations."

The hunting program, along with any other monetary contributions, would fund the Black Bear Damage Compensation Program, according to the release. The task force also called for more emphasis on education and technical support from DNR, as well as the establishment of the damage compensation program.

To help fund the compensation program, DNR created a bear stamp to be sold as a souvenir, and contributed a $10,000 start-up fund. But, according to Edwards, the stamp was not a success and farmers are still only receiving about 40% in reimbursement for damage by bears.

"People are shooting bears illegally right now with .22 caliber rifles and the wounded bears are wandering off to neighbors' yards to die," said Edwards. "They're also poisoning them with antifreeze, which other animals could have access to."

Edwards believes that a limited bear hunting season would put a stop to that kind of cruelty, and stressed that the plan would not allow for an open hunting season. He has also stated that if DNR does not deal with the bear problem, he would recommend the bears be relocated throughout every county in the state.

In the meantime, he said, he will hold the bill until he sees what DNR officials "have on their mind."

wide variety of new businesses," he said.

The deal with Simon Pearce has reportedly been in the making for at least three months, with officials from all parts of the state working on the project. Lynch said the "R" in George Edwards's name "must stand for 'relentless' because that's what he has been on this issue."

"The effort to get a new operation here has been a top priority," Lynch said, also lauding the attention given by Governor Parris Glendening and DBED Secretary James Brady. He commended the work of the Garrett County Commissioners and James Hinebaugh, director of the Garrett County Office of Economic Development.

"We made a commitment to residents of Garrett County that we would do everything in our power to fill the plant left vacant by Bausch & Lomb," Governor Glendening stated on Friday. "I think we are well on our way with this announcement of these 150 new jobs."

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce issued a statement Thursday evening after the announcement, also lauding the work of all those involved in the project. In addition to thanking those individuals, the chamber also noted thanks to Simon Pearce "for the confidence it has shown in the future of Garrett County by deciding to locate a plant here. We know this choice was not made lightly," the statement reads.

Many references were made to the late Commissioner Roger Glotfelty, commending his work in obtaining new business for the county. Delegate Edwards, in fact, asked for a moment of silence in honor of the late chairman of the board.

Edwards said the announcement about Simon Pearce was not necessarily planned because he had not wanted to announce anything "without having the dotted line signed." Lynch apparently worked all day Thursday to get all signatures needed to proceed with the announcement.

Other items discussed during the meeting included business expansions and prospects in the county, with information provided chiefly by Hinebaugh. Edwards commented that the 1995 closing of B&L was a "devastating blow," but that the outcome will eventually be positive for the county.

Spencer, who recently retired after 18 years as the executive director of the Western Maryland AHEC, was cited for his "distinctive efforts" to promote and/or improve rural health care, leadership, involvement in the community, and lasting contributions to health care. During his tenure, the AHEC grew from two to 18 employees. Its clinical education program, in which health professions students are provided with housing and matched with rural practitioners in the area, has grown from serving solely the University of Maryland School of Medicine to numerous schools and disciplines. As a result, over 40 percent of these students, one of whom was Dr. Peg Kaiser, began their practices in rural or small-town settings. Other programs and services of the AHEC have also been expanded during Spencer's years with the organization.

The Maryland Rural Health Association is a non-profit membership organization of providers and consumers whose primary mission is to advocate for the preservation and improvement of health for rural Maryland residents. The fourth annual Rural Health Conference, sponsored by the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, Office of Rural Health, the MRHA, and the Rural Health Conference Planning Coalition, was attended by over 50 individuals from a variety of professions that impact rural health care.

proposal that would allow Marylanders to decide the issue of legalizing gambling in the form of a November referendum.

However, Delegate Edwards said he would be in favor of the state-wide referendum only on the condition that counties voting yes on the question would have the legalized gambling, and that counties who did not favor it would not be forced to do so.

The proposal is reportedly being opposed by Governor Glendening and some key senators.

Attempted ATM Break-in; Police Seek Information

Two attempts were made to break into an automated teller booth in Garrett County last weekend. Allegany and Garrett county law officers are investigating.

The attempts occurred at the Bloomington office of WEPCO Federal Credit Union sometime after noon on Saturday and again on Sunday.

Maryland State Police ask that anyone with information on the incident contact the McHenry barrack at 301-387-1101 or 301-895-1101.

Food For Thought

Easy salad from a can? Sure—combine canned kidney beans (rinse and drain well to cut the sodium content), a can of salmon, chopped scallion and flat-leaf parsley; toss with vinaigrette.

Low-calorie, low-fat dessert: a homemade gelatin dessert of apple cider and unflavored gelatin, with a touch of sugar and a kick of Calvados or other apple brandy. Serve with Champagne grapes.

Mashed avocado is a terrific sandwich spread that takes the place of butter, margarine or mayonnaise with a quarter of the fat and calories of the ordinary spreads.

You can't substitute baking soda for baking powder or vice versa. Baking powder contains baking soda plus a starch to absorb moisture and an acidic ingredient such as calcium phosphate.

Most common is double-acting baking powder. It works twice: when it comes in contact with liquid ingredients, and again when the batter is exposed to oven heat.

Former Kitzmiller Resident Observes 100th Birthday

JOSEPHINE PRATT

Josephine Pratt, who gave birth to five of her nine children while living in Kitzmiller from 1921 to 1944, celebrated her 100th birthday recently. Over 200 family members from several states, Canada, and Italy joined Mrs. Pratt for her centennial celebration at the Cresaptown fire hall.

Born Nov. 9, 1897, during a visit by her parents to Brazil, Mrs. Pratt was the daughter of residents of Calabria, Italy. She was raised in Calabria, located in southern Italy, until her family's immigration to the United States in 1910. Upon arriving in this country, the family settled in Eckhart, in Allegany County.

An arrangement was made by her parents for Josephine to marry Michael Pratt, an Italian immigrant also residing in Eckhart. The couple was married Aug. 25, 1912, and remained married for 64 years until his death in 1977.

The Pratts and their young family, four children and counting, moved to Kitzmiller in 1921, where Michael Pratt found work as a coal miner. During the years they lived in Kitzmiller, the Pratts were part of a small, close-knit community of approximately a dozen Italian families.

The family resided in their Spring Street home through the years of the Great Depression, during which they kept a small garden, a milk cow and a couple of hogs on four acres of ground less than a mile outside of town towards North Hill.

Two of the five children born in Kitzmiller still reside in Garrett County, Fred Pratt of Deer Park and Dominic Pratt of Swanton. The two brothers recently recalled that their parents spoke quite a bit of Italian to each other at home, and that the family was active in the town's Immaculate Conception Catholic Church. The Pratt boys also said that their mother was known for her fabulous cooking, especially spaghetti and meatballs. The family left Kitzmiller to return to Allegany County in 1946.

Five of the seven boys born to the Pratts served in World War II, and all nine of Mrs. Pratt's children are alive to this day. She also has 36 grandchildren, 52 great-grandchildren and 11 great-great grandchildren. She currently resides in Cresaptown, sharing a house with her daughter Ethel Lease.

Verkouteren Couple Takes Vows

Jeannette Lois Sweitzer and John Steven Verkouteren were joined in marriage at The Inn at Buckeystown on Sept. 13.

The Reverend Ted Keckler officiated at the ceremony, which was written by the couple.

The bride is the daughter of Bob Sweitzer, Frederick. The groom is the son of Bob and Rita Verkouteren, Chevy Chase and Swanton.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a designer gown made of ivory satin brocade with a modified halter neckline and princess seams. Formal length ivory gloves complemented the ensemble.

The bride's floral arrangement, designed by Bea Crosco of Flowers by Weber, consisted of roses, orchids, delphiniums, and carnations arranged in a cascade bouquet.

Rita Kerns, Oakland, was the matron of honor. She wore an informal pink dress trimmed with lace. Mike Verkouteren, Darnestown, was the best man. The groom and best man wore navy blue double-breasted blazers designed by Goeffrey Beene.

Lydia Verkouteren, niece of the groom, was the flower girl. Bryan Verkouteren, nephew of the groom, was the ringbearer.

Following the outdoor ceremony, a dinner reception was held in the dining room at The Inn at Buckeystown. The wedding cake, created by Ramona Sweitzer, was two tiers, covered with ivory icing and patterned with yellow and ivory ribbons and roses.

A reception was also held in the couple's honor on Sept. 21 by the groom's parents at their home on Deep Creek Lake. Food was provided by chef Charles Fox. He had donated his services to be auctioned at the Red Cross 1996 Auction, which were then purchased by the bride. Don Sincell and Jack Jones donated their services as waiters, also via the Red Cross Auction.

After a honeymoon in New England, the couple located in Oakland.

Jeannette is a graduate of Pelham High School, Pelham, N.H., St. Joseph School of Nursing, Davis and Elkins College, and Garrett Community College, and is a 1997 graduate of Marymount University, Arlington, Va., with a master of science degree in nursing. She is employed by Dr. P.D. Miller as a family nurse practitioner and is also self-employed as a nurse consultant.

Steve attended Unity College, Unity, Maine, West Virginia University, and University of Colorado, and is a 1985 graduate of the University of Pittsburgh, with a bachelor of science degree in physical therapy. He is employed as a physical therapist by Rehab Solutions, Cumberland.

FALLEN

Rated R - Running time: 2:03

Denzel Washington has distinguished himself time and time again as a thoughtful actor, but he is running the risk of becoming typecast as the straight-arrow, good-guy type. Even when he has played criminals, such as in the first half of Malcolm X (before he discovered the Nation of Islam), he still only managed to mask this image with a thin attempt at delinquency; it was not difficult for his character to see the light and turn over a new leaf. And he has offered no surprises here, either. His character in Fallen, detective John Hobbes, is perhaps his most boring yet, or at least a tie with that of Courage Under Fire, but he plays it with predictable Denzel honesty.

The script for this psychological thriller, however, written by Nicholas Kazan and directed by Gregory Hoblit, is really made to keep you on the edge of your seat, and it is the antagonist dogging Hobbes that takes the lead role and has the lion's share of characterization. And the most brilliant thing is that this antagonist is never actually seen as itself. It is played by scores of actors of both sexes, all with fewer than 20 lines, who pass the character around among themselves like a hot potato. What an incredible device.

Hobbes is a cop who is not only fiercely proud of his profession, but of the fact that he has never taken even the slightest advantage of his situation for personal gain. As I said, a typical Denzel character. But when he sends a maniacal serial killer (briefly but excellently characterized by Elias Koteas) to the gas chamber, the man utters some unintelligible ancient language just before he dies, and Hobbes's life changes at that moment. The evil spirit, or fallen angel, who had been possessing the body of the criminal, moves on to its next host, a prison guard. And a few minutes later, when the guard touches another person, it travels into his body. In an eerie game of tag, we see it travel from stranger to stranger throughout the city, transferring itself every time physical contact is made. So we know it's still alive. And it has a grudge against John Hobbes.

What follows is a thrill ride that doesn't let up for most of the movie. Disaster courses recklessly through Hobbes's life, affecting everyone he knows, from his partner Jonesy (John Goodman), and their chief, Lieutenant Stanton (Donald Sutherland), among many others. The only way to find out what is going on is to consult with Gretta Milano (Embeth Davidtz), the daughter of a cop mentioned by the dying prisoner, a cop who had been decorated for meritorious service but ended up committing suicide under scandalous circumstances.

This is an absolutely fascinating plot, but there is a point in the middle of the movie where one can feel a palpable loss of momentum. It takes a good while for director Hoblit to get it to pick up again, but the conclusion is very intense with a quite unexpected twist at the end. There is no really outstanding performance except perhaps that of Koteas, but there are no terrible ones, either. Washington, Goodman, and Sutherland are all good actors, but they seem to be just putting in time here.

Fallen is the kind of movie that will keep you up at night (probably singing Rolling Stones tunes), or make you look deeply into the eyes of your spouse or lover to make sure they're the right person. Despite a lackluster performance by Washington and a long dead spot in the middle, it does not fail to thrill and chill, and if that is your cup of tea, it comes highly recommended. ★★★★

GOOD WILL HUNTING

Rated R - Running time: 2:06

What do you do with a genius who wants to be a regular guy? Apparently, you call Robin Williams.

In this very touching drama set in Cambridge, Mass., the brain capital of the United States, home of Harvard and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT), reality of story combines with reality of performance to give us some of the most heartfelt emotions currently on the big screen. Liberal use of improvisation, which is Williams's trademark, helps this film immensely, and he turns in one of his best performances, much more understated than his usual over-the-top style. Matt Damon, who made an excellent showing in The Rainmaker, has perhaps topped that performance here. And Minnie Driver, who plays his love interest, comes very close to stealing the show with her own impeccable performance.

Will Hunting (Damon), a janitor working in the hallowed halls of MIT, is a voracious reader and mathematician to whom the complex formulas studied at his place of employment come naturally. He is not a student, however, because he was never guided in that direction. He was an orphan who was abused as a child, and as he grew he learned to fight his way out of difficult situations. He has a group of friends who are all of the same ilk, with one exception: they are not geniuses.

When Will figures out the answer to a complex bonus test question written on the hallway chalkboard and intended for any student who wanted to try it, his talent is discovered by the renowned Professor Lambeau (Stellan Skarsgard). But when Lambeau tries to get Will to apply his Einstein-like abilities, Will is uninterested. He likes his life with his friends and considers people who rise to the top to be pompous phonies. He prefers the idea of having a more "noble" profession, like that of a janitor. Unfortunately, he even loses that job when he is arrested for assault resulting from one of his habitual gang fights.

So Lambeau calls up Sean McGuire (Williams), an old friend who teaches psychology at a small community college nearby. And from then on, he and Will spend their time trying to out-psych each other while Will develops a relationship with a Harvard girl named Skylar (Driver).

This is obviously intended to be a "feel good" movie, with its emotional journeys and interconnection between the characters, but I think its best feature is the improvisation sprinkled liberally throughout the script. One wonders if there even was a script for some of the scenes. This can be disasterous with the wrong actors, but with the help of director Gus Van Sant Jr., these folks pull it off brilliantly. The brotherly, inter-abusive camaraderie between Will and his friends, Chuckie (Ben Affleck), Billy (Cole Hauser), and Morgan (Casey Affleck), has not been seen since Diner. (The script was actually co-written by Damon and Ben Affleck.) And Will's relationship with Skylar is especially fun to watch; the two have completely given themselves over to the situation and obviously enjoy each other immensely (and it doesn't hurt that Damon and Driver apparently established an offscreen romance during production). I do not think it would be out of line for Driver to be nominated for the Best Supporting Actress Oscar for this performance.

The movie does drag in parts, though, and toward the end meanders somewhat. The long-awaited "moment of connection" between Will and Sean is overly simplistic, and, although it is played with deep emotion by Damon, the script fails to convince. The resolution of the relationship between Will and Skyler is also rather anticlimactic. We know what's going to happen, but we are cheated out of seeing it, so the effect is a sort of teaser with no payoff.

With Good Will Hunting, one is left just a little disappointed in a movie that is absolutely excellent in many parts, but loses its way and fizzles out prematurely. ★★★★

WAG THE DOG

Rated R - Running time: 1:35

Remember all those people in the '70s who believed that the Apollo moon landing was faked? Well, here's a film with that attitude. How, it asks, do we know that we won the Gulf War? That there even was a Gulf War? We simply believed what came flying out of our televisions, courtesy of CNN. The media, that evil, corrupt entity, killer of Lady Diana, has us all over a barrel.

It's presidential election time. Days left, and the approval ratings gap between the incumbent (never seen) and his challenger (Craig T. Nelson) is critically close. Then, catastrophe: a sex scandal involving the president. (Since when has that been a problem?) So how do we, the committee to re-elect, deal with this -- how do we draw attention away from the scandal and widen the gap? Why, it's simple: We'll tell the media there's a war against Albania, win it, and make the president the hero.

Conrad Bream (Robert DeNiro) is a spin doctor who is an expert at creating such theatre. "It's not a war," he says when questioned about his radical plan. "It's a pageant." When presidential aide Winifred Ames (Anne Heche) hires him to make this scandal go away, he goes to famed movie producer Stanley Motss (Dustin Hoffman). Between the two of them, and with the help of several of Stanley's friends in the business, a plan is hatched that will save the election -- but no one is ever allowed to talk about their participation, including the egotistical Stanley, who continually gripes about the injustice of being an unsung movie producer. "There's no Oscar for Producer," he complains.

They hire a songwriter (Willie Nelson) to write patriotic songs, a fashion designer (Andrea Martin) to design dashing uniforms for the special forces, a merchandizing specialist (Denis Leary) to come up with slogans, hats, and various gimmicks, and they create a national anti-Albania movement, complete with an American POW played by Woody Harrelson.

The script for Wag The Dog, written by David Mamet & Hilary Henkin, based on the book American Hero by Larry Beinhart, is fun but not very believable. As the team continues to encounter disasterous roadblocks to their plan, they are always able to bounce back with incredible agility. In his reactions to the many problems, Stanley's ever-optimistic motto "This is nothing!" is run so far into the ground it ceases to be funny. The constant brainstorming between Stanley and Conrad is quite interesting to watch, but their Mutual Admiration Society grows tiresome.

Hoffman and DeNiro have no trouble with these roles, of course, although Hoffman is obviously straining to distance Stanley from his similar character in the recent Mad City. His arrogance masked with false humility is fun to watch because at some time or other we have all known or worked with this type of phony. DeNiro fails to make it through this movie without being responsible for any deaths, but his character is enjoyably un-tough. Harrelson's take on the criminal cast as war hero is somewhat off the mark; his character comes off more cartooney than it was meant to be, but unfortunately director Barry Levinson didn't interfere with this. Heche's characterization is also a little scatter-brained for what her job is supposed to be; I can't imagine any president hiring her for his top aide. That would be like choosing a vice president who can't spell "potato."

Actually, the media is not portrayed as evil in this film, just stupid. They unquestioningly believe everything fed to them by our team of storytellers and fork it over to the American public, who in turn laps it right up. In fact, just about everybody (including the president) is willing to go along with this story, whether or not they know it's a sham. The implication that Americans are either liars or gullible believers of lies is not very flattering, but anyone who has witnessed a presidential election in this century would have to admit some elements are familiar. ★★★

FIRESTORM

Rated R - Running time: 1:28

I can just hear the production meeting now: "Hey, Bill, we just figured out how to do these awesome fire effects on the computer. I mean, they really rule. Could we make a movie?"

"Well, I'd love to, Kevin, but it has to have something else besides just fire. It's gotta have a smart, beautiful girl, a macho, good-looking guy, and a villain who's just plain evil. Tell you what: You get the fire effects worked out, and we'll figure out the other junk this afternoon over a beer at Shorty's."

"Okay, but I'm not old enough to drink."

And so Firestorm is born.

Despite passable acting by William Forsythe (the villain who's just plain evil), this film fails to deliver anything of value except fire. Fiery fire. Lots and lots of fiery, fiery fire. Oooooh.

This terrible screenplay by Chris Soth is about a group of skydiving forest firefighters (called "smoke jumpers") in Wyoming who enlist the aid of several inmates on a work detail from the local prison. But a few of these men, headed by Randy Earl Shaye (Forsythe), overcome and disarm their supervisors and escape. Shaye is one of those doublecross-even-your-friends bad guys. He is at first the leader of a group, but he keeps killing his accomplices. Forsythe, who makes a habit of playing criminals, has done better before, such as his comic character is Raising Arizona. Even his part in Once Upon A Time In America was more three-dimensional than this, although it was not a prominent role in the movie. Former NFL football player Howie Long, meanwhile, acts like . . . well, a former football player. And we all know what happens when football players become actors.

Director Dean Semler was obviously too busy worrying about the many fire scenes to bother with helping his actors, or maybe he just couldn't overcome Soth's ridiculously stereotypical characterizations. There is so much testosterone in the fire station you could cut it with a knife, and their bravado interaction makes one queasy in the stomach.

Thank goodness the good guys are so smart and the bad guys are either so dumb or so driven by evil as to become overconfident. And thank goodness we have those fire effects. Thank you, Kevin. ★½

Larry Bruch, American Youth Soccer Association Coach, has been involved in the discussions with the activities review committee and with the board of education.

Bruch said that parents and booster groups are already involved with the girls' soccer varsity effort. They are identifying funding sources. "They have found ways to get the money to buy uniforms," he said, adding, "Somehow, we will do it."

Lakers Fall

ning for the Tigers was when Christian Marini hit the first basket of the game. A shot by Wheeler tied the score and the Lakers took the lead for good by scoring 11 of the next 13 points and building a 13-4 advantage. Garrett held a commanding 59-35 advantage at intermission. The Lakers' widest lead was at 100-64 with just over a minute left in the game.

Pamepinto hit three of the Lakers' six three-point buckets, and Pitcher was perfect at the foul line (6 for 6).

Kirk Evanov finished with 20 points to lead CCAC-South and Dave Spell netted 13 points, while Randy Gressen pulled down 10 rebounds to go with his total of nine points.

"It was nice to be able to give all 12 of our players some time on the floor," Coach Gibson said, "and it was just a super team effort, which is indicated by the fact that six of our guys finished in double figures."

The Lakers will return to action Saturday at home against Catonsville CC, travel to Potomac State College on Monday, and host Hagerstown Junior College next Wednesday.

Seniors Pace Northern To Victory In Perfect Week

The Northern girls' varsity basketball team took on all comers during last week's three-game home stand, and sent each of their visitors packing as they won every game handily to up their record to 7-4 and keep a lock on eighth place in the area standings. Seniors Brooke Brenneman and Jill Speicher led the balanced Husky onslaught from both ends of the court.

The action began as Northern dropped Hancock, 51-40, as Brenneman hit eight field goals and four of six free throws on her way to 20 points and 15 rebounds. Speicher added 11 points, nine points of which came from three-point range. The Huskies kept building on their 19-10 first quarter lead, and took the score to 32-17 at the half, and led by double-digits throughout the second half. High scoring honors for the night went to Hancock's Amanda Fleming, who tallied 27 points.

Northern's junior varsity took its first win of the season as Heather Nugent scored 21 points to lead the Huskies to a 33-29 victory. Heidi Moats scored eight points for the visitors. Northern had lost, not won as reported last week, the previous Wednesday's game at Salisbury.

The varsity's next victim was Beall High, which was trounced by the Huskies 60-28 on Monday night. Again it was Brenneman and Speicher who paced the all-around team effort, as Brenneman scored 26 points and snagged 19 rebounds, and Speicher hit two three-pointers on her way to 11 points and five assists. Senior guard Kathy Arnold scored 13 points. The Huskies, who led by 10 points after one quarter of action, upped their lead 20 points by the half. Heather Price scored 11 points for Beall.

In the jayvee contest, Northern blew Beall away by a 39-8 margin. Nugent and Jennifer Murray each scored 18 points for the Huskies.

Last night's matchup against Salisbury capped the Huskies' perfect week, as Northern pounded the visitors 49-19. Brenneman scored 12 points and Arnold 10 points to pace the Huskies to the 30-point victory. Speicher scored nine points and dished out five assists, and Brenneman hauled down nine rebounds and snagged five steals. Salisbury's scoring was led by Rachel Deer's eight points.

Northern's jayvee was tripped up as they attempted to match the varsity's performance, as they fell to Salisbury 21-11. Nugent scored seven points for the Huskies and led all scorers in the contest, while Salisbury's Jenny Pope totaled six points.

The slate for the upcoming week has the Huskies going on two road trips down the Interstate, with a Monday night rematch at Fort Hill and a Wednesday night contest at Flinstone. The Sentinels will be looking to avenge a season-opening loss to Northern, while the Aggies will meet the Huskies for the first time this year.

4-H Club News

RED HOUSE

by Marcella Moreland, reporter

Aliza Green, the 1998 club president, called the January meeting to order, with 32 members and 18 visitors and adults present. Tara Hinebaugh led pledges, Amanda Hinebaugh called roll and read the secretary's report, and Emily Cosner gave the treasurer's report.

Marcella Moreland, assisted by Tara, demonstrated her Junior Leadership by conducting the Cloverbud crafts for their meeting after they were dismissed to their area. We have three retiring Cloverbuds who entered the reguiar 4-H this year: Ashley Rhodes, Robert Upole Jr. (B.J.), and Matthew Fitzwater. We have one new Cloverbud, Barry Upole, and possibly two more, Anthony and Brittany Green. We welcome them to our program. This month each Cloverbud made a cotton snowman.

Club agreements were signed by parents and members. Beef cards and record books were collected. We voted as a club to hold demonstration day in May. We discussed where our club would go on our trip. Plans are being finalized for our fund-raiser dinner, and tickets were passed out to each member to sell.

Stephanie Brenneman was assigned to take care of our club scrapbook and Amanda will keep the master list of the activity sheet. Our yearly animal workshop was discussed. Lori Evans and Knepps will check into this.

Stacey Holler announced that she has sheltie puppies for sale. Call 301-334-1430.

Lori did a demonstration on fitting a sheep and Justin Fitzwater did one concerning his market pig.

The monthly meetings are held the first Wednesday of the month at the Lutheran Church at Red House. All are welcome to attend.

GRANTSVILLE

The pledges for the December 5 meeting were led by Doug Weimer and Daniel Garlitz.

Next month everyone needs a covered dish and a dessert. Members voted to go bowling in March and interchange that with skating. Ann Colmer showed us how to make bows.

The winner of the gas grill is Lauren Hainer of Lonaconing. The seller of the ticket was Beverly Yommer.

The 1998 officers are: Lisa Hutzel, president; Sara Green, vice president; Crystal Colmer, treasurer; and Autumn Rizer, secretary.

Inner Peace Group To Hold Free Lecture

A free lecture, "How To Be A More Successful Communicator," will be sponsored by the local chapter of the Inner Peace Movement this Friday, January 16, and again on Friday, January 23, at 7:30 p.m., at Garrett County Community College in Rm. 315 of the continuing education building. The public is invited to attend.

Karen Cramer, a national representative of the group, will be the speaker. Cramer has said, "Everybody has a bit of genius inside of them. They just need to understand which avenue of communication they are best at."

Persons interested in pursuing a 12-week program on the four communication skills outline by the group, may express their interest during one of the lectures. The program cost is $3 per week. Also, interested persons may obtain a free brochure by calling 1-800-336-8008.

The Inner Peace Movement is a non-profit, educational program, founded in Washington, D.C., in 1964.

In Memory of Brian Patrick Browning

Brian was very special to us and to many in our community. The response to his death was overwhelming for our family. He touched so many lives with his faith in God and love of Jesus Christ.

We want to express our appreciation to his many friends who prayed, visited, sent flowers, brought food, and expressed their concern in so many ways.

Thank you to the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department for the memorial service, to Pastor Robert Shank and the Lakeside Assembly of God Church, Mark Watkins, and Mark Durst.

From the very first diagnosis of cancer, his medical needs were handled by very caring doctors and their staffs. Thank you to Dr. John Porcaro at Garrett Memorial Hospital, Dr. Kammula and Dr. Steven Rosenberg at the National Cancer Institute, and Dr. Miklos Auber at the Mary Babb Cancer Institute in Morgantown.

We feel that Brian is now in his heavenly home with his lord and savior, Jesus Christ. Thanks to everyone who knew him and was inspired by his life.

Rams Coast To Victory Over Indians, Fall Hard To Alco

The Southern High School boys' varsity had little trouble disposing of host Mount Savage Friday night, 73-45, in a Western Maryland Interscholastic League contest, but then ran into a buzz saw Tuesday evening in Cumberland at Allegany and fell to the Campers, 84-61, in another WMIL match-up. The split left Coach Tom Bosley and the Rams with a 4-2 mark in the WMIL and a 5-5 record overall.

The Rams seized control early against the Indians of Mt. Savage on Friday by jumping out to a 19-7 lead by the end of the first quarter. They stretched the lead by a point in the second stanza to take a 38-25 advantage into the locker room at halftime.

The Rams scored 18 of the 24 points recorded in the third period to go into the final period with a commanding 56-31 lead.

Mike Pamepinto led the Rams' scoring effort by recording 14 points, while teammate John Andrews netted 10 points and finished with five steals. Mike Paesani, Jayson Garland, and Jonathan Price each scored nine points to give the Rams a balanced offensive performance.

The Indians, who fell to 3-6 overall with the loss and 1-4 in the WMIL, were led by Pat Brehm and Larry O'Baker, who scored 14 and 12 points, respectively. Twelve of Brehm's total were scored on four three-point shots.

The Southern junior varsity also won the preliminary game, but the score and details were not received.

Tuesday's game against Allegany followed a similar pattern in terms of scoring, but with the Rams on the losing end of things.

The Campers were on top, 17-8, at the end of the first quarter. The Rams played evenly with them in the second period and still trailed by nine points, 33-24, at halftime.

Alco stretched its lead to 56-37 in the third quarter by scoring 23 of the 36 points in the period.

The big gun for the Campers was Nik Gates, who finished with 29 points on a dozen field goals and a perfect 5-for-5 showing at the foul line. David Miller, who hit a pair of three-pointers, scored 18 points and Robbie Stansbury netted 15. Miller and Stansbury were also credited with five assists each, while Damian DuVall grabbed six rebounds.

The win improved Allegany's overall record to 5-4 and its WMIL mark to 4-0.

Andrews and Price led the Rams in scoring with 12 and 11 points, respectively. Southern's offense had trouble with the Campers' defensive press, particularly in the second half.

The evening was not a total loss for Ram fans, however, as the Southern junior varsity recorded a 41-34 victory in the preliminary game. Mike Browning netted 10 points to lead the Rams, while Dan Lindner paced the Allegany jayvees with 11 points.

The Rams have a gruelling week ahead of them, as they will play four games in five days, beginning this evening at home against Tucker County. They will travel to Northern for a make-up contest on Friday, play at Bishop Walsh on Saturday, and host Beall next Monday. Then, after just one day off, the Rams will host Allegany next Wednesday.

Ram Freshmen Top Allegany And Frankfort

Southern's ninth grade boys' basketball team improved its record to 7-2 last week with home-court victories over Allegany and Frankfort.

Ryan Ewing scored 15 points to lead the Rams over the Campers in Thursday's contest by a 40-38 margin, as Steve Eiswert added seven points. The hosts held a four-point lead at the end of the first quarter behind the strong efforts of Eiswert, Jamie Bosley, and Josh Sharon. Alco had tied up the score, 20-20, as the first half was coming to a close, but a Ewing three-pointer put the Rams up by three as the buzzer sounded. Keith Steyer sparked Southern in the third stanza with two long shots. Although the Rams scored only one field goal in the final quarter, they connected on seven of 11 free throws to edge the Campers by two points.

"Our execution down the stretch was very good," commented Southern head coach Jon Hegeman after the victory. "We took care of the basketball and utilized the clock effectively. Mike Saturday really stepped it up to help us secure the win," he said.

Monday's game with Frankfort saw the Rams pull out to an early lead and never look back as they trounced their visitors by 40 points, 68-28. Ewing and Bosley combined for 13 first quarter points to give the Rams a commanding 16-8 advantage. In dominating the contest the Rams outscored the Falcons in every stanza, and Justin DiSimone and Bryan Panther turned in impressive performances as part of an all-around team effort. Panther pulled down 12 rebounds, and DiSimone scored 10 points and took four steals. Bosley and Josh Stephens combined for 21 points, 13 of them from Bosley to garner high scoring honors.

"This was probably our best game for this year," said Hegeman. "We got great contributions from everyone. Jason Lottman, Chip Stoner, and Keith Bennett all did a great job of rebounding and playing defense. I was really pleased with our total effort."

The Rams' frosh travel to Tunnelton, W.Va., tonight to visit South Preston Junior High School.

Southern Girls Fall To Falcons, Record Now 4-4

A road trip to Frankfort resulted in a 63-39 loss for the Southern girls' varsity basketball team, as the Rams became the latest victims of one of the top teams in the region. Southern's record stands at 4-4 after the loss to the 8-0 team from Mineral County.

Jessica Saturday's 14 points and Liz Paesani's 10 points accounted for over half of the points the Rams were able to muster Monday night. Frankfort's Amy Rowan scored 22 points as she connected for nine field goals and hit four of five free throws. Autumn Sell added 10 points and six assists and Tara Parsons totaled four points and 10 rebounds for the victors. Parsons' seven blocked shots was one of the main reasons Frankfort was able to maintain its stellar defensive record of allowing, on average, just 34 points to their opponents per game for the season.

The Rams' junior varsity met a similar fate as their elders, falling by a 43-19 margin. Charlena Reeves scored 10 points for Southern, while Frankfort's Stacey Mielecki hit for 12 points.

Southern's next contest is a home game against Tucker tonight, which boasts a 9-1 record and is coming off a big victory over undefeated Petersburg Tuesday night. After that the Rams will travel to Bishop Walsh for a Saturday matchup, then return home to begin a four-game home stand by hosting Beall on Monday night. They cap the week by hosting Allegany Wednesday.

Huskies Pull Out Of Slump With Wins Over Elks, Indians

The Northern High varsity boys pulled out of a slump this past week by winning a pair of games, one on the road and one at home, to improve their overall record to 3-7. The Huskies coasted past winless Salisbury last Friday, 92-70, on the Elks' floor and then topped visiting Mount Savage, 72 64, Tuesday evening.

A highlight of the win over Salisbury (0-11) was the outstanding scoring performances of not one but two Huskies, as Dustin Long recorded 31 points and Scott Sisler finished with 30. Also reaching double figures for Coach Mike Friend's team were Craig Kamp with 12 points and Brian Harvey with 11.

The Huskies wasted no time taking control of the game, as they held a 21-9 lead at the end of the first quarter. By halftime they were up by 17, 42-25, and they led 69-47 going into the final quarter.

Jesse Hoover scored 22 points to lead the Elks' offensive effort. Zack Cogley finished with 13 points and nine rebounds, and Nick McKenzie was right behind with 12 points and nine rebounds.

The Northern junior varsity won the preliminary game, 36-30, behind a 13-point effort by Russell Lawson. Leading the Salisbury jayvees was Chris Otto with 10 points.

Sisler was the big gun for the Huskies Tuesday night against Mount Savage, by netting 27 points, including 10 of 11 at the foul line. Long also provided another strong effort for Northern by scoring 14 points, grabbing nine rebounds, and blocking four shots.

The Huskies trailed the Indians (3-7) by one at the end of the first period, 18-17, but were on top by a pair, 32-30, at halftime. They out-scored the Indians in the third stanza by a 25-16 margin to take an 11-point lead, 57-46, into the final quarter. Fifteen of the Huskies' fourth quarter points were scored via 20 opportunities at the free throw line.

Leading the Huskies' effort in the third quarter was Rob Dozier, who scored all 10 of his points in that period. Dozier also pulled down a game-high 14 rebounds, and Kamp was credited with five assists.

The Indians were led offensively by Carl Crawford, who pumped in 25 points. Also reaching double figures were Mark Miller with 15 points and Larry O'Baker with 14.

The Northern jayvees cruised to an easy 49-18 win in the first game, as Steve Smith and Jeremy Hoover led the Huskies' scoring with 11 and 10 points, respectively. The Mt. Savage junior varsity was paced by Darren Johnson, who finished with eight points.

The Huskies will try to extend their win streak Friday night in a big county clash with the Southern Rams at the Cove. They will then play at Fort Hill next Tuesday.

A BALLERINA HE AIN'T, but that's probably not an ambition for Garrett Community College Laker Jerome Adams, pictured above going up for a pair of points against nationally ranked Allegany College at the McHenry Campus last night. Adams was the top scorer for the Lakers, as he finished with 19 points, but Garrett was soundly defeated by the unbeaten Trojans (19-0), who are ranked third in the nation. Below, Eric Papcun tries a long-range bucket, while teammate and former Southern High standout Jimmy Pamepinto, left, prepares to follow the shot to the hoop. The loss dropped the Lakers to 11-4 on the season. See story.

GCC Women Denied By Owls And Catamounts; Drop To 4-5

A last-minute loss to Potomac State last night capped a disappointing week for the Garrett Community College women's basketball team, as the Lakers had lost at Prince George's Community College four days earlier. The week's action leaves the Lakers with a 4-5 record overall, and a 4-4 record in the Maryland JUCO standings.

Against Prince George's the Lakers received a solid performance from freshman guard Mary Walters, who led the team stats with 15 points, seven assists, five steals and two blocked shots. Erica McBride added 12 points and three steals, Andrea Barrick scored seven points and took down 12 rebounds, and Keyshia Monroe tallied eight points and seven rebounds.

Janel Morgan led all scorers with 17 points for Prince Georges, and Heather Cook took down a game-high 19 rebounds for the victors as they out-rebounded GCC 60-44.

The Lakers appeared to be on the rebound last night against the Potomac State Catamounts, as they held their own through most of the hard-fought contest. A 10-1 run by the visitors in the final 4:10 proved to be the Lakers undoing, however, and they fell by a basket 70-68.

Walters again paced GCC with 20 points, 10 rebounds and nine assists, while Monroe scored 18 points and took down eight rebounds. McBride connected for 10 points. Takia Barnes led the Potomac State comeback and totaled 23 points and seven rebounds for the evening.

The score was tied on three occasions, and the Catamounts held a one-point lead over the Lakers at the half. Garrett stormed back to take a 67-60 lead with just over four minutes to go, but went cold as Potomac State went on their victory-clenching tear. With eight seconds to go Garrett had a shot at a basket, but came up short.

GCC's upcoming schedule has the Lakers traveling to Montgomery College-Rockville tomorrow night, hosting Anne Arundel Community College Saturday afternoon, journeying to Montgomery College-Takoma Park Monday afternoon, and hosting Allegany College Wednesday night.

Lakers Can't Keep Up With Nationally Ranked Trojans

Despite an 11-3 overall record, the Garrett Community College Lakers were simply no match for nationally ranked Allegany College last night at McHenry, as the undefeated Trojans recorded their 19th straight win of the season, 91-65. The Trojans, currently ranked third in the nation (NJCAA Division I), faltered only once in the contest, allowing the Lakers to pull to within six points twice in the second half before stretching their lead to double figures once and for all.

The Lakers, who are now 5-3 in the Maryland JUCO, played evenly with the Trojans in the early minutes of the contest, as Allegany led by only one, 9-8, with about five minutes expired. But the visitors scored the next 10 points to take a 19-8 advantage with 11 minutes remaining in the half. They led 46-31 at intermission.

A three-point bucket by Michael Fields sparked a 10-1 scoring burst by the Lakers, featuring two three-pointers by Jerome Adams and a lay-up by Fields, to cut the Trojans' lead to 47-41.

After Allegany went up by 11, 53-42, the Lakers cut the Trojan lead to six again, 53-47, with another three-point shot by Adams and a two-pointer with just over 15 minutes remaining. But the Trojans scored the next 10 points and were not seriously threatened again.

Steve Francis led Allegany's offensive charge by recording 26 points, and he also grabbed a dozen rebounds and had five steals. Kevin Smiley finished with 19 points, 12 of which were scored from three-point range, while Neil Roberts netted 17 and recorded six steals, Danny Whye hit 11, and Germain Diggs came off the bench to score 10 points and pull down 11 rebounds.

Adams led the Lakers in scoring with 19 points, with four long-range buckets. Fields recorded 16 points, four assists, and six rebounds, and Rob Wheeler added 11 points, six boards, and three steals.

The Lakers were out-rebounded by a 56-23 margin.

Allegany (91)
Steve Francis 9 6-6 26, Kevin Smiley 6 3-4 19, Neil Roberts 7 3-8 17, Joel Calvi 1 1-1 3, Danny Whye 4 3-3 11, Germaine Diggs 4 2-3 10, Rahsaaan Johnson 1 1-2 3, Garrett Smith 1 0-0 2. Totals 33 19-27 91.

Garrett (65)
Lance Loya 0 1-2 1, Timmy Pitcher 3 2-2 9, Lionell Sewell 1 3-5 5, Michael Fields 7 2-4 16, Jerome Adams 5 5-6 19, Rob Wheeler 5 1-2 11, Eric Papcun 1 1-2 3, James Washington 0 1-2 1. Totals 22 16-25 65.

Halftime - Allegany 46, Garrett 31.

Three-point goals - Allegany 6 (Francis 2, Smiley 4), Garrett 5 (Pitcher 1, Adams 4). Total fouls - Allegany 23, Garrett 19. Fouled out - none. Rebounds - Allegany 56 (Francis 12), Garrett 23 (Wheeler, Fields 6). Assists - Allegany 15 (Whye 4), Garrett 15 (Fields 4). Steals - Allegany 24 (Francis 8), Garrett 11 (Sewell, Wheeler 3).

"Despite the loss, we did see some positive things with our team," stated GCC Coach Dennis Gibson. "We had a couple of good runs, but just couldn't keep them going. Allegany is by far the biggest team we've met so far this season."

The Lakers will re-group for another game at home Saturday against Catonsville CC. They will travel to Potomac State College on Monday and host a strong Hagerstown Junior College squad next Wednesday.

Prior to the Allegany contest last night, the Lakers split a pair of games earlier (see separate story).

Lakers Fall To Prince George's Before Crushing CCAC-South

Before last night's encounter with Allegany College (see separate story), the Garrett Community College men's basketball team split a pair of games this past week, as the Lakers were topped by host Prince George's CC in a Maryland JUCO contest Saturday, 75-66, and then took out all of their frustrations Monday night at home against CCAC-South by hammering the Tigers, 104-68. The split gave the Lakers an overall record of 11-3 which they put on the line last night against the Allegany Trojans.

Saturday's loss to the Prince George's Owls halted a four-game win streak for the Lakers, who simply did not take good care of the basketball. Coach Dennis Gibson's squad, which trailed by two at halftime (43-41), turned the ball over 32 times.

Leading the Owls' scoring was Jimmy Rice, who finished with 19 points and six rebounds, while F. White and W. Rouse also reached double figures with 14 and 10 points, respectively.

Michael Fields paced the Lakers with a game-high 20 points and eight rebounds. Jerome Adams finished with 16 points, including 15 points scored from three-point range, and four assists, while Rob Wheeler recorded seven rebounds and seven points. Timmy Pitcher was credited with three of the Lakers' 13 steals.

Garrett out-rebounded the Owls by a 48-37 margin.

"Michael Fields is the only one who kept us in the game," Coach Gibson said. "We just couldn't get any more offense going, and our 32 turnovers was a major disappointment."

The Lakers returned home, re-grouped, and came back with a vengeance Monday in making CCAC-South the victim. Wheeler led the GCC attack with 17 points, 14 rebounds, and three steals, as six Lakers finished in double figures.

James Washington had one of his best nights of the season and finished with 15 points, former Southern High standout Jimmy Pamepinto netted 14, Pitcher and Eric Papcun each hit 13 points, and Fields chipped in with 10. Adams recorded nine of the Lakers' 26 assists.

Husky Matmen Defeat Southern To Keep Perfect Record Intact

The wrestling team of Northern High School kept its dual meet record perfect last Thursday evening by defeating cross-county rival Southern, 43-27, on the Huskies' mats. The win upped the Huskies' non-tournament mark to 5-0, while the Rams dropped to 3-2 in dual meets.

The Huskies were awarded two individual wins by forfeit (103- and 145-pound divisions) and recorded three pins and three decisions in actual bouts.

Earning pins for the Huskies were: Brandon Stein, in the 112-pound division; Seth Huber, 119; and Jimmy Warnick, 130. Recording decision victories were: Paul Beitzel in the 125-pound division; Adam Brenneman in the 140-pound clash; and Jimmy Green in double overtime against Nick Dolan in the 152-pound bout.

Roy Holliday (103) and Craig Miller (145) were awarded forfeits.

After dropping the first five matches, Southern's Eric Rexrode earned a pin in the 135-pound bout to finally put the Rams on the scoreboard. The Huskies then won the next three contests before the Rams captured the final four matches.

Also getting pins for Coach Kurt Lear's team were Tommy Sweitzer in the 160-pound bout, Russell Crosco, 189, and Steve Shiflett, 275. John Hayhurst won on points in the 171-pound division.

Coach Scott Stough's Huskies wrestled again Monday at Allegany (see separate story), and will compete this evening at home against Berlin. They will travel to Albert Gallitin Friday night, and will take on the Rams again next Thursday in Oakland.

The Rams, who competed last night at home against Keyser (see separate story), will participate in the Winner's Choice Tournament this Friday and Saturday, meet Lewis County next Tuesday, and then host the Huskies next Thursday.

Men's Basketball League Results Are Announced

In Mountaintop Basketball League action in the Garrett Community College gym Sunday, Deep Creek Ready Mix hammered 219 Motors, 101-60, and Condoerr nipped Metheny Paving in overtime, 71-70.

Deep Creek Ready Mix was paced by Jason Brenneman, who finished with a game-high 34 points, while teammate C.J. Getson netted 25. Joe Refosco was the top scorer for 219 Motors with 28 points.

In the second game, it appeared that a three-point shot by Dennis Gibson with 10 seconds to play would give Condoerr the win in regulation time, as the bucket gave Condoerr a one-point lead over Metheny Paving. But a foul shot by Jason Corbin with just five seconds left knotted the score and sent the game into overtime, as Condoerr missed a shot at the buzzer.

A steal by Tony Doerr and a bucket by Gibson with just 10 seconds remaining in the overtime period gave Condoerr a one-point lead. Poke Winters then drew a charge on Corbin to seal the win.

Leading Condoerr in scoring were Gibson and Tom Stem, who each recorded 21 points. Greg Livengood and Chad Metheny led Metheny Paving with 22 and 17 points, respectively.

Southern Club Wrestlers Win More Trophies

The Southern Mat Club youth wrestling team was represented at two tournaments on Saturday, as 11 members competed in a tourney in Berkeley Springs, W.Va., and three others vied in a tournament in McClellandtown, Pa. Each event featured wrestlers from Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, Pennsylvania, and Ohio, a number of whom have earned national awards.

There were nearly 400 contestants in the tournament at Berkeley Springs, at which SMC's Jason Weeks won the championship in the age 11-12/90-pound division. Weeks pinned all three opponents on his way to the title.

Winning a runner-up trophy was Justin Ratliff, who won two of three matches in the age 7-8/60-pound division, while Nick Tressler defeated three of four opponents to take a third place in the age 1-8/45-pound division. Finishing in fourth place were Daniel Carr (7-8/60) and Brad Palmer (15-15/190).

Other Southern Mat Club team members who won at least one match, but no trophies, were: David Ratliff (9-10/65), Chris Hayhurst (11-12/80), Torri Riley (5-6/50), and Jeremy Gregory (9-10/70). Also competing for the local team were Mitchell Tasker (7-8/55) and Ryan Gregory (13-15/110).

Winning a runner-up trophy at McClellandtown was SMC member Scott Wildesen (9-10/80), who won three of four matches. He lost a close match in the finals to the son of Olympic champion Nate Carr.

Nathan Sines earned a third place trophy by winning four of five matches in the 9-10/75-pound division. Also competing for the local team was Geoff Tressler (13-15/110).

The team will travel to Clarksburg, W.Va., this Saturday and to Fairmont, W.Va., on Sunday to participate in two more highly competitive tournaments.

"It says a lot that our kids want to go where the best wrestlers compete," stated Coach Buck Liller. "Our boys are dedicated to being at the top, and avoiding tough competition is not even considered."

GCM Hospital Recognizes Employees

Garrett County Memorial Hospital employees Bernadette Arnett and Debby Ward have been recognized through the hospital's Employees' Choice Award program.

Ms. Arnett, a diet aide at Garrett Memorial for the past six years, was named Employee of the Year for 1997, while Ms. Ward, a social worker, was selected as the hospital's Employees' Choice Award recipient of the month of December.

BERNADETTE ARNETT

DEBBY WARD

"Bernadette is the epitome of what customer service is all about, and she is very compassionate, caring, and concerned about others," said Wendy Wakefield, RD, director of dietary services at Garrett Memorial. "Bernadette is here because she really enjoys food service—it's not just a job to her. It's important to her that people do enjoy their meals."

Before her employment at Garrett Memorial, Arnett owned the Chimney Corner Restaurant located near Red House. She is a resident of Aurora, W.Va.

Ms. Ward has been employed at Garrett Memorial for the past two years. Prior to that she was employed at Garrett County Health Department, Home Health. She was also previously employed as the director of social work at Preston Memorial Hospital in Kingwood, W.Va., as well as Hopemont Hospital in Terra Alta, W.Va. She was also a social worker and admissions coordinator at the Morgan Manor rehabilitation center in Morgantown, W.Va.

Ward is a graduate of West Virginia University, where she earned both a bachelor's and master's degree in social work.

"Debby is a real asset to the social services department," said Mary Vansickle, LCSW-C, director of social services at Garrett Memorial. "She's a real problem solver and a good communicator. She really cares about her patients and wants them to achieve the best outcome possible."

Ward resides in Terra Alta with husband Scott and their son.

Tax Office Will Be Open Holidays

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein says all 20 taxpayer service offices will be open on all state and federal holidays throughout the tax filing season.

The comptroller's offices are open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, including these two state holidays: Monday, Jan. 19, Martin Luther King Jr. Day; and Monday, Feb. 16, Presidents' Day.

"We'll be happy to complete your Maryland income tax return for you free of charge—as long as you bring a completed copy of your federal return and all W-2 statements to one of our offices," Goldstein said.

The comptroller's offices will also be open from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., Saturday, Apr. 4 and Apr. 11. Free one-stop federal and state taxpayer assistance and forms completion will be available the weeks of February 2 - 6 and March 30 - April 15 (weekdays only). This joint IRS/state tax assistance is available in the lobbies of the State Office Building at 301 West Preston Street and the Fallon Federal Building at 31 Hopkins Plaza in Baltimore.

"Our extra hours of tax help, taxpayer service office locations, and a host of other self-help information can be found on the back of the Maryland income tax booklet. This information can also be found on our website at www.comp.state.md.us or on our Forms-by-Fax system at 410-974-FAXX (974-3299)," Goldstein said.

"HELP SAVE A CHILD TODAY"

Although the use of containers that cannot be easily opened by children has cut down considerably on accidental poisonings. There are still far too many unnecessary deaths and injuries caused by carelessness. If every one of us made it a point to eliminate just one potential danger, think how many more children's lives might be spared.

How about checking in your home today to be sure that prescriptions and other medicines are out of a child's reach and are away from where little hands can get at them.

How important is a hinge? Actually, we pay little attention unless it squeaks, sticks or rusts due to neglect, the passing of time or perhaps one too many rainstorms. Whatever the reason, we seldom notice until we attempt to open the door. Each time we open the door to God's House we are preparing our heart for Him. God enters through a "door"... the door to our heart. Keep the door to your heart operating smoothly, for God may knock at any time. In Revelation 3:20, we read, "Behold, I stand at the door and knock; if anyone hears my voice...I will come in to him."

Remember, Heaven hinges on the heart.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE GENTLE WITNESS
January 18, 1998

Background Scripture:
1 Peter 3:8-21
Devotional Reading:
1 Peter 2:18-25

A few weeks ago I was in Cappadocia, a region of northern Turkey. For tourists, this is one of the most fascinating areas in the world. The landscape there abounds in miles of underground cities, rock churches and natural exotic rock formations.

In the 1st century A.D. this area was part of what was known as Asia Minor, a Roman name for the land we today call the Republic of Turkey. The underground cities were carved out of soft limestone to provide protection from invading hoards from Central Asia. Christians here used caves as places of worship. In many of them are remnants of fine Christian mosaics.

But, although the underground cities and rock churches did offer some protection from persecution, Cappadocian Christians did not escape persecution. While exploring these underground cities, I was reminded that one of the New Testament epistles, 1 Peter, was specifically written to give encouragement and hope to persecuted Christians in northern Asia.

NO THREAT

It occurred to me at that time that it is difficult for us to fully appreciate this epistle because most of us have never been even threatened by persecution for the sake of our faith. There are some places in the world where that is not true, but in the USA being identified as a Christian carries no threat of danger.

Why is that?, I asked myself. Well, of course, we live in a different world from that of the 1st century AD. Christianity is the prevailing religion in the Western world and is tolerated for the most part throughout the rest of the world. (There are some glaring exceptions, to be sure.) But is it just that the world has become more accommodating to the gospel of Jesus Christ? Or could it be because Christianity has changed and is no longer a threat to the secular values and structures of society?

Might it be that in the churches today we get along because we go along? Is Christianity not seen as a threat today because the values of the community have become pretty much the values of the churches? Does the church to which you belong ever challenge the standards and actions of your society? Has your society become so much like the kingdom of God that there is no point of conflict with the gospel your church portrays? Is the society motivated more by the Golden Rule or the law of the market place?

NO PINCH, NO SQUEEZE

I think it is an ominous danger sign when a church or a Christian fit into society without a pinch or squeeze. There are things in our self-centered, materialistic, consumerized, prejudiced, polarized, corrupt, violent, sex-obsessed (add some of your own adjectives here, if you like) society that ought to be challenged by the teachings and example of Jesus Christ.

If we challenge our society, however, 1 Peter says there is a right way and a wrong way to go about it. The right way: "...have unity of the spirit, sympathy, love of the brethren, a tender heart and a humble mind" (3:8). Unfortunately, lots of those who do attack our society today seem motivated not by "love of the brethren" and "tender" hearts and "humble" minds seem to be in short supply.

Before you get up on your soapbox pulpit, before you make a placard to carry or join a vocal, perhaps even forceful, protest, read 1 Peter 3: "Do not return evil for evil or reviling for reviling; but on the contrary bless, for to this you have been called, that you may obtain a blessing" (3:9). You can witness for Christ in your workplace, in your neighborhood and your community without becoming like the thing you are opposing. If you end up returning evil for evil and insult for insult, you are not witnessing for Christ but yourself.

A hateful witness only harms the gospel. "Always be prepared to make a defense to anyone who calls you to account for the hope that is in you, yet do it with gentleness and reverence" (3:15).

COVER STORY

Globes honor MacLaine in 55th ceremony

By John Crook
©TVData Features Syndicate

Shirley MacLaine

In her long career, Shirley MacLaine has played a cranky piano teacher, an infuriating but loving mother, a former ballerina and, on occasion, even a prostitute.

Now the actress plays "legend" as she accepts this year's Cecil B. DeMille Award for outstanding contribution to the entertainment field during the Hollywood Foreign Press Association's 55th annual Golden Globe Awards. The event airs Sunday, Jan. 18, on NBC.

MacLaine's honor comes more than 40 years after she received a Golden Globe as 1955's new star of the year in a motion picture. She also holds Globes for her performances in Terms of Endearment, The Apartment, Irma La Douce and Madame Sousatzka.

The Globes, which honor work in both films and television, are the first major awards of any calendar year, and many consider them a good indicator for the Academy Awards, which follow in the spring.

But that notion is misleading. True, a Globe nomination does throw a spotlight on a movie or performance that otherwise may have been overlooked, thus upping the odds for Oscar nominations later. But the Golden Globes split the major movie awards into two categories: one for drama and one for comedy or musical.

In other words, the Hollywood Foreign Press Association nominates (and gives awards to) twice as many actors and films as do the Oscars in these categories. You'd be hard-pressed not to find a correlation, although in recent years such Globe winners as John Travolta (Get Shorty) and Madonna (Evita) were not even nominated for Oscars.

The foreign press group also has had its share of controversies over the years, including occasional charges that members' voting has been swayed by lavish parties as well as the more recent revelation that some voters were members of the press in name only.

This year's movie nominations are a creditable group, with Amistad, The Boxer, Good Will Hunting, L.A. Confidential and Titanic vying for best dramatic film. As Good As It Gets and Wag the Dog compete with the box-office hits The Full Monty, Men in Black and My Best Friend's Wedding for best comedy or musical.

There are some glaring omissions. Director Ang Lee's stunning drama The Ice Storm was overlooked, as was Joan Allen's shattering performance in the film. Kevin Spacey's dazzling work in L.A. Confidential also went unnoticed.

Among the TV categories, the same shows (Seinfeld, ER, etc.) that have dominated Emmy competition for the past several years are up for best series in both categories. Two other shows, Spin City and newcomer Ally McBeal, did manage to slide onto the six-nominee best comedy-musical series roster.

The performance categories, as always, contain their share of loopiness. In a moment of insanity, the Globe voters gave Brooke Shields (Suddenly Susan) and the nonacting Jerry Seinfeld (Seinfeld) comedy acting nominations that should have gone, perhaps, to Patricia Heaton and Ray Romano of the critical favorite Everybody Loves Raymond.

IN FOCUS

Legendary civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. is profiled in Martin Luther King Jr.: The Man and the Dream.

The Biography presentation airs Monday, Jan. 19, on A&E Network.

King's relationships with his family and with other civil rights activists, the uncertainties he faced and his self-analysis are among the topics covered.

Interviewees include Harry Belafonte and James Young.

SOAP TALK

Robertson surfs through Terror Island story line

By Candace Havens
©TVData Features Syndicate

Clive Robertson

Dear Candace: I love the soap opera Sunset Beach, and it just keeps getting better every day.

I am worried, though, that Ben (Clive Robertson) is going to turn out to be the serial killer and then will have to leave the show. This makes me sad because I adore Ben and Meg (Susan Ward).

I'd also like to know if there is a fan club for Sunset Beach. I've been trying to find one for a long time. –Sandra in Florida.

Dear Reader: Ben's definitely a bit deranged and deeply involved in the Terror Island story line, but the character is not leaving.

"I have no plans to leave," Robertson says. "I'm not sure what (the writers) are doing with my character. I do know that he is the one who is committing these horrible crimes. I have no idea how it will all turn out for him. I'm as curious as the fans are."

For information on joining the official Sunset Beach Fan Club, write to Fan Club, c/o Sunset Beach-NBC Stage 11, 3000 W. Alameda, Burbank, CA 91523.

Dear Candace: I have a couple of questions about the character Jim on All My Children. Why do they have a new actor playing the role? Also, I'm pretty sure I've seen the new guy on another soap. What else has he been on? –S.O. on the Internet.

Dear Reader: Roscoe Born was replaced by David Forsyth. No word yet as to why or how Born departed.

You may recognize Forsyth from his longtime role as John on Another World.

Dear Candace: Can you tell me the latest about Michael Zaslow, who played Roger Thorpe on Guiding Light? Is he doing any better? And will he be returning to the show? What will happen with the character? –N., Hibbing, Minn.

Dear Reader: There have been several reports that Zaslow has amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, better know as Lou Gehrig's disease. But those reports are unconfirmed.

Zaslow is filing a discrimination suit against GL. Dennis Parlato, who has been playing Roger these last few months, has been let go. His last air date is in February. So Roger's future is, at best, uncertain.

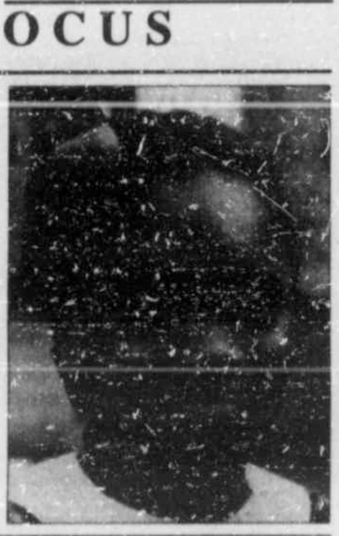
In Focus

Chaz Monet plays a 6-year-old girl in 1960s New Orleans who becomes the first black pupil in an all-white school in Ruby Bridges. Based on a true story, the movie premieres Sunday, Jan. 18, on ABC.

From her first day at school, Ruby is subjected to the taunts of townspeople who oppose integration. But her teacher, Barbara Henry (Penelope Ann Miller), is determined to give Ruby a chance at a good education. Michael Beach and Diana Scarwid also star.



Trivia

The Alamo facade in TNT's Two for Texas is the first movie replica of the fort since John Wayne's The Alamo.

Trivia

Wait-and-see TV: In 1948-49, viewers tuned in Picture This to watch a guest cartoonist illustrate a story or joke.

School Funding To Increase With SAFE Initiative

The School Accountability Fund for Excellence (SAFE) initiative earmarks state funds to improve the academic achievement of children across Maryland by assisting at-risk students. This project was developed by a task force established by Gov. Parris N. Glendening.

In a recent announcement the governor noted an allocation to public schools of $61.5 million as a first installment in a four-year plan. Garrett County's share reflects an additional $429,416 for FY 1999.

The distribution of the funds among the state's school systems is based on a formula that includes factors such as the number of children in the system receiving free or reduced-price meals, the number of children with limited proficiency in English, and at-risk 4-year-olds.

Dr. Nancy Grasmick, state superintendent of schools, noted the link between risk factors and student performance. "Study after study has traced the effects of poverty, high mobility, and limited English proficiency to poor academic performance," she said. The SAFE initiative offers long-term remedy for the challenges these children face, Grasmick said.

Not only does the governor's program provide funds, it establishes controls. "The additional funding provided under SAFE, combined with its accountability measures, ensures that the additional state dollars will reach the children who need them most," Glendening stated.

In addition, the governor announced a $3 million partnership program to benefit Maryland's public school libraries. "These funds will help make our school libraries among the best in the nation," he said.

ACTIVE RESIDENT HONORED - Elizabeth Spiker, left, was recently honored at Dennett Road Manor Nursing Home for her high level of participation in activities. She was named 1997 Resident of the Year. During 1997 the activities department of Dennett Road Manor conducted monthly contests to name the resident of the month. To be eligible, one was required to participate in activities. The person who took part in the greatest number of the projects received the honor. In tallying the numbers for the year, Elizabeth Spiker earned the highest score for the whole year. The monthly winner pictured above, left to right, in the front row are Mary McRobie, Sarah Elkins, Gladys Frazee, Elizabeth Spiker, Kyle Bennett, and Carrie Shaffer. In the second row are Mabel Hauser, Herbert Merrill, Claude Lewis, Ruth Peterson, Regina Tasker, and Ocie DeWitt. A winner not pictured is Delmer Canan.

Moms In Touch Groups Forming In Southern GC

Women interested in getting together to pray for their children and their schools in the southern end of Garrett County are invited to attend an informational meeting on Moms in Touch International (MITI) on Tuesday, Jan. 27, at 7 p.m. The meeting will be held at the Oak Park Church of the Brethren in Mtn. Lake Park, just across from Southern High School.

Moms in Touch is a non-denominational, non-political, non-issue oriented ministry started in 1984 by a California mother who had concerns for her child and her child's school. There are now groups in every state in the U.S. and representatives in approximately 61 countries, for a total of over 32,000 individual participants worldwide.

There are MITI groups currently active in the northern end of Garrett County, and area coordinator Christine Brenneman will be on hand from Grantsville at the Oak Park Church meeting to show a video and answer questions about MITI. Mothers are not required to pray aloud during MITI meetings "so that all women may feel completely comfortable," according to a spokesperson for the group. There are also MITI groups available for mothers whose children are currently in homeschool environments.

Nursery arrangements and refreshments will be available at the informational meeting. For further information, interested persons may contact either Susan Riley at 301-334-2814, or Christine Brenneman at 301-895-5191.

Agency Planning Trip For Local Senior Citizens

The Garrett County Community Action Area Agency on Aging will sponsor a bus trip to the Sight and Sound Theatre in Lancaster, Pa., on March 31 for local senior citizens to attend a performance of "Behold the Lamb."

The trip is open to all persons age 55 and older, and the $60 fee will cover transportation, a boxed breakfast, admission to the play, and a luncheon. The departure schedule is as follows: 5 a.m., Mary Browning Senior Center, Oakland; 5:45 a.m., town parking lot, Friendsville; 6 a.m., Flowery Vale Senior Center, Accident; and 6:30 a.m., Grantsville Senior Center.

The reservation and payment deadline is Wednesday, Feb. 18. Cancellations are subject to a 50% fee within 48 hours of departure (100% thereafter). To make reservations and/or to obtain more information, persons may contact AmeriCorps member Darla Friend at 301-334-9431, ext. 177 (Mon.) and 301-334-5818 (Tues.-Fri.), or the Area Agency on Aging at 301-334-9431 or toll-free, 888-877-8403.

Fourth Quarter Tax Payments Are Due Today

State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein is reminding the 216,000 self-employed taxpayers and others who are not subject to income tax withholding that their fourth quarter estimated Maryland income tax payments are due today, January 15.

Estimated taxpayers have two options at this time of year. They may file their quarterly payment by the January 15 deadline or wait and file a final 1997 Maryland income tax return on or before Monday, Feb. 2, 1998. Any balance due must be paid in full when filing the regular return. To avoid interest charges, taxpayers must pay either 90% of their total 1997 Maryland income tax liability or 100% of their 1996 Maryland income tax liability through employer withholding or estimated tax payments.

Taxpayers who filed estimated income tax payments during 1997 should receive vouchers for 1998 shortly after January 15.

"Maryland taxpayers are required to file quarterly estimated tax payments if they would owe $500 or more in state and local income taxes on income not subject to employer withholding," Goldstein said.

"Look on the back of Form 502D in the Maryland tax booklet for more information on filing a declaration of estimated Maryland income taxes for 1998, including special instructions for farmers and fishermen."

A special brochure titled "Should you pay estimated taxes to Maryland?" is available from all taxpayer service offices and from the comptroller's website (www.comp.state.md.us).

Free Blankets Available To Area Residents

This fall's "Bundle-Up" Blanket Drive by Garrett County Community Action's Community and Emergency Services Department, sponsored by AmeriCorps, garnered 96 blanket donations for Garrett County residents in need.

These blankets are available at Community Action's Energy Services Department for anyone experiencing a heating emergency. For more information, interested persons may contact Lori White of AmeriCorps at 301-334-9431, ext. 121.

Personal Credit Management Is Workshop Focus

A special workshop titled "Managing Your Credit" will be presented at Garrett Community College on Thursday, Jan. 29. The program will begin at 1 p.m. in Room 305 of the Continuing Education Building. This workshop is free and open to the public.

Lana Smith, vice president at WEPCO Federal Credit Union, will explore personal credit management from many aspects. She will help participants who may have never had credit, want to monitor their credit, or need to improve their credit to take charge of their personal credit experience. She will address a broad range of credit concerns, ranging from various ways to establish credit to tips on managing a personal credit history and credit rating.

Smith has been based at the Bloomington Office of WEPCO for the past eight years. In conjunction with her duties, which include advertising and public relations, she has spoken to business and service groups throughout the area. In addition to her other credit work, she also manages the Visa Credit Card Program.

The workshop is sponsored by the New Dimensions Program, the New Horizons Program, and The Caring Connection Program of Garrett Community College, under the direction of Barbara Frey. For additional information or to register, interested persons may contact Barbara at 301-387-3071 or Virginia Jeffrey, intake/counselor specialist for the New Dimensions and The Caring Connection Programs at 301-387-3103.

The New Horizons Program is jointly funded by the Maryland State Department of Education and Garrett Community College. Grant funds in the amount of $45,000 are made available to the New Horizons Program through the Division of Career Technology and Adult Learning, which is approximately 90% of the total program budget, with GCC contributing an additional $5,300, which is approximately 10% of the total budget. The Caring Connection is 100% funded by the Maryland State Department of Education in the amount of $20,000. The New Dimensions Program is 100% funded by the Department of Human Resources.

S.A.L.T. Advises On Winter Storm Survival Kits

Operation Winter Storm offers tips to seniors on ways to reduce the risks of winter weather. S.A.L.T. (Seniors and Lawmen Together) chairman Bill Heise has provided posters to local store owners that serve as reminders to customers to pick up supplies to help them weather a storm "before it is too late."

The winter survival kit is geared to permit an individual to remain safely at home in harsh weather conditions. The shopping list for this kit covers some of the basic necessities for riding out a storm that could result in loss of utilities.

The items suggested for the kit are: a flashlight, non-electric can opener, bottled water, first aid kit, batteries, portable battery-operated radio, canned food, and pet supplies.

For those who may find themselves in the difficult situation of being stranded in a vehicle in a winter storm, a winter car kit list is also provided.

The items listed for the car kit include some that help a person get back on the road as well as those that would help should a person be stranded. The items are: kitty litter or sand for generating traction; a small tool kit with pliers, wrench, and screwdriver; a set of tire chains or traction mats; windshield scraper and brush; high calorie, non-perishable food, and a shovel.

Those wishing more information on S.A.L.T. may call Heise at 301-334-2484.

GCC Schedules New Fiction Writing Course

A new course, Fiction Writing, has been added to the Garrett Community College spring semester schedule. The course will be taught by Greg Jenkins on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons from 3 to 4:30 p.m. beginning Jan. 20.

The Fiction Writing course has been developed to complement the Creative Writing course, which introduces students to the literary genres of fiction, poetry, and non-fiction from a writer's perspective. Fiction Writing will help the student focus primarily on the fundamentals and techniques of writing the short story with the flexibility to expand to the writing of a novel.

According to Jenkins the course will consist of lectures on the short story, workshops involving exercises and actual stories, readings of professional and student work, and discussions of all material covered. "The intent of the course is to create a classroom environment that provides a logical structure and yet fosters imaginative freedom," he said. Jenkins anticipates that each student will complete two or three short stories during the semester.

Jenkins, who teaches other English courses at GCC and at Frostburg State University, has had his original fiction published in numerous magazines and journals and has had several plays produced. He is the author of a recently published book on Stanley Kubrick and the art of adaptation. He holds a bachelor's degree in English from FSU, a master's degree in Communication Studies from West Virginia University, and a Ph.D. in Mass Communication with emphasis on English and Fiction Writing from Penn State University.

Students may register for the Fiction Writing course at the Student Assistance Center Mondays through Thursdays from 8:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m., and Fridays from 8:30 a.m. through 4:30 p.m. Registration is open through Jan. 26. Persons interested in further information on this course or registration procedures may call the Student Assistance Center at 301-387-3044.

MY BANK/FIRST UNITED RECEIVES ROTARY AWARD - The Rotary Community Service Award was presented recently to My Bank/First United, which partnered with Beachy Lumber to sponsor the Rotary Club's annual auction. The award is given annually to an individual or business that supports Rotary's charitable giving. Shown left to right are Steve Lantz, My Bank/First United officer and vice president-elect, Doug Riley, president of the Rotary Club, Kathy Knotts, manager of the Oakland community bank, and Dave Bolinger, chairman of the Rotary Christmas Project.

ELCA Women At Zion Meet

Women of the ELCA, Zion Lutheran Church, Jennings, held their monthly meeting in the church on January 6.

The study for the year will be "Luke's Vision: The People of God," written by Carol La Hurd, who is a biblical scholar and teacher. The first session, "Greeting the Messiah," was led by Leota Baker and included the "Magnificat, Song of Simeon" and a comparison of Mary with Hannah, an Old Testament mother.

Judy Stanton presided over the business meeting.

The reports for the parish yearbooks have been compiled, and the annual treasurer's report was presented to the group.

A thank-you card was received from Our Savior's Lutheran Church in Box Elder, Mont., upon receipt of a package of baby quilts for its layette ministry, sent by Zion's unit.

Collections of canceled postage stamps, saved by individuals during the year, are now being received. Shipment to the stamp club of The National Lutheran Home in Rockville will be made soon. The home especially requests the commemorative and foreign stamps and those of denominations of 50 cents and higher.

Tribute to the memory of Douglas E. Quirk was made through a gift offering to Women of the ELCA specific ministries and designated for women and children in crisis.

Service projects are underway, and sewing is being done for institutions that are supported each year.

Subscriptions to the magazine Lutheran Women Today have been renewed.

No definite date has been set for the next meeting.

Eastern Star Chapter Of Oakland Meets

Oakland Chapter No. 67, Order of The Eastern Star, met recently at the Paul B. Naylor Masonic Temple in Oakland. Ted Raynovich, Worthy Patron, presided. Worthy Matron Thelma Henshaw opened with a reading, "New Year's Wish."

Afterwards Henshaw greeted the Deputy Grand Lecturer, Mary Alice Millholland, Worthy Matron, Delores Bennett of Walter Chapter, and other guests, officers, members of the chapter and Brothers holding Masonic honors.

A new member, Nicole Besley, was initiated into the chapter. Henshaw's closing was "Believe." The next meeting will be Tuesday, Jan. 20.

Miss Western Maryland Pageant Seeks Contestants

Contestants are being sought for the Miss Western Maryland Scholarship Pageant, which represents a stepping stone for the winner to compete in the Miss Maryland pageant. The state winner will advance to the Miss America Scholarship Pageant, where Regis Philbin will serenade the new Miss America when she is crowned on national television.

Garrett County women between the ages of 18 (by Sept. 1998) and 24 are eligible to compete in the Miss Western Maryland Scholarship Pageant, which will be held on Saturday, March 21, at Hancock High School. Contestants in this pageant must live, work, or attend school in Garrett, Allegany, or Washington counties.

The four areas of competition in each pageant are interview, eveningwear, physical fitness in swimsuit, and talent. Participation offers an opportunity to win scholarships and other awards. There is no entrance fee.

The winner of the 1998 Miss Western Maryland title will represent the region at the 1998 Miss Maryland Scholarship Pageant, to be held in Hagerstown in June.

The pageant is part of the Miss America Scholarship Program, which is the largest scholarship program in the world for young women. Last year over $38 million in scholarships were awarded on the local, state, and national levels.

All interested contestants must attend an orientation on Saturday, Jan. 24, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Rehoboth United Methodist Church, 30 East Salisbury Street, Williamsport. Jamie Fox, Miss Maryland 1997, will be the guest speaker at the orientation session.

For further information, or to become a contestant, interested persons should contact Jan Dorsey at 301-733-8278 as soon as possible.

Local Students On Dean's List At Frostburg St.

Higher Limits for Nonworking Spousal IRAs

Effective with the 1997 tax year, a new tax law now allows a nonworking spouse to contribute up to $2,000 annually to a spousal IRA (Individual Retirement Annuity).

This means a couple with one working spouse who qualifies to make an IRA contribution and one nonworking spouse can contribute and receive an annual income tax deduction of as much as $4,000 per year between two spousal IRAs.

You're right! The space is empty. There isn't any ad. If you operate a business and don't advertise, the silence is anything but golden. Advertising is really extending an invitation to your prospects and asking them to buy your products or use your services. If you aren't advertising, you aren't selling.

Antiques

It has been five decades since George Nelson, Charles and Ray Eames and others designed a new style of furniture for the Herman Miller Furniture Co. Chairs and tables that were introduced in 1947 shocked many furniture buyers. Such styles are now collected by those who search for the best of the post-war period.

The Miller designs used metal rods, Masonite, perforated aluminum, dimpled plywood and startling colors.

The lightweight pieces were made to mix and match in many new and interesting ways. Shelf units were designed to be placed end to end against a wall or to be used as a room divider.

The 1952 Herman Miller furniture collection featured the 400 series of storage units, with panels that came in a variety of colors. The back and sides of each unit were finished, so a piece could be used in the center of a room.

Most of the units had three narrow drawers, open shelves and compartments covered with sliding doors.

Prices for postwar furniture are still going up among collectors who are too young to remember when the furniture was introduced.

Q. I have been collecting Wade figures for several years. What's the story behind them?

A. The Wade Group of Potteries started in 1810 near Burslem, England. The potteries merged around the turn of the century to become George Wade & Son Ltd., which made giftware, promotional items and industrial products. The company stopped making giftware from 1965 until the early 1970s. Its figurines included those packaged with Red Rose tea.

Biography®

ADAM CLAYTON POWELL, JR.: KEEPING THE FAITH

On his first day in Congress in 1945, Adam Clayton Powell, Jr., the first black New York representative, personally desegregated the House dining room. When Mississippi Congressman John Rankin used the word "nigger," Powell got up, silently walked to the House rostrum and punched Rankin full force. That was the last time he — or anyone else — used that epithet in Congress.

Powell, featured in January's Biography magazine, was the son of Adam Clayton Powell, Sr., the renowned pastor of Harlem's Abyssinian Baptist Church. One of the few blacks admitted to Colgate University, he was fair-skinned enough to pass for white until he pledged a fraternity that conducted a background check. Chagrined, he vowed never again to deny who he was.

After college, Powell continued to show a rebellious streak. Still, he helped Depression-ravaged Harlem, organizing food and clothing drives and picket lines boycotting merchants who wouldn't hire blacks. His constant line: "Keep the faith, baby."

When his father retired, he was given a bully pulpit that sparked his political career. At first, Powell had to make due with incremental progress and symbolic victories, but slowly accrued seniority. He finally became chairman of the Education and Labor Committee, giving him the leverage to enact some of his pet bills. After Kennedy's assassination, Johnson was able to push through much of Kennedy's agenda with Powell's help.

Powell flaunted his power, taking trips to Europe at public expense, boasting of a secret "black book" of his colleagues' indiscretions. Congress voted to deny him his seat for "unbecoming conduct." The Supreme court overturned it, but Powell's seniority was gone. The fight had gone out of him. In 1970, Charles Rangel defeated him. Powell retreated to his vacation home in Bimini, dying of cancer 18 months later. More than 100,000 people attended the funeral of the man who had kept the faith.

Home Tips

TIP 1 — It is my habit to read the Home Tips in our local paper, "The Vanguard," Yarmouth, N.S., Canada. At age 86, I still like to learn and use these tips.

A while ago, while sewing, I needed inner facing for a front facing and collar. I improvised by taking pieces of used laundry static and freshness sheets. Pressing them smoother, I zigzagged two or three together to use to suit the pattern. These worked well and have not frayed or pulled apart. They also retain a nice fresh scent.

TIP 2 — At times when breaking an egg, a piece of the shell or other bit needs to be removed. An edge of remaining shell proves to be ideal to remove the objects.

These ideas were discovered by necessity. Ernestine B., Yarmouth, N.S., Canada

CAN YOU HELP? — Columbia S. of Hacienda Heights, Calif., asks if anyone can tell her how to unravel scotch tape and plastic wrap.

TYPING TIP — When trying to type a form today, I found that the box at the end of the page was very difficult to complete because there wasn't enough paper left to be held in the "grasp" of the plate.

We attached large, self-sticking notes across the bottom, thus "extending" the paper so it would not move in the typewriter. After completing the last box, we removed the self-sticking notes and there was no residue or damage to the form. Rita C., Chantilly, Va.

MAKING DO — When we were building our home and it was unfinished, we did not have a bathtub yet. This became a problem, as my son became too big to sit in the baby bathtub.

So, I bought the smallest round blow-up swimming pool that I could find. I did not blow it up all the way so that it would be flexible enough to fit in the bottom of the shower.

It worked great as a bathtub! Jill T., Colorado Springs, Colo.

Friendsville Man Pleads Guilty To CDS Possession

A Friendsville man who pleaded guilty to possession of a controlled dangerous substance (CDS) in last week's Garrett County District Court proceedings has received a sentence and a fine.

Joseph Edward Rhoten, 20, had been arrested by state troopers in November after they executed a search warrant at his Malachi Way residence. The search reportedly uncovered several marijuana-type smoking pipes and a smoking bong, some containing suspected marijuana residue, rolling papers, many packs of empty plastic sandwich baggies, a small weighing scale, a ledger book, and $305 in U.S. currency. Several suspected hallucinogenic mushrooms were also found during the course of the search.

District Court Judge Ralph M. Burnett handed Rhoten a 30-day sentence, with all but two days suspended, fined him $100, placed him on one year of supervised probation, and ordered him to complete 40 hours of community service. An additional charge of possession of CDS paraphernalia was not prosecuted by the State's Attorney's Office.

In other District Court news, the judge handed down a stet ruling in the case of Thomas Jeffrey Manahan, 32, of Accident, who was charged with several hunting violations stemming from a 1996 spotlighting incident.

In November of 1996, an officer with the Natural Resources Police (NRP) filed a report stating that he had come upon an individual spotlighting deer at 1:30 a.m. from a four-wheeler along the right of way along a set of high-tension power lines near the intersection of Sam Friend Road and Bear Foot Road. The officer reportedly gave chase to the suspect, but wasn't able to apprehend him at that time. Five days later, a four-wheeler with taped-over headlights and a front-end winch, which matched the description of the one the NRP officer had pursued, was found in the woods in the same area.

The case remained open until this past Sept., when NRP received a tip that Manahan was allegedly known to have been spotlighting during the previous fall in the same area from a vehicle matching the same description as the one recovered. After further investigation, Manahan was charged with spotlighting with a weapon in his possession, hunting at night, and carrying a loaded gun on a vehicle.

The stet ruling means that the case can be recalled for trial at any point in the next year if the court deems it necessary. As a condition of the stet, Manahan is required to complete 30 hours of community service.

A sentence previously handed to Owen Hayes Snyder, 53, of Accident was revised to reflect a probation before judgment (PBJ). Snyder's conviction on three counts of reckless endangerment resulted from a domestic incident in which he had allegedly fired a handgun in the direction of a vehicle parked in front of his residence that was occupied by three people.

A sentence revision to reflect a PBJ was granted for Philip Edward Deren, 21, State College, Pa. Deren had been arrested in June by sheriff's deputies at a party on Shady Lane in Mtn. Lake Park.

Jeremy Scott Vance, 20, and Jeffrey Alan Koton, 19, both of Oakland, were found in violation of probation and probation was revoked for revoked for each. Vance, who had been convicted on assault and drug charges, was handed a 60-day reimposed sentence, and Koton, previously convicted on a theft charge, was handed a nine-month reimposed sentence.

A charge of fourth-degree burglary against Sean Gregory Smith, 20, Bruceton Mills, W.Va., was not prosecuted by the state's attorney.

Patricia Heiz, 29, Frostburg, was found not guilty of a charge of malicious destruction of property and three counts of second-degree assault.

Stephanie Candace Perry, 21, Oakland, was found not guilty of charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

DWI & DUI Hearings

Several driving while intoxicated (DWI) and driving while under the influence of drugs and/or alcohol cases were heard in the court recently.

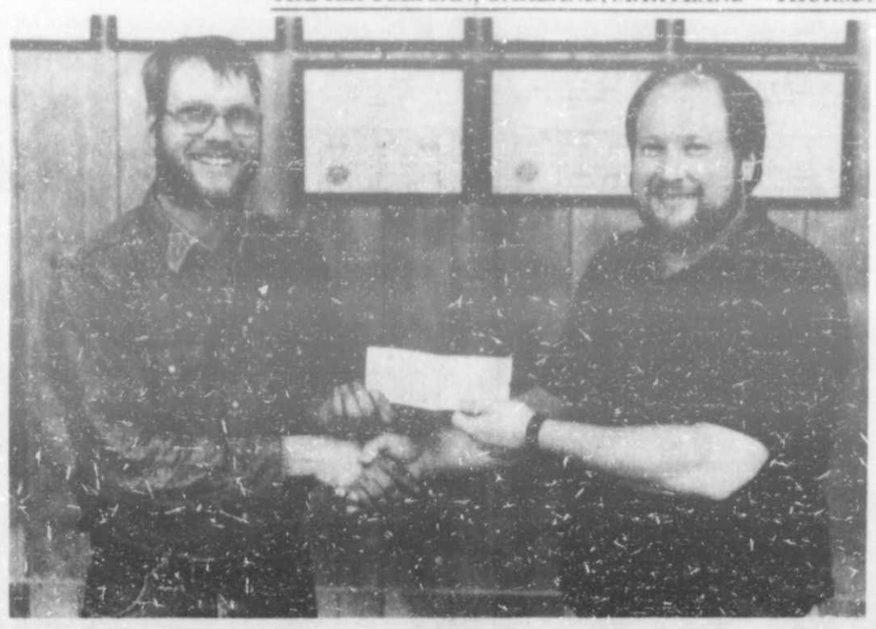
Lawrence Jesse McGovern, 70, Oakland, was found guilty of charges of DWI and DUI, and was handed a six-month sentence, of which he was granted credit for 99 days.

Michael Wayne Paugh, 33, Elk Garden, W.Va., was found guilty of DWI and fined $100, handed a 60-day sentence with all but seven days suspended sentence, placed on two years of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 40 hours of community service.

Several DWI sentence revisions were granted, each to reflect a PBJ. Receiving revisions were Walter Donald Danser, 61, Swanton; Edgar Markwood Browning, 46, McHenry; Larry Laverne Sweitzer, 31, Kitzmiller; and Fred Eugene Schermerhorn, 32, Frostburg.

Finally, a bench warrant was issued for Timothy Wayne Arnold, 44, of W.Va., charging him with failure to appear for a DWI hearing. Bond was set at $1,000.

LINE DANCING will resume at the Mary Browning Senior Center in Oakland this Friday, Jan. 16, and will be held every Friday from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. as long as there are persons wishing to participate. The course, which is instructed by Ann Morris, is designed for persons age 50 and over, and a fee of $1.50 per class is the only charge. The group of line dancers pictured above entertained the residents at Cuppett and Weeks Nursing Home recently. Kneeling, from left, are Bonita Rodeheaver, assistant instructor, and Marsha Kitzmiller. Standing, same order, are Maxine Jamison, Bea Crosco, and Cheryl Wotherspoon. Persons wishing to find out more about the line dancing class may contact the Area Agency on Aging at 301-334-9431, extension 142.



LOTS OF CHRISTMAS TREES were sold by Sisler and Sisler L.L.C. of Oakland, which manages the Mt. Top Tree Farm just north of Oakland along U.S. Rt. 219, and for every one sold, the Slslers pledged $1 as a donation to the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department. Over 600 trees were sold, so Randy Sisler, pictured left, presented a check for $812 to OVFD president Fred Cailis. Sisler and Sisler made a similar contribution last year to the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad.

FSU Announces Open House Dates

Frostburg State University's Open House programs for 1998 are scheduled to be held on the following Saturday mornings: February 7, March 7, April 4, and April 25.

Beginning at 9 a.m. in the FSU Lane Center and concluding at 1 p.m., the open houses will afford visitors an opportunity to tour the campus and facilities and meet with departmental representatives, staff, and students. Group sessions will be held on financial aid and admissions procedures.

Persons desiring more information on the FSU Open House program, may contact the FSU Office of Admissions at 301-687-4201

FSU is committed to making all of its programs, services, and activities accessible to persons with disabilities. Persons may request accommodations through the ADA Compliance Office, FSU Library Room 228, 301-687-7955.

Housing Group Given Donation By Local Utility

UTILITY SUPPORTS HOUSING EFFORT - Allegheny Power Company recently demonstrated its support for the Interfaith Housing of Western Maryland organization by presenting a donation of $5,000. Pictured above, handing the check to Jan Martin, director of development for the non-profit organization, is Jim Latimer, vice president of Allegheny Power. Interfaith Housing helps provide affordable housing for disadvantaged families in Maryland's five westernmost counties. See story.

Allegheny Power is teaming up with Interfaith Housing of Western Maryland for the second year to help support affordable housing programs throughout Maryland's five westernmost counties.

Allegheny Power is providing an annual $5,000 grant for three years to assist the non-profit organization with its efforts to develop affordable housing for disadvantaged western Maryland families. Currently, Interfaith Housing of Western Maryland has 300 units of affordable housing to provide shelter for low- and moderate-income families, domestic violence victims, and elderly citizens in Allegany, Carroll, Frederick, Garrett, and Washington counties.

"Allegheny Power is proud to support Interfaith Housing of Western Maryland and its efforts to develop affordable housing for our neighbors who need help the most," said Jim Latimer, Allegheny Power, vice president, corporate affairs. "Worthwhile programs such as these provide many far-reaching benefits to the community and help to build a better future for the region. Our partnership with Interfaith Housing of Western Maryland is an excellent example of how we demonstrate our commitment to being a good corporate citizen in the communities we serve."

"We are pleased to work with Allegheny Power in support of our affordable housing ministry," stated Jan Martin, director of development for Interfaith Housing of Western Maryland. "As a corporate leader, Allegheny Power's investment in our work is also an investment in the future development and economic well-being of our region. We applaud Allegheny Power for its commitment to helping our low-income neighbors house themselves."

Interfaith Housing of Western Maryland, founded in 1989 by more than 50 religious leaders, is a community-based, non-profit organization headquartered in Middletown.

With headquarters near Hagerstown, Allegheny Power is an investor-owned electric utility that serves 1.4 million customers in parts of Maryland, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and West Virginia.

Computer 4 U

Computer 4 U, a subsidiary of D & V Enterprises, is celebrating its first anniversary during the month of January. Computer 4 U is located at 3189 Hutton Road (Route 39 west), just three miles west of Oakland, near Crellin.

The business is family owned and operated by Doug Sehorne, his wife, Vickie, and their three children: Valerie, Jeremy and Matthew. While Vickie and Valerie help out with the secretarial tasks, Jeremy is the computer technician in charge of building customized systems, and Matthew helps out with cleaning, shipping and other necessary tasks.

The Sehorne family has been residents of Garrett County for over eight years, and Mr. Sehorne has pastored the Victory Baptist Church of Oakland during that time.

Computer 4 U started as an Internet online and mail order business for complete computer systems and computer parts. Local business has grown so much that an addition was added to the Sehornes' home for local walk-in customers. In addition to their local business, Computer 4 U continues its world-wide Internet line and has shipped computers and accessories from California to Massachusetts and even overseas.

Computer 4 U offers wholesale Internet pricing for complete systems, accessories, printers, scanners, and software majoring in family PC systems. Free tech support; fast, local service; and full one-year warranty on all parts and systems is an integrate part of their business. Sehorne said he looks forward to continued service to the people of Garrett County and the surrounding area, and invites the public to stop by and visit Computer 4 U during the month of January to take advantage of their first anniversary sale. Computer 4 U can be reached by calling 301-334-1631.

Holiday Visit Of Bloodmobile Nets 174 Units

Even though local residents were busy with the holidays, 189 people, including Santa Claus, found time to donate blood at the American Red Cross bloodmobile on Monday, Dec. 22. Of those stopping by to donate, 174 productive units of blood were collected.

"We were very pleased with the turnout and appreciate each and every person who helped out that day," stated a local representative. "It's not often a bloodmobile that close to Christmas is this successful."

First-time donors were: Ressic Conrad, Aurora, W.Va., David W. Roth, Horse Shoe Run, W.Va., and Annette Chapman, Becky DeWitt, Timothy Swartzentruber, and Louise M. Upole, all of Oakland.

Three people donated for the eighth time to reach the 1-gallon mark. They were Lisa Calhoun, Nellie Harvey, and Suzanne Ryan. Anne Forrester and Barbara Kauffman reached the 2-gallon milestone. The 3-gallon mark was hit by George L. Beckman, Debbie Hamrick, Arthur Hanlin, and Carl Rebele. Brenda Beckman reached the 4-gallon mark. Lowell Leitzel reached the 5-gallon mark. The 8-gallon milestone was attained by Charles W. Harvey. Top donor for Monday was Mary M. Rodeheaver, who donated for the 112th time to reach the 14-gallon level.

The canteen was sponsored by the Junior Woman's Civic Club. Sodas were donated by the Coca-Cola Bottling Company of Cumberland. Junior Ferguson donated home-made cookies. Bodyworks at Trader's Landing supplied a special incentive to donate, by offering coupons for services at its shop.

Volunteers making the visit possible were: Rosalie Baker, greeter; Don Forrester, Elizabeth Huxford, and Barb Sweitzer, registration; Kathy Edwards, Junior Ferguson, Penny Merkle, Patricia Powles, and Sue Shockey, canteen; and Anne Forrester, Dee Murphy, and Joyce Ridder, walkers.

The Deep Creek Lake Lioness Club helped staff the canteen for the third time this year. "We'd like to see more organizations like the Junior Woman's Civic and Deep Creek Lake Lioness clubs get involved in such an important community project. If your organization would like to help, please contact Elizabeth Huxford, Garrett County blood services chairman at 301-387-2280," stated the spokesperson.

The next scheduled Garrett County bloodmobile will be at the Oakland Armory on Friday, Feb. 20, from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Anyone age 17 or older who weighs at least 105 pounds and is in generally good health may donate blood every 56 days. Those with a question on donor eligibility may call the Johnstown Region American Red Cross at 1-800-54BLOOD.

Heron Cove
"Deep Creek's Last Great Lakefront Lot"
. . . but about the most trailblazing you'll be doing is finding your way from your back door to the tennis courts, enjoying an evening stroll down lovely wooded trails, or slipping over to your own private dock for some of the best boating in all of Maryland — skimming atop the tranquil, blue waters of Deep Creek Lake.
And though it may seem to be a world unto itself — with its peaceful setting and crisp, clean air — this little diamond in Garrett County's crown is literally just minutes from great shopping, two 18-hole golf courses, a movie theater, and all the fine dining that makes being on the mountain top so special.

Follow Address Posting Guidelines, 911 Officials Urge

The Garrett County Office of Emergency Management, which operates the county-wide 911 emergency telephone center, reminds citizens to post their house address numbers where they will be plainly visible from the street to aid emergency units responding to calls for assistance.

"It is critical to post the address where it is clearly visible to emergency response units," said Brad Frantz, director of Garrett County Emergency Management, "not just because it is mandated by the ordinance, but to assure that emergency personnel can find the residence without delay.

"Many people don't understand the concept or the rationale for the numbering system," Frantz continued, "or why it is necessary for address numbers to be visibly posted. The street addresses outside the limits of incorporated towns correspond to a distance along that roadway with increments of 100 for every tenth of a mile."

According to Frantz, "A street address of 500 would be .5 miles from the start of that road; a street address of 1000 would be one mile; an address of 10000 would be 10 miles. All street addresses begin at the farthest points south or west, and even numbers are on the right-hand side, odd numbers on the left."

By law, each building in the county serving as a dwelling or a place of business must be assigned a house or building number, done in accordance with the uniform numbering system.

The building number must be plainly displayed in accordance with local regulations, which are summarized in the following paragraphs.

Individual Residences

When each house or building has been assigned its respective address, the owner or his designated occupant or agent shall post the number in a clearly visible location on the exterior of the structure within 60 days of notification of the assigned address. Numbers shall be placed on new structures prior to occupancy. The cost of posting the address shall be the responsibility of the property owner.

For residences, address numerals shall be at least 3 inches tall and made of a durable and clearly visible material. Street address numbers shall be of a contrasting color to the background on which they are mounted.

The numbers shall be placed on, above, or at the side of the main entrance so that the number is discernible from the street.

Whenever a residence is over 75 feet from the street, or when the entrance is not visible from the street, the number shall be placed along a walk, driveway, or other suitable location within 20 feet of the edge of the street or road pavement, and at a minimum of 4 feet in height, so that the address number is discernible from the street.

Places of Business

For commercial and industrial structures, the numerals shall be at least 4 inches tall if located within 75 feet of a roadway or at least 10 inches tall if located farther than 75 from the street. The guidelines for placing the number on the structure itself, or along a driveway if not visible from the street, are the same as the guidelines for residences in the preceding paragraph.

Apartments and Trailer Parks

Apartments and similar complexes assigned a single building number shall display address numbers on each assigned structure using numbers that are at least 8 inches tall. Trailer parks and similar complexes assigned a single building number shall display the assigned number at the main entranceway using numbers that are at least 8 inches tall, placed at least 4 feet in height, and within 20 feet of the edge of the street or road pavement. Numbers or letters for individual apartments, trailers, or units must be at least 3 inches tall and be displayed on, above, or to the side of the main doorway of each apartment, trailer, or unit.

Persons interested in further information on the regulations pertaining to county addresses may contact Jim Torrington of the planning office at 301-334-1920.

Accident Visit Of Bloodmobile Nets 40 Units

The Zion Lutheran Church in Accident helped the American Red Cross collect 40 units of blood on Monday, Jan. 5. "With holiday supplies as low as 25% for some blood types, every unit we collect becomes very precious," stated a local Red Cross representative. "Community drives like Accident's are very important in stemming these shortages."

First-time donors were: Dianne Fontaine, Mike Fontaine, Brenda Frazee, and Brian Homberg.

Margaret Frost and Donna Sites reached the 1-gallon mark. The 2-gallon milestone was attained by James Bowman and Charles Frazee. Those reaching the 3-gallon mark were Barbara Law and Beulah Thomas. Richard Sherwood topped the 5-gallon mark. Top donor for Monday was Rod Bowser, who donated for the 56th time to reach the 7-gallon milestone.

Those assisting Rev. Dr. Wilfred L. Karsten, bloodmobile coordinator, in making the bloodmobile possible were: Lisa Bonar, Tracy Bowman, Mildred Haenftling, Helen A. Harman, Denise Homberg, and Linda Oester.

"We would like to sincerely thank the Zion Lutheran Church for supporting the Red Cross by sponsoring this bloodmobile. They provided the site, the canteen, the volunteers, and the behind-the-scenes efforts it takes to make a bloodmobile happen. Without their efforts, the Red Cross would not be able to have an Accident visit," stated the spokesperson.

Upcoming bloodmobiles in Garrett County will be held in Oakland on February 20 and Grantsville on March 2. The American Red Cross, Johnstown Region, which includes Garrett County, needs to collect at least 700 units of blood a day to maintain adequate supplies for the hospitals it serves. Anyone age 17 or older who weighs at least 105 pounds and is in generally good health may donate blood every 56 days. Any person with a question on donor eligibility may call the American Red Cross, Johnstown Region at1-800-54BLOOD.

Livestock Assn. Meeting Scheduled

The Garrett County Livestock Association will meet on Thursday, January 22. The meeting for members and new members will begin at 7 p.m. at the Garrett County Extension Office.

Energy Dept. To Consider Approval Of Biodiesel Fuel

After more than two years of pressure and petitions by the American Farm Bureau Federation and the biodiesel industry, the Energy Department announced that it will begin the rulemaking process for approving biodiesel as an alternative fuel under the Energy Policy Act of 1992 (EPACT).

EPACT was enacted shortly following the war in the Persian Gulf in order to reduce the United States' dependence on imported petroleum by promoting aiternative fuels. Since EPACT's passage, AFBF and other biodiesel proponents have urged the Energy Department to include blended biodiesel, or B20, in its list of alternative fuels.

Bernice Kepple, Farm Editor

Farming In Maryland.....

The use of B20 would be a boon to producers of soybean and other vegetable oils from which the fuel is derived. But bringing the cleaner-burning fuel into mainstream use is expected to create even more widespread benefits.

"B20 is beneficial not only to farmers and ranchers, but to all Americans," explained AFBF President Dean Kleckner. "The use of blended biodiesel will boost farm income by opening new markets for agricultural products, improve our environment and enhance national energy security—without creating new tax breaks or subsidies."

The opportunity for expanding new markets could hardly come at a better time for farmers, since they are still adjusting to the shrinking role of traditional federal farm programs in American agriculture. Farmers are captive to market forces more than ever before, and the designation of B20 as an alternative fuel is expected to ease that transition by providing a stable market for agricultural goods.

According to a study published in 1996 by the Agriculture Department, a biodiesel market as little as 30 million gallons per year would increase the price of U.S. soybeans at the farm gate by approximately 10 cents per bushel. Based on 1996 production figures, this would equate to more than $240 million annually of potential farm income derived from the production and use of biodiesel.

Biodiesel offers significant environmental advantages, an important factor as the agriculture industry searches for ways to comply with increasingly strict regulatory standards. Studies show that using B20 in unmodified engines can reduce total carbon monoxide emissions by more than 13 percent. In fact, the EPA approved B20 as part of particulate matter control technology for older urban buses. And because biodiesel comes from renewable resources that recycle carbon as part of the natural growing cycle, it does not contribute to increases in greenhouse gases.

Consumers should find it easy to convert to using blended biodiesel since it provides the same horsepower and mileage as conventional diesel and is compatible with existing diesel fuel infrastructures, making B20 a cost competitive option for fleet managers and general consumers who must comply with EPACT regulations.

The Energy Department is expected to draft its proposed rule in the coming weeks, followed by public hearings and a comment period. Meanwhile, committees in both the House and Senate are expected this year to work on bills for improving the Energy Department rule. A final decision on the biodiesel rule should be published later this year.

Farm Prices Mostly Down For December

Prices received by Maryland and Delaware farm operators for December were mostly down from November. Crop items were up from November to December for winter wheat, barley and hay, but down for corn, soybeans and oats. Livestock items were down for all items except chickens and market eggs.

Maryland Egg Production Report Out

Maryland laying flocks produced 68 million eggs during November 1997, of which 61 million were table eggs and 7 million were hatching eggs. The average rate of lay was 71.7%. The average number of layers on hand during November 1997 was 3,163,000. On Dec. 1, 1997, 3.0% of the layers in Maryland were being molted and 42.0% of all layers had been through a molt.

United States Hog Inventory Up 7 Percent

U.S. inventory of all hogs and pigs on Dec. 1, 1997, was 59.9 million head. This was 7% above Dec. 1996, but 1% below Sept. 1, 1997.

Breeding inventory, at 6.98 million head, is up 5% from Dec. 1, 1996, and up 1% from Sept. 1, 1997. Market hog inventory, at 52.9 million head, was 7% above last year but 1% below last quarter.

The Sept.-Nov. 1997 U.S. pig crop, at 25.3 million head, was 9% more than 1996 and 8% more than 1995. Sows farrowing during this period totaled 2.93 million head, 8% above last year. The sows farrowed during this quarter represented 42% of the breeding herd. The average pigs per litter continues to increase at a rapid pace, with an average of 8.63 pigs saved per litter for the Sept.-Nov. period. Last year the litter rate averaged 8.52 pigs per litter. Pigs saved per litter by size of operation ranged from 7.40 for operations with 1-99 hogs to 8.90 for operations with more than 5,000 hogs and pigs.

U.S. hog producers intend to have 2.91 million sows farrow during the Dec. 1997-Feb. 1998 quarter, 9% above the actual farrowings during the same period last year, and 6% higher than 1996. Intended farrowings for March-May 1998, at 3.04 million sows, are 3% above both the 1997 and the 1996 period.

The number of operations totaled 138,690 during 1997, down 11% from last year and 24% below 1995. Places with 2,000 or more hogs on hand accounted for 4% of the operations and 55% of the inventory. This is the second time operations with inventories over 2,000 head have controlled over 50% of the total inventory. The number of operations with over 5,000 head of inventory, at 1,520, accounted for 35% of the total inventory. The total number of hogs under contract, owned by these over 5,000 head operations but raised by contractees, accounted for 25% of the total U.S. hog inventory.

Local Dairy Farmers Recognized At Recent Cooperative Meeting

Garrett County dairy farmers Arlen and Glenda Maust, members of Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative, were among members honored at their local district meeting last fall in Centerville, Pa. The Mausts, whose family dairy farm is located near Bittinger, were recognized for reaching the highest quality milk level every month from August 1, 1996, through July 31, 1997. To qualify for this award, the somatic cell count and bacteria level, including plate loop and preliminary incubation (PI), from their cows had to be low enough to qualify for the cooperative's premium price.

The Mausts and their three children, Brent, Scott and Susan, own a herd of 50 Holsteins: milking cows, dry cows and heifers. Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative is a selling cooperative/broker, and the Mausts' milk, which is hauled by Kuhn's Trucking in Bedford, Pa., is shipped to milk plant facilities in Laurel and Cumberland, Md., and New Wilmington, Del.

For this achievement, the Mausts received "Quality Producer" shirts, an engraved plaque, and a $50 credit at the cooperative's farm supply and equipment warehouse.

Recognized for producing premium milk for 11 of the 12 months were: Donald, Clifford, Carl and Dennis Cessna, of Cessna Brothers, Clearville, Pa.; and Phillip and Nancy Dayton, of True Vine Holsteins, Ridgely, W.Va. The winners received "Quality Producer" hats, a framed certificate and a $50 credit at the cooperative warehouse.

Eddie and Shelva Ott and Neil Cessna of C & O Farm, Clearville, Pa.; and Allen Claar, Bedford, Pa., were recognized for 25 years of membership with Maryland and Virginia. To thank them for their cooperative loyalty, general manager George Walgrove presented them with an engraved plaque and 25-year member lapel pins.

As one of 22 well-attended district meetings, this local meeting attracted nearly 70 dairy farmers, who were updated on the marketplace and factors affecting low milk prices this year. Highlighting the meeting was Walgrove's presentation, informing cooperative members that they received 75 cents per hundredweight, including 66 cents in cash, above market prices in 1996. This included a record 30-cent per hundredweight 13th milk check, patronage dividends, Middle Atlantic Cooperative Milk Marketing Association and quality premiums.

Allen O'Hara, manager of member services and public relations, discussed the benefits of the Young Cooperator program, an educational and leadership development program for young members. Presentations were also made by President Jack Hardesty, a dairy farmer from Berryvilie, Va., and a representative from the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association, who reported on the milk advertising and promotion programs that dairy farmers fund.

Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative Association, headquartered in Reston, Va., is a milk marketing and processing cooperative that markets milk for 1,200 dairy farmers throughout Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and Delaware. The cooperative includes Marva Maid, a milk processing division in Newport News, Va., a manufacturing division in Laurel, Md., and an equipment division in Frederick, Md.

Pork Producers Recommend Framework Environmental Plan

The closely watched National Environmental Dialogue on Pork Production was concluded recently. Its report recommending the regulation of all aspects of swine production is certain to spark an intense debate within the livestock community over how to address environmental challenges.

The report titled "The Comprehensive Framework for Environmental Regulation of Swine Production Operations" calls for permitting, with full public participation, of most new and existing swine production operations regardless of size. New and expanding operations would be affected immediately; existing operations would be phased in over five years.

The plan addresses many issues including design and construction standards for manure storage systems, site inspection, nutrient management training and certification, record keeping, manure storage and application requirements, facility siting, emergency response plans, financial surety and closure of unused facilities.

The report is a bold attempt to confront some of the environmental problems associated with the rapidly changing nature of swine production and provide an environmental road map not only for producers, but for local, state and federal regulators.

"These are very serious and tough recommendations that represent a good faith attempt by producers to address public concerns," said Mark Maslyn, deputy executive director of the American Farm Bureau Federation's Washington, D.C., office. "It will be critical for policy makers at all levels to recognize this and allow time for the industry to implement them."

The report was developed after nearly a year of dialogue between pork producers, representatives of state and local governments, the Agriculture Department and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. It comes at a time of increased public attention on agriculture, particularly livestock operations, and their potential to impact water quality. It also coincides with trends toward greater concentration of animals in livestock operations and the many related social concerns associated with that trend.

These and other concerns have caused many local and state governments to construct an inconsistent patchwork of statutes and regulation that is often economically stifling and scientifically and environmentally unfounded. The recommendations in the report attempt to provide a consistent framework for environmentally sound and economically achievable regulation. Many are likely to be included in various regulatory initiatives now under development by EPA and USDA, including proposed effluent guidelines, animal feeding operation regulations and nutrient management requirements.

Among the report's recommendations are that all swine production operations:

- Register all lagoons, earthen basins and other manure storage structures;
- Use approved designs and construction methods for all new manure storage structures;
- Comply with setback requirements for all new or expanded manure storage structures;
- Maintain manure management and nutrient management plans;
- Conduct soil testing every two years and manure nutrient analyses annually;
- Follow land application procedures and practices to protect water quality and minimize odor;
- Apply manure based on nitrogen or phosphorus levels as determined by soil types and tests;
- Identify supervisors for land application, and train all employees who conduct land application;
- Obtain certification for proper nutrient/manure management and environmental protection;
- Keep records for three years after additions to nutrient, manure and emergency response plans;
- Prevent discharges of manure or wastewater to surface water or ground water, and prevent confined animals from direct contact with surface waters;
- Do not locate, construct or maintain manure storage structures so as to impair water quality;
- Provide adequate financial surety to assure proper closure of manure storage structures; and
- Properly close any unused manure storage facilities.

The report proposes that the appropriate state regulatory authorities would be responsible for developing facility design standards and specifications to protect water and reduce odor, and set phosphorus soil threshold standards for all major soil types within five years. The authorities would receive compliance plans from existing operators.

The regulatory agencies could waive requirements if operators show that alternatives will equally protect the environment, and they may extend or waive compliance requirements for hardship or other factors.

Maryland Hog Inventory Up 14 Percent

The inventory of all hogs and pigs in Maryland was estimated at 73,000 head on December 1, 1997. This is 14% more than the 64,000 on hand a year earlier and 23% less than the number on hand two years earlier.

The breeding inventory of 11,000 head was 1,000 fewer than a year earlier and 7,000 fewer than two years ago. The number of market hogs on Maryland farms was 62,000, an increase of 8,000 from the year before. All weight classes had substantially more pigs on hand on Dec. 1, 1997, compared with a year ago. The number of hog operations in the state was 540 in 1997, down from the 580 a year earlier.

No matter what profession, American workers depend on agricultural products to get their jobs done.

Miller Seeking Nomination For Circuit Judge Of Preston Co.

Kingwood lawyer Lawrence S. "Larry" Miller Jr. has announced his intention to seek the Republican nomination to fill the unexpired term of Circuit Court Judge of Preston County, a job that will be left vacant by the current judge, Neil Reed, who has choseu not to seek re-election.

Miller, a 1974 graduate of the West Virginia University School of Law, has practiced law in Preston County for the past 23 years. He is currently a partner in the firm of Dailey and Miller in Kingwood and his experience includes knowledge of civil and criminal litigations; real estate law; corporate and business law; estate, trust, and probate law; juvenile law; domestic relations; and bankruptcy, collection, and Workers Compensation laws. He has practiced before regulatory and governmental agencies, including the United States Department of Labor, the West Virginia Public Service Commission, the West Virginia Division of Environmental Protection, the West Virginia Workers Compensation Commission, the West Virginia Tax and Revenue Department, and the West Virginia Transportation Department. He has also served the citizens of Preston County as mental hygiene commissioner for 20 years, and is a trained mediator.

His professional associations include membership in the West Virginia State Bar Unlawful Practice Committee, the American Bar Association, and the West Virginia State Bar Association. He is currently president of the Preston County Bar Association and is a past member of the Board of Governors of the West Virginia State Bar and the West Virginia State Bar Young Lawyers Executive Committee.

"My greatest satisfaction as a lawyer is working to ensure that the rights of all persons are protected," Miller said during his announcement to seek the judgeship. "I believe in the fair and impartial application of the law. I feel that my 23 years of experience and training, as well as my commitment to our community, qualify me for the position of circuit judge. Serving the people of Preston County as their judge is an exciting, challenging opportunity. If elected, I will bring to this office the best of my skills, energy, dedication, and enthusiasm . . . and I promise that Preston County will continue to be a county where justice is taken seriously with great reverence and respect."

Miller and his wife Susan, a native of Newburg, are the parents of two daughters, Paige and Jessica. The family is actively involved in community and church activities.

AURORA/EGLON NEWS

UNION AMBULANCE

A quilt has been put in the frames, and those who wish to help quilt are being asked to come to the Union Ambulance squad hall kitchen on Wednesdays at 1 p.m. If there is interest in an evening quilting time, persons may contact Ellen Harsh, 735-5468, or Delores Stemple, 735-5187, to make arrangements.

Union Ambulance is also sponsoring a Spring Craft Fair at the Aurora squad hall. Persons who would like a table for this event on April 4, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., may contact either of the above mentioned persons. Cost is $10 per table.

VFD DONATIONS

The Aurora and Mt. Grove volunteer fire departments have been busy in recent weeks and have answered two fires which were reportedly very destructive. A machine shed and shop belonging to John Calcamp of Horse Shoe Run was destroyed, along with its contents. On January 10, the home of Carol Sue Roth of Silver Lake also was lost in a blaze.

Donations to the Aurora VFD this past month were by Sisler Lumber Company, Peggy Hauser, Victor Kope, Jessie Fedorow, Bob Shiffy, James and Ruth Magruder, Willard Feather, Thomas and Marjorie Dunham, Gortner Union Sunday School and Church, Allegheny Power, and one in memory of Frank Stemple by the Jeeter Family.

EGLON HOMEMAKERS

A look back at the old year and forward to the new year included 10 resolutions and made up the devotions provided by Ruth Teets to open the January 6 meeting of the Eglon Homemakers in her home.

Election of officers for 1998 was as follows: Sandra Hauser, president; Linda Lewis, vice president; Jean Winters, secretary; Avenell Parsons, treasurer; and Ruth Teets, Nina Layman, and Rebecca Teets, chaplains. As this will be the 50th anniversary of the organizing of the club, it is hoped that a celebration can be prepared. Linda Lewis led in a study about health tips. The lesson concluded with each receiving a foot massage.

Attending were Mary Rembold, Avenell Parsons, Jean Winters, Sandra Hauser, Nina Layman, Beth Hauser, Linda Lewis and Ruth Teets. The next meeting will be February 3, with Jean Winters bringing the lesson, Nina Layman providing devotions, and Ruth Teets the hostess.

AURORA SCHOOL

Aurora Youth League basketball swings into action January 16 with three games: A. Strawser vs. B. Wilt at 6 p.m.; S. Mauldin vs. M. Radford at 7 p.m.; and at 8 p.m., P. Wilt vs. B. Fauber (team coaches named). On Sunday, January 18, the games begin at 1 p.m. with R. Myers vs. J. Mauldin. Other games will continue through the afternoon until the last at 5 p.m.

Games will be again played on Friday night, Jan. 23, and Sunday, Jan. 25, at the same times. They will continue each week on Friday nights and Sunday afternoons through February. Other teams are coached by Rick Myers, John Mauldin, Jack Snyder, Mike Rocha, Chris Conrad, Alan Wilt, Stacey Rocha, Derrick Radford, Alan Snyder, and Brian Corbin. Players are K-12 students.

The Aurora band students, under the direction of Mrs. Jackson, have participated in Christmas holiday activities. The fifth graders performed at the school and the sixth graders went to the Terra Alta Bank on December 19, where they played special holiday selections and were then treated to cookies and juice. They also attended the W.Va. Marching Band Keynotes concert at the Creative Arts Center on December 2.

A music class is being taught by Cathy Bailey, who also teaches at Tunnelton Denver Elementary. Grades K-1 made kazoos from cardboard tubes. Sixth graders put music into action, and fourth graders marched through the halls with Miss Bailey playing the French horn for the last day before Christmas break.

Art classes are under the direction of Valerie Carlsen. Kindergarteners learned to use various media (chalk, paint, pencil); first graders made clocks; and second graders made calendars. The entire school is studying the rainforest, and many projects by the other classes reflect that emphasis and other areas. During January and February, dental posters will be an effort from fifth and sixth grades.

The school has adopted a school located on the banks of the Amazon River for which they will provide $300 for supplies and books. The students will correspond with students there and, it is hoped, develop a personal interest in the students of the Jose-Carlos Mariategui School. Students are asked to bring in donations to provide the $300.

Second graders began 1998 by decorating a bulletin board with resolutions for the remainder of the school term. Michael Slaubaugh's resolution was to "think more before opening my mouth to speak." His teacher is Krista Hayes.

Her class began the new year's study with the calendar, finding many dates to anticipate. The past week's study has been about New York City, and this week begins a story of a whale that took a wrong turn, ending in New York Harbor. The second graders are continuing the reading of Little House on the Prairie.

Mr. Mullins and the sixth graders are currently writing poetry and prose to be entered in Preston County Young Writers contest, which is sponsored by the Preston County Reading Council.

Five finalists will be selected to determine the school winner for the Aurora entry in the county spelling bee. Sixth grade finalists are Leah Strawser, Ryan Feather, Tyler Sigley, Lauren Roth, and Sara Lewis. All fifth and sixth grade students are participating in the Preston County Science Fair. Mike Dixon and Ron Freeman have provided help to the students, and Mrs. Carlsen, the art teacher, will help with the display of exhibits.

SCHOOLCRAFT BIRTH

Their first child, a daughter named Alexis Brooke, was born January 9 to Phillip "Scooter" and Tonya Schoolcraft of Terra Alta. The baby was 18½ inches in length and weighed 6 pounds, 14 ounces upon arrival at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Maternal grandparents are Russell and Donna Beckman of Eglon, and maternal great-grandparents are Woodrow and Helen Watts of Grafton. Paternal grandparents are Carl and Joann Schoolcraft of Terra Alta. Great-grandparents are Charles and Betty Graham and Sylvia Schoolcraft, all of Clendenin.

PARSONS NAMESAKE

Van and Janet Marceau have named their adopted son Jonathon Ronald. He was born December 23 and weighed 6 pounds, 8 ounces. He joined the Marceaus, including an older sister Tasha, at their Martinsburg home after Christmas. Mrs. Marceau is the daughter of Evelyn Johnson and the late Ronald Junior Parsons and a granddaughter of Ronald Parsons, Eglon.

PERSONAL MENTION

Glenn and Helen Strawser of Eglon were guests of honor at a dinner at Oak-Mar Restaurant in Oakland Sunday in observance of their 46th wedding anniversary, which is January 19. Family attending were Roger and Debbie Strawser, Brian, Amy, and Brandon Strawser, Travis Strawser and girlfriend Nicole, and Allan, Annette, and Michale Strawser.

Ardis "Sandy" Teets returned to her home at Eglon on Wednesday after spending the holidays in North Carolina with her children, Nathan and Nicole Teets.

Rebecca Teets is reportedly recuperating at her home near Eglon after being a patient in Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Peggy Spaid also returned to her home at Eglon after undergoing surgery Tuesday at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Juanita Michaels was a surgical patient last week in Garrett County Memorial Hospital and is now recuperating at her Mt. Grove home.

Bernice Winters underwent outpatient surgery last Tuesday at Garrett Memorial Hospital and is now at her Horse Shoe Run home.

Mark and Lindsey Teets returned last Wednesday to Eglon from Sucre, Bolivia, where they had accompanied a group of local area residents on a building mission. They had departed December 27. Another group who left here on December 30 expected to be back in the area on Monday, as they relayed from Miami on Sunday. In that group were Michael Lantz of Aurora and Leonard Snyder of Amboy. The latter group had been delayed in their return by weather conditions.

Wilma Knapp of Amboy will be observing her 85th birthday on January 21. Cards may be addressed to her at: HC82 Box 107, Terra Alta, WV 26764.

Gary and Julie Baker of Virginia Beach, Va., were weekend visitors with her family, Tom, Linda, and Sara Lewis, Eglon; his family, Stephen, Carolyn, Leah and Lauren Baker, Terra Alta Pike; and other area relatives.

Weekend visitors of Terry, Jill and Andrew Hauser, Eglon, were her parents, Sam and Patricia Masters, a sister, and others.

Lorain and Mary Jane Hanline of Aurora visited last Monday to Wednesday with her mother, Lydia Harsh, and other relatives in Ohio.

Terra Alta Brownie Troop "Going Strong"

Brownie Troop 4545, organized last September in Terra Alta, currently boasts a membership of 30 girls (the largest such scout troop in Preston County) and, according to its leaders, is "going strong."

"We were surprised at the turnout," said troop leader Cathy Teets, "but we have already accomplished many goals and the girls are learning about themselves and the world around them." Brownies are girls in grades 1-3, and Troop 4545 meets the first and third Wednesday of each month after school at the Terra Alta Ambulance squad hall. Teets shares the responsibility of troop leader with Mary Hart.

The local troop's activities have included making crafts and writing and performing their own skits. The scouts won a blue ribbon at the Preston County Buckwheat Festival for their entry this past fall and donated 20 bags of clothing to Goodwill during a recent Girl Scout Clothing Drive. They also participated in the Girl Scout Nut and Candy Sale during November.

The Brownies of Troop 4545 have recently begun selling Girl Scout cookies. "The girls are excited about selling the cookies," said Teets, "and for most of them, this is the first time." The cookie sale began Jan. 9, and persons may contact Teets at 789-2508, Hart at 789-2347, or Reva Martin at 789-6551 to place an order. The cost per box is $3.

The Terra Alta troop is affiliated with Girl Scouts of Western Pennsylvania. The service unit manager for the Preston District is Judy Fletcher of Kingwood.

"We couldn't have organized this troop without Judy's help," Teets stressed. "She has helped guide us and has been very willing to answer the multitude of questions that come up every week. We also appreciate the Terra Alta Ambulance Squad for allowing us to meet in their building."

SUBSTITUTE TRUSTEES' SALE OF REAL PROPERTY LOCATED AT STONE QUARRY ROAD McHENRY, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND 21541

Under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in a Deed of Trust from Lincoln L. Pickett, dated November 25, 1995 and recorded in Liber 667, Folio 750 in the Land Record Office of Garrett County, Maryland, the holder of the indebtedness secured thereby having appointed Ronald S. Deutsch, Craig A. Parker and Shannon A. Coen, Substitute Trustees by instrument duly executed, acknowledged and recorded among the Land Records aforesaid, the undersigned Substitute Trustees will offer for sale at public auction:

AT THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR GARRETT COUNTY, AT THE COURT HOUSE DOOR, OAKLAND, ON JANUARY 20, 1998 AT 1:00 O'CLOCK P.M.

All that property described in said Deed of Trust, the description of which is adopted and incorporated by reference as follows:

Beginning at an iron pipe, said beginning iron pipe being the beginning corner of the 2.0 acre parcel conveyed by Peter A. Laquer, et al., to George Pease, et ux., by deed dated December 1, 1978 and recorded in Liber No. 394, folio 916 one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, and running: thence from said beginning iron pipe, West 215.5 feet to an iron pipe; thence South 200.2 feet to an iron pipe standing in the northerly margin of a 30.0 foot roadway; thence with said northerly margin, West, 215.5 feet to an iron pipe, it being the second corner of said 2.0 acre parcel; thence leaving said northerly margin and running with the first line reversed of said 2.0 acre parcel, North 200.2 feet to the beginning, containing 1.0 acre, more or less. The improvements thereon are now known as No. Stone Quarry Road.

The property is commonly known as Box 616 Stone Quarry Road, McHenry, Maryland 21541. The property is being sold in fee-simple, subject to conditions, restrictions and agreements of record, affecting same, if any, and with no warranty as to the description of the improvements.

Terms of Sale: A deposit of $4,700 will be required at the time of sale in the form of cash, certified check or other form as the Substitute Trustees determine acceptable. If the noteholder and/or servicer is the successful bidder, the deposit requirement is waived. The property will be sold in an "AS IS" condition without either express or implied warranty or representation, including, but not limited to, the description, fitness for a particular purpose/use, structural integrity, physical condition, construction, extent of construction, workmanship, materials, habitability, zoning, subdivision, environmental condition, merchantability, compliance with building codes or other laws, ordinances or regulations, or other similar matters. The Substitute Trustees reserve the right to reject any and all bids, withdraw the property from sale, postpone same and sell the property at a later date. Balance of the purchase price to be paid in cash within ten (10) days of final ratification of sale by the Circuit Court. Time is of the essence as to the purchaser. Interest to be paid on the unpaid purchase money at the rate pursuant to the deed or Trust Note from the date of sale to the date funds are received in the office of the Substitute Trustees. In the event settlement is delayed for any reason, there shall be no abatement of interest. Taxes, ground rent, water rent, condominium fees, and/or homeowner association dues, if applicable, shall be adjusted to the date of sale and assumed thereafter by the purchaser. All other public charges and assessments payable on an annual basis, including sanitary and/or metropolitan district charges to be adjusted for the current year to date of sale and assumed thereafter by the purchaser. Cost of all documentary stamps, transfer taxes and settlement expenses shall be borne by the purchaser. Purchaser shall be responsible for obtaining physical possession of the property. In the event the property is occupied by tenants, the Substitute Trustees assume no responsibility for security deposits, or other monies paid by the tenants to anyone. Purchaser assumes the risk of loss or damage to the property from the time of sale. Should the property be damaged, there shall be no abatement of the purchase price. If the purchaser defaults, the deposit will be declared forfeit, and applied as required by Maryland law. In addition to any other legal or equitable remedies available to the Substitute Trustees or noteholder, the property will be resold at the risk and expense of the defaulting purchaser, who shall be liable for any deficiency resulting from the resale, and all costs and expenses of the resale, including, but not limited to, attorneys fees and all other charges incurred by the Substitute Trustees. If the Substitute Trustees are unable to convey good and marketable title, the purchaser's sole remedy in law and equity shall be limited to a refund of the deposit. Upon refund of the deposit, this sale shall be void and of no effect and the purchaser shall have no further claim against the Substitute Trustees or the noteholder. The Substitute Trustees, their attorneys, agents, auctioneer and/or the noteholder shall not be liable individually or otherwise for any matters relating to this sale and/or the property and purchaser agrees to hold them harmless.

GCCAC Seeks To Expand Program For Home Buyers

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners this week signed a letter of support to be a part of the Garrett County Community Action Committee's (GCCAC) request for state money. The funding is being sought from the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development and is to be used to enhance GCCAC's First Time Home Buyers Program.

Duane Yoder, director of GCCAC, and Loring Young, GCCAC's community development director, met with the commissioners Tuesday to ask for the endorsement letter and reported that the local program assisted 54 families in 1996-96 in purchasing homes. Yoder and his staff are requesting $240,000 from the state department, which will help them assist 15 households, he reported. Included in the amount is $15,000 for staff salaries.

Yoder said the Rural Housing Service has set aside over $400,000 of national funds for the Garrett County project and the American Trust Bank has again made a commitment to provide an interest rate equal to what the Maryland Bond program offers.

Those interested in purchasing their first home first take a six-hour class given by the GCCAC that instructs them on the process of purchasing and maintaining a home. The organization also provides financial assistance to families in obtaining the down-payment needed to acquire permanent financing, and provides assistance in packaging loan applications for mortgages. Banking, legal, insurance, and realty representatives give free time for the classes, Yoder noted.

Yoder reported that with the homes purchased last year, a total of $4,260,000 in mortgages was generated. The average house price was $79,000, and the average down-payment assistance was $14,000. He said over $53,000 in annual real estate taxes are generated directly from the 54 homes bought, and another $14,000 is projected for the 1998 purchases.

He told the commissioners that housing activities of the GCCAC involving home ownership, rental projects,

SHARING STORIES — Smiling faces were all around at Broad Ford Elementary School Friday afternoon as Maryland Governor Parris N. Glendening began his "Reading Across Maryland" project at the local school. The governor came to the county for a 24-hour stay and accomplished a wide range of activities in that time span. His first order of business was to share a book or two with the second graders and to discuss the importance of reading with them. Glendening has issued a challenge to all school children in the state to read 10 books by the end of the school year. When students complete the task and report it to their teachers, they will each receive a certificate from the governor. Later in the day, the governor reported that he was "absolutely delighted" by the children he met, one of whom informed him that she had already finished her 10 books. State's Attorney Recovering From Sudden Surgery

Garrett County State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch is presently recovering from gallbladder surgery, having undergone the procedure on Jan. 12. Assistant State's Attorney Daryl Walters is handling the responsibilities of the county office. Delays in any service from that office should be minimal, Welch said this morning in an interview.

While Welch had been slated to undergo laparoscopy sometime in the near future, the surgery on Jan. 12 was "sudden," she said. The state's attorney became ill on Jan. 3 and entered Garrett County Memorial Hospital on Jan. 10. The laparoscopy surgery was slated for Jan. 12, but as the procedure began and some complications arose, physicians opted to proceed with major surgery.

Welch remained in the hospital until Jan. 18 and is now recuperating at home. She commented that she was "thoroughly impressed" by the quality of care she received at Garrett Memorial.

State Crime Rate Still Falling, Garrett County's Up Slightly

Crime in Maryland continued a downward trend during the first nine months of 1997 compared to 1996, according to statistics from the Maryland State Police Uniform Crime Reporting System. Overall crime shows a seven percent decrease statewide.

Violent crime, consisting of murder, forcible rape, robbery, and aggravated assault, decreased by eight percent. Property crimes, including breaking and entering, larceny-theft, and motor vehicle theft, declined by seven percent. The biggest declines were realized in murder, down 16 percent and motor vehicle theft, down 16 percent, followed closely by robbery which declined 14 percent.

The crime rate for the nine-month period in Garrett County edged up .7%, with a total of 445 cases reported, compared to 442 for the same period in 1996. Specific crimes and numbers were: cases of murder, 0 in 1997, 1 in 1996; rape, 4 in 1997, 1 in 1996; robbery, 2 in 1997, 0 in 1996; aggravated assault, 42 in 1997, 26 in 1996; breaking and/or entering, 108 in 1997, 103 in 1996; larceny/theft, 259 in 1997, 299 in 1996; motor vehicle theft, 20 in 1997, 12 in 1996; and arson, 2 in 1997, 8 in 1996.

"I am pleased that we are continuing to make progress against violent crime," Governor Parris N. Glendening said. "This trend is encouraging and illustrates that the efforts of law enforcement, our citizens, and this administration are working together to reduce crime. We must remain vigilant in our efforts to fight crime each and every day in every community throughout the state."

"We have built an unprecedented level of coordination between state and local police and communities that is paying off in safer streets," said Lt. Governor Kathleen Kennedy Townsend, chair of the Cabinet Council on Criminal and Juvenile Justice. "Our new initiatives this year—a new prison for violent offenders and a statewide drug testing program to break the cycle of crime and addiction—will send the numbers even lower."

The largest decrease in crime (down 9.3 percent) was noticed in the Washington Metropolitan Region, which consists of Montgomery and Prince George's counties. Murder showed a 28.7 percent drop followed by a 19.8 percent decline in robbery and 19.0 percent decrease in motor vehicle theft. Aggravated assaults dropped by 12.9 percent. The only category to show an increase was forcible rape, up 1.5 percent.

The Baltimore Metropolitan Area, consisting of Baltimore City, Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Harford, and Howard counties, saw the second largest overall decrease in crime (down 7.1 percent). The largest decline in this region was seen in forcible rape, which declined by 21.2 percent. This was followed by a 15.2 percent drop in motor vehicle theft while murder declined 14.9 percent. Robbery also had a significant decrease showing a 13.5 percent decline. Aggravated assault was the only increase up 1.3 percent.

AEE Regional Conference Set At Wisp Resort

The Mid-Atlantic Regional Conference of the Association for Experiential Education will be held at the Wisp Resort and Conference Center, McHenry, March 27-29, according to Crystal Shaffer of the Adventuresports Institute of Garrett Community College.

As the convener of the conference, Shaffer has issued a call for presenters to submit suggestions for workshops and sessions they might conduct. "We are looking for presentations that will deepen the existing knowledge base of experiential education and broaden it as well," she said. The deadline for proposals is February 20.

Some proposed titles and topics for the session are: Adventure Education in the Classroom, Cooperative Games and Activities, Environmental Education, Experience Based Corporate Training and Development, Experiential Education in Therapy, Processing Skills, Risk Management in Experiential Education, Training and Working with Student

Governor Tours Wood Products During Visit

During a visit to Garrett County last Friday, Maryland Governor Parris N. Glendening was given a tour of the facility at Wood Products Inc., an Oakland-based converter of hardwood timber into lumber, according to company representatives.

Included in the governor's tour of the 24-acre facility was the newly purchased fan shed and mill production facility where logs are sawed into lumber.

"Encouraging employment growth in Garrett County is one of my highest economic development priorities," said Gov. Glendening. "In a county where the unemployment rate is substantially above the state and national averages, it's wonderful to see a company that continues to grow and create jobs for local residents."

In December, the Legislative Policy Committee approved a $350,000 Sunny Day loan through the Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development (DBED) to assist Wood Products in expanding its operations and creating jobs. That expansion will create 50 new jobs and retain 90 existing ones, according to a spokesperson. A $500,000 Maryland Industrial Land Act loan was also provided for construction of a fan shed and storage building.

In addition to these loans, the State of Maryland has committed a $50,000 workforce training grant through DBED's Maryland Industrial Training Program.

"We're glad the governor had the chance to come out and see for himself the expansions we're making thanks to the state's assistance," said Reginald Messenger, president of Wood Products. "He not only toured the facility, but he met the employees that make it all work."

Road Conditions Cause Accident; Two Injured

Maryland State Police (MSP) investigated several accidents recently that led to three persons being treated and released at Garrett County Memorial Hospital (GCMH). Road conditions were blamed for one accident that resulted in injuries to two women.

Another woman received minor injuries when she was struck by a vehicle after walking in a roadway, according to MSP reports.

In the pedestrian mishap, reports stated that on Jan. 14 at about 11:16 p.m., Emma J. Shaffer, Oakland walked out in front of a 1992 Ford Bronco, operated

Two Receive Heavy Sentences For Child Abuse, Related Charges

Two Garrett County men were sentenced to a total of 45 years on child abuse and child pornography charges by Garrett County Circuit Court Judge James L. Sherbin during court proceedings held last week.

Roger Lee Moats, 26, formerly of Swanton, was sentenced to a total of 20 years on two charges of child abuse. Two charges of child pornography led to eight more years of prison time, to run concurrently. The defendant pleaded guilty to these crimes in October.

Moats was arrested in April after a Maryland State Police investigation revealed that he had sexually assaulted two girls, ages 7 and 11, and took pornographic photographs of them. The abuse took place on various occasions from June 1996 until April 1997.

An Oakland man, Jackie Kenerson Glaze, 66, was sentenced to a total of 25 years, having been convicted of two counts of child abuse. Glaze is accused of abusing three boys, ages 8, 9 and 10, while they were in his care. He was arrested following an investigation by the Oakland City Police.

At the time of Glaze's sentencing, Assistant State's Attorney Daryl T. Walters, stated that Glaze is "a repeat offender and a danger to the community."

"With this sentence and the defendant's age, hopefully he will never again walk the streets of Oakland," Walters said. "The only good to come out of both cases is the excellent job State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch did in ensuring that the children would not have to relive their nightmare by testifying in court."

In other circuit court news, an Oakland man was sentenced to six months in jail. Arlington C. Shelton, 21, had entered a guilty plea to possession of a concealed deadly weapon, according to the report. Sherbin ordered the six-month term and gave Shelton 54 days, credit for time already served.

The defendant was arrested following an incident in October 1997 at a Mountain Lake Park establishment, where he allegedly threatened two people with a knife.

A suspended sentence was reimposed for an Oakland man who pleaded guilty to violation of probation. David N. Shaffer, 44, was arrested in May 1995 for driving while intoxicated and later received the suspended sentence. He was charged with probation violation when he apparently failed to complete a rehabilitation program ordered by the court.

Shaffer was given 26 days credit for jail time already served, according to the court report.

"Smart Growth" Meeting Set For Tuesday At GCC

A representative from the Maryland State Office of Planning will be providing details of Smart Growth legislation at an informational meeting slated for Tuesday, Jan. 27, at 7 p.m. in the auditorium of Garrett Community College. John Frece, who is Governor Glendening's assistant for Smart Growth, will give a slide-illustrated presentation and answer questions about the legislation.

The stated purpose of Smart Growth legislation is, according to a press release from G.C./CARE, the meeting's sponsor, "'the preservation of farms and forest land while revitalizing our older communities.' This legislation will impact every aspect of the future growth of Garrett County including highway construction, housing developments, water and sewer projects, as well as municipal revitalization. Mortgage assistance and other incentives for homebuyers, [and] business grants and incentives are also part of Smart Growth programs," the release stated.

"We encourage everyone to attend this very important meeting to learn about Smart Growth," said G.C./CARE president George Falter. "Those people who do come to this meeting will be in a better position to provide their input in the decision-making process concerning the future of Garrett County. Senator Hafer, Delegate Edwards, the Garrett County Commissioners, and others in the economic development and planning departments have been invited," Falter said.

G.C./CARE said that it intends to hold follow-up meetings and round table discussions to further discuss Smart Growth. "We will be talking about specific issues at these meetings," the organization's release

OFFICIAL GUESTS ATTEND JOHNSON'S INDUCTION - Wayne R. Johnson, recently appointed to the position of Garrett County Commissioner, was sworn into office Friday afternoon in the presence of family, friends, and co-workers, as well as the governor of Maryland, Parris N. Glendening, and Secretary of State John Willis. Circuit Court Clerk David Martin administered the oath of office to Johnson, and Willis then presented him with the official state appointment document, as pictured above. Glendening opened the ceremony with a short statement, noting that he has made four appointments in Garrett County during his tenure: James Sherbin as circuit court judge, Richard "Dick" Sanders as sheriff, Gary Fratz as commissioner, and Johnson. He expressed his confidence in Johnson, noting their common interest in education: the governor taught for 27 years and Johnson served in the Garrett County public school system for many years as teacher, coach, and principal. Johnson spoke after taking the oath of office, noting his thanks to his supporters and stating that he is "ready to get down to the business at hand." Commissioners Wayne Wilt and Gary Fratz also made statements, welcoming their colleague on board. Pictured left to right are Martin, Johnson, Glendening, Willis, and Wilt.

A DEER AND ICE proved to be a costly combination for 29-year-old Todd W. Logsdon, Frostburg, who lost control of his rig on New Germany Road Monday afternoon when the deer jumped in front of him. While the Potomac Farms vehicle sustained some damage when it ran off the road and into the woods, Logsdon was not injured and there were no charges lodged against him. The incident was investigated by the Maryland State Police. The National Weather Service reports that local roadways could be in similar condition later today, as a mix of snow, sleet, and rain is predicted. The precipitation should be all rain by tomorrow morning before temperatures drop once again Friday afternoon. Photo by Jamie Ashby.

LEADERS GREET LEADERS - It was standing room only at Uno's Restaurant Friday as nearly every official in the county gathered to welcome Governor Parris Glendening to the western most part of the state. A reception hosted by the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, Development Corporation, and Department of Economic Development was a resounding success, organizers reported, with about 160 people in attendance. The mayors of five towns are shown above as they chat with the state's chief executive. Glendening's back is to the camera, and shown left to right are Friendsville Mayor Spencer Schlosnagle, Accident Mayor Dale Rodeheaver, Grantsville Mayor Fred Holliday, Mountain Lake Park Mayor Dave Turney, and Oakland Mayor Asa McCain.

THE GOVERNOR'S WHIRLWIND TOUR of the county included a variety of activities, including being the guest of honor at a reception, where David Moe, co-chair of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, presented him with a jug of Garrett County maple syrup, as shown above left. The state leader also offered condolences to Joanne Glotfelty upon the recent death of her husband, Commissioner Chairman Roger Glotfelty. The governor was present for the swearing-in proceedings of Glotfelty's successor, Wayne Johnson, on Friday evening. Mrs. Glotfelty was present as well, and is shown at right as she is consoled by the governor. Glendening mentioned several times that he knew the late commissioner personally and he has been saddened by his death. In his comments at various stops, the governor emphasized his interest in education and in economic growth, topics that he highly stressed in his State of the State address this week (see report on A-5). During his visit in the county, the governor also read to students at Broad Ford Elementary School and toured Wood Products, an Oakland lumber mill (see story).

Traffic Pursuit Ends With Arrest Of W.Va. Woman

An Elk Garden, W.Va., woman was arrested early Saturday morning and charged with DWI, attempting to elude police, driving on a revoked license, and a variety of other traffic offenses after she led an Oakland City Police officer on a four-mile pursuit on Route 39 west of the town.

The officer initially attempted to stop Kathy Lynn Hartman, 39, on Third Street when he observed her Chevy Cavalier traveling with its headlights off at 2 a.m. Hartman reportedly turned onto westbound Route 39 and accelerated to a high rate of speed, passing at least one other westbound passenger vehicle in her wake.

Hartman was finally stopped by the officer just east of Tough View Road four miles from where the chase commenced. In addition to the aforementioned charges, she was also cited for failure to display lighted headlamps in unfavorable visibility conditions, speeding, and failure to drive right of center.

After posting a $2,500 bond Hartman was released from the Garrett County jail.

Car Accident In Mtn. Lake Park Injures Woman

A vehicle accident in Mtn. Lake Park on Friday afternoon sent an Oakland woman to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where she was treated for minor injuries and released, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

Angela Fay Crosco, 19, was a passenger in a Ford Tempo driven by David Lee Crosco, 21, Oakland, that struck a car from behind that was waiting to make a turn from Maryland Highway onto B Street at 3:30 p.m. on Jan. 16. After Crosco's vehicle rear-ended the Ford truck driven by Jason Richard Reckart, 18, Mtn. Lake Park, the Tempo went into a culvert at the side of the road. Angela Crosco was transported to GCMH by Southern Garrett Rescue Squad when she complained of pains in her knee and chest.

David Crosco was cited in connection with the accident. He reportedly told investigating deputies that he had taken his eyes off the road.

Report Cards To Be Distributed Week Of Feb. 6

A change in the date for the distribution of Garrett County elementary school report cards has been announced by Wilda W. Massi, director of pupil services. First semester report cards for these students will be distributed to parents the week of February 6 during parent conferences.

Report cards for middle and high school students will be distributed today, January 22, as originally planned.

Rockville Man Jailed On DWI, Drug Charges

A Rockville man was arrested in Oakland on Sunday and charged with DWI, possession of marijuana, and various traffic offenses after an incident that began Sunday at 5:30 a.m. at Denny's restaurant on Garrett Highway, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

Shawn Robert Strawser, 19, was apprehended at a house on Fourth Street after deputies received a report that three vehicles were spinning their tires in the Denny's parking lot, one of them being a black Ford Escort that also reportedly spun its tires in a yard near the restaurant.

All three vehicles were subsequently located, two on Maryland Highway at Weber Road, and the Escort was found parked in front of a house in the 300 block of Fourth Street. Strawser was found sleeping on a couch in the house, and was subsequently arrested for DWI. During a search of his person, deputies found a suspected marijuana smoking bowl in his pocket.

Strawser's other charges were negligent driving, violation of an alcohol restriction on his driver's license, failure to drive to the right of the center line, and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Following his arrest, Strawser was released on a $2,500 bond.

Dance Slated To Raise Funds For Wounded Hunter

Broadwater Heavy Towing is sponsoring a fundraising dance for Doug Galica, a Northern Middle School student seriously injured in a hunting accident last month. The dance will be held this Saturday, Jan. 24, at the Grantsville American Legion Post #214 from 9:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. Music will be provided by Perry Kamp, and all persons of all ages are invited.

The cost of admission is $4 per person, and numerous fundraising events will be held during the evening. Donations will also be accepted. Persons interested in further information may call 301-895-5797 or 301-895-4244.

Galica's fellow students at Northern Middle have been rallying around their classmate as well. "Students have organized to ask for donations for Doug and his family," said a school staff member. "Students, staff, and teachers, are all contributing, and parents are sending money in as well. We've raised close to $1,000 so far here at the school."

A student dance will be held Friday, Jan. 30, with proceeds going to the Galica family as well, and several other school fundraisers are being planned, the school staffer said.

by James D. Wampler, 39, Accident, who was travelling westbound along Rt. 39.

Reports indicated that when Wampler saw Shaffer, he attempted to avoid her by steering left of center and breaking, but was not successful and struck her. She was transported by Southern Garrett Rescue Squad to GCMH, where she was treated and released for minor injuries to her left leg, according to investigating officer Tfc. G.D. Byrnes.

An accident that occurred at about 1:12 p.m. on Monday resulted in a Grantsville woman, Abigail S. Bruch, 18, and Shirley Knox, 30, Washington, D.C., being transported by ambulance to GCMH and being treated for injuries and released.

Investigating officer Tfc. A.P. Mason reported that Bruch was operating a 1988 Pontiac Sunbird northbound along Rock Lodge Road, just south of Mosser Road, when her vehicle began to slide on the slush and snow covered road. The car then crossed directly in front of a 1997 Kia Sportage being driven by Knox and was struck in the passenger side door by the Sportage. No charges were filed in the accident, according to MSP reports.

Northern Garrett Rescue Squad and the Bittinger Volunteer Fire Department responded to the accident, according to reports.

Another accident that occurred on Jan. 14 led to the arrest of George J. Quart, 46, Silver Spring, who was charged with driving while intoxicated and negligent driving by Tpr. MacLane. The accident occurred at 3:05 p.m. when Quart reportedly lost control of the 1995 Ford Contour he was driving northbound on Rt. 495 north of Brenneman Rd.

The vehicle then reportedly went down an embankment and overturned. According to hospital records, Quart was admitted to GCMH but was then discharged without treatment.

CDS Arrest

In other news from Maryland State Police, four men were arrested in Bloomington last Friday on CDS (controlled dangerous substence) charges following an incident along Rt. 135 shortly after 11 p.m.

According to a report by the arresting officer, Tfc. R.T. Wilson, Cumberland barrack, Christopher R. Kight, 23, Keith J. Nightengale, 18, Jeremy M. Smith, 19, all of Bloomington, and Jason W. Winkler, 18, Westernport, were sitting in a parked car along the roadway. When the officer approached, he reported that "a strong odor of burnt marijuana" was detected inside the vehicle.

Upon further investigation, the officer discovered the marijuana and paraphernalia, and the four men were charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

Assault, MDOP

State police also investigated an incident that occurred Jan. 10 at approximately 12:45 a.m., at the Wisp parking lot in McHenry involving a total of six men fighting with each other, according to police reports. During the fight, slight damage occurred to one of the men's vehicles, according to the investigating officer Tfc. LeMay.

The incident led to the arrest of Jason M. Bloom, 27, Allegany County, who was charged with assault and malicious destruction of property. Five other men were issued summonses for the same charges. They are Bruce G. Van Wagner, 28, Accident, and Jamie L. McKenzie, 21, Bernard M. Wolford, 25, William E. Day, 26, and Dwayne E. Duckworth, 23, all of Allegany County.

Man Injured

A Friendsville man was injured in a single-vehicle accident Wednesday afternoon on the Bishoff Road, near McHenry.

Treated and released from Garrett Memorial was Robert Charles Tichnell, 21, who was reportedly operating a 1990 Volkswagen Jetta south on the Bishoff Road, just north of Gap Run Road, when he lost control of his vehicle as he rounded a curve.

Tfc. Scott MacLane, who responded to the scene, reported that Tichnell's vehicle left the right side of the roadway and struck a tree. The driver was charged with negligent driving following the 1:25 p.m. mishap. A passenger in the vehicle, Robert C. Swiger, 19, Mtn. Lake Park, was apparently uninjured.

Also responding to the scene were volunteers from the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad and the Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Company

Traffic Stop Nets Guilty Plea To Drug Possession

A traffic stop by a Maryland State trooper has resulted in the conviction of a Beltsville man who pleaded guilty to cocaine possession in last week's Garrett County District Court proceedings.

Joel Daniel Taylor Sr., 36, was handed a 30-day sentence with all but four days suspended, fined $355, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 40 hours of community service, all stemming from the cocaine possession plea. A second guilty plea to driving under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs drew Taylor an additional $100 fine from Judge Ralph M. Burnett as well.

Taylor was stopped in August after his vehicle was observed weaving about the roadway on Route 219 at Spear Road, just south of Accident. He was unable to produce a driver's license, and failed a battery of field sobriety tests. When Taylor was placed under arrest, he reportedly admitted to the arresting trooper that he had initially given him a false name when it was first requested, and that he was driving on a suspended license.

A vehicle search uncovered several suspected marijuana cigarette butts, and a personal search subsequent to his arrest uncovered a small quantity of suspected cocaine in Taylor's pocket.

Taylor was not prosecuted by the state's attorneys office on a charge of possession of marijuana and several traffic violations stemming from the incident.

In other district court news, a November incident at Northern High School involving Dennis Wayne Boyd, 48, Frostburg, resulted in several charges being placed on the stet docket.

Boyd was arrested last month after he allegedly entered the school office area during school hours and reportedly harassed the administration and staff with a profane verbal tirade. He eventually left the building after reportedly damaging an office door.

The stetted charges Boyd faced were disturbing the activities of a school, trespassing, and malicious destruction of property. As a condition of the stet rulings, the judge ordered Boyd to complete 20 hours of community service. The charges can be recalled at any point within the next 365 days if the state deems it necessary.

Charges of second-degree assault and child abuse faced by Sheila Ann Vance Hardesty, 35, Swanton, were placed on the stet docket as well. Hardesty had been arrested by sheriff's deputies in October.

Richard Wayne Wildesen, 40, Mtn. Lake Park, was deemed not guilty of a charge of second-degree assault stemming from an arrest by sheriff's deputies in December following a reported domestic altercation.

DUI Hearings

In their respective hearings, Forest Lee Morris III, 37, Cumberland, and Dewayne Allen Schrock, 30, Oakland, both pleaded guilty to driving under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs. Each subject was fined $155, handed a 30-day suspended sentence, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 40 hours of community service.

HOOVES FOR HAPPINESS RECEIVES $700 - Hooves for Happiness, a non-profit agency dedicated to bringing the therapeutic and recreational benefits of horseback riding to disabled individuals, was recently the recipient of $700 from the Scott Glotfelty Memorial Trust Fund. Each year an organization is selected to receive a donation from this fund in memory of Dr. Scott A. Glotfelty, a Garrett County veterinarian who died while serving in the Peace Corp in Togo, West Africa, during the spring of 1988. In a letter to Karen Chaney, president of Hooves for Happiness, Scott's brother Rodney Glotfelty, Accident, stated, "We are happy to award your organization with a donation in 1997. The work you do epitomizes many of the humanitarian qualities found in Scott. We feel he would have approved of your selection." Persons who would like more information about Hooves for Happiness should call 301-729-6263 or 301-689-3658. Shown in the above photo, left to right, are Ruth DiPaolo, Scott's mother; Jocelyn Flores, vice-president and past president of Hooves for Happiness; and Rodney Glotfelty, presenting the award.

Absentee Ballots Now Available For Friendsville Vote

The town of Friendsville will hold a municipal election on Tuesday, Feb. 10, and residents of that town who need absentee ballots for that election may pick them up at the Friendsville town hall. The clerk will be at the hall to issue those ballots on Tuesday and Thursday, Jan. 27 and 29, and Tuesday and Thursday, Feb. 3 and 5, from noon to 3 p.m. Persons with questions may telephone the clerk at 301-746-5919 during those hours or contact her at home at 301-746-5847.

Running for mayor in the Feb. 10 balloting are incumbent Spencer R. Schlosnagle and challenger Herschel H. Allen III. Those seeking one of three open seats on the town council are Carroll Forsyth, Harry H. Griffith, and James L. Lininger.

Crime Rate

Anne's, Somerset, Talbot, Wicomico, and Worcester counties, showed a 4.9 percent decline in crime. Western Maryland, reporting 11,326 total crimes, saw an overall decrease of 0.1 percent. The Western Maryland Region is made up of Allegany, Carroll, Frederick, Garrett, and Washington counties. The Southern Maryland Region of Calvert, Charles, and St. Mary's counties, reported the fewest total number of crimes (7,017), but showed a slight increase of 1.1 percent in total crime. Murder in this region dropped off 36.4 percent.

The Uniform Crime Reporting period January through September 1997, indicates there were 216,474 total crimes reported compared with 232,944 for the same period in 1996.

Investment, Not Handout...

There are plenty of handouts made by the federal government to thousands of people with various needs — some legitimate, some not — and these handouts have contributed greatly to our nation's deficit. But there are also some fine examples of investments in people by government, one of which is in the local news this week.

Garrett Community Action is requesting $240,000 from the federal government to continue its First-Time Home Buyers Program for 1998, a program that is already returning dividends not only to some new homeowners, but also to our county's economy. Since 1996, the program has made home ownership possible for 54 Garrett County families by providing education, down-payment assistance, and rock-bottom, fixed-interest mortgages. The return on that investment is a total of over $4.2 million in mortgages and more than $53,000 of brand new real estate tax money for the county, not to mention the employment and tax income generated by construction companies and deed transfers.

Even more important than the financial gains are the personal benefits to these new home owners. Owning one's own house is among the dreams of almost everyone, and along with the deed to a house and a piece of ground comes a tremendous sense of accomplishment, pride, and self-worth, which greatly impacts one's behavior, attitude, and basic outlook on life. Unlike paying rent, paying on a mortgage and thus building equity is an investment in oneself.

With the quarter million dollars anticipated for this coming year, the program will assist 15 more local families. The need is for real, and the fact that 228 families have completed the First-Time Home Buyers Class indicates that many low- and moderate-income families are committed to helping themselves. It's just that they simply cannot afford a conventional mortgage.

We again laud the efforts of Duane Yoder, Loring Young, and the rest of the staff at the Community Action office for doing such an outstanding job with this program. We appreciate the county commissioners' endorsement of the effort, and we also extend thanks to American Trust Bank for being willing to provide 30-year fixed mortgages with an interest rate that matches the Maryland bond rate (6.4%).

There is a huge difference between a handout to people and an investment in people.

A Meaty Issue
By Mary Sincell McEwen

I was watching my husband John prepare a turkey for this year's Christmas Day dinner when I had an odd sensation. He was manhandling this bald winged orb in our sink, flopping it around, gathering up its flesh, and sticking those skewers in it to close it up. It was a "fresh" bird, not frozen, so it had been walking around the barnyard just days before. Now its innards were boiling on the stove to become my mom's delicious giblet gravy and its hollow insides were stuffed with John's popular sausage and pepper dressing. "This is weird," I thought, as John patted the readied fowl and smiled proudly.

What's weird about it? Well, it's an old dilemma for me. Eating meat, that is. Anyone who knows me knows I am an animal lover from way back. I think I could become friends with just about any creature and eventually think it "cute." I could certainly become attached to a turkey, especially if I knew it from the time it hatched. I have been smitten by fish, no less, and have been sad when they have gone belly-up. Cats are the coolest of pets and dogs come in a close second. Wild birds are interesting to me -- I have a bird feeder on my deck because I worry about them in the winter time. (It should be noted, though, that the birds basically ignore my offering. See, our next door neighbors are bird-feeding experts -- their backyard is a veritable birdseed mall, complete with a variety of feeder styles and an extensive range of seed products. I just throw out the generic mix. So figure it like this: there's free food in everyone's back yard and you can go where you want. Which would you choose -- a plate of delicacies from the Waldorf Hilton Restaurant or a bowl of popcorn from Sam's Eats? 'Nuf said.)

Anyway, I could certainly become great friends with a cow. Those brown eyes are heartbreakers. And then there are pigs -- pink, smart, funny, cute. But hey, do I like steak? Do I love a grilled hamburger in the summer? How about a hot ham and cheese? Does my mouth water when I smell turkey roasting in the oven? Of course! I love most meat and I consume it often. I have made a flimsy pact with myself to avoid deer meat, chiefly because I didn't grow up eating it and it's not real hard to refuse; and in the same weak fashion I won't eat a rabbit or a bear. I readily admit that I am the worst of hypocrites on this issue, and probably could have just continued that way, being conveniently quiet about it, if I hadn't gone and had kids.

"Mom, what is this?" Robert asks dubiously, picking at a piece of ham on his plate. "It's ham, Rob," I say, hoping he won't pursue it.

"Mom," he says, disgusted. "I mean what is it?"

"It's a pig, Robert," I say, irritated.

"Aw, mom! I like pigs!" he wails. He turns his stricken gaze to his little brother and I brace myself. "Alex, that's a pig you're eating! Just like in the movie Babe!" Alex looks vaguely alarmed and puts his fork down. So much for finishing his meal. This hog episode reminded me of when John and I, pre-marriage, were both working at a pizza delivery joint. He was the assistant manager and I was a mere cook/delivery person, so he rather coyly asked me to go into the walk-in cooler and "get some sausage." I trotted in there and nearly tripped over a whole pig -- head, hooves, and all -- lying on the floor. It was to be roasted later that day in what North Carolinians call a "pig pickin'." Yikes. Very funny, John.

Rob, who just turned 6, has been skeptical about meat from a very early age. He does not eat red meat, ever. He informed me last year when his pre-kindergarten class was studying dinosaurs that he thought he was probably a leaf-eater. I think it would be more accurate to say he is a pizza-and-macaroni-and-cheese-eater, since he doesn't consume much of anything else. Semantics aside, I sometimes get the impression that God sent him to me partly to question my personal meat-eating policies. The boy often asks me pointedly what something is, and then is aghast when I finally cough up the animal (figuratively speaking, of course). He will then explain that the animal had to be killed so I could eat it. Thank you, Robert.

Occasionally I can achieve acceptance of my carnivorous ways, though. Something deep in my psyche is okay with it. A connection is there, between me and the history of all humans. Most of us eat things that until recently were breathing and having lives. Lots of people earn an honorable living producing those items. And I don't have to get to know them before I baste them, right? If I did, surely I would be a vegetarian.

To solve my personal guilt, though, I probably should practice the Native American tradition of honoring any animal I eat by thanking it for giving up its life for me. That could get a little awkward, though. I can just see myself in New York City, buying a hot dog from a street vendor. First I'd have to figure out which animals to thank, because who really knows what's in a hot dog? And then I'd have to run fast, because people around me would think I was seriously unbalanced. But wait a sec -- we're in NYC, right? Never mind that second part.

I suppose I'll remain a consumer of meat products, at least for now. I can't really imagine eating tofu turkey on Thanksgiving or inviting friends over for soyburgers on the grill. I'll just have to avoid looking any cow in the eye. And when Robert pipes up at the table, I'll toss him a cookie. That'll solve everything.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Ahead in Garrett County is the implementation of the Smart Growth legislation. This legislation is basically the foundation for zoning Garrett County, although that is too simplistic a description to be really useful. Anyone with an opinion on how Garrett County should manage its future development should come to the auditorium at Garrett Community College at 7:00 p.m. on Tuesday, January 27, to hear all the facts about Smart Growth as presented by officials from Annapolis.

These officials are the experts. They have worked on Smart Growth in most cases from day one. They can answer your questions either at the meeting or later in writing. My hope is that all of our county's elected officials and other concerned officials attend this meeting in order that they might hear this issue as described to ordinary voters and to ask questions of their own.

Please consider attending this forum if you own property in Garrett County or if you are interested in how this county is scheduled to develop in the next 20 years or so. The only way to avoid rumors, fear, and superstition is to hear it right from the horse's mouth. Here is an opportunity for all of us, every single concerned citizen, to hear the facts from the people who developed them.

From forums like this come informed opinions. Those who attend are going to form opinions based on facts, not rumors. Some of us will not like what we hear. Others will like some of it, but not all. Still others will like the whole program. That's what this is all about, to get the facts and see how we, as individuals, feel about the facts. From forums like this come informed opinions.

Smart Growth has options, thanks Delegate Edwards' work with the Rural Caucus he chairs. by hearing the facts, by hearing this presentation first hand, each of us is going to be better prepared to work toward the future we want in Garrett County. We won't all agree on the details, but if we have all the facts I'll bet we can reach agreement. Hope to see you there. The future direction of the county depends on it.

Sincerely,
W.L. Welch
Gortner

To the Editor:

GOBA (Greater Oakland Business Association) would like to thank all the people who shopped in downtown Oakland this past Christmas and also those individual people and groups who helped make the downtown area so festive. The Christmas tree on the corner at St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, the train display in the window of the First United building on Second Street, and the decorated parking meters and street lights created a beautiful setting for the spirit of Christmas.

GOBA members have worked hard in the past year to create opportunities to enjoy the downtown area by providing such activities as the Summer Concert Series on the Courthouse Plaza. We will be holding our annual meeting on Tuesday, February 10, at 5:30 p.m. at the City Hall, 15 South Third Street, Oakland. We will review comments made by Robert Gibbs, a national planner, who visited Oakland this past fall and receive updates on the status of several projects, including the acquisition status of the Oakland railroad station and the Maryland Main Street Project. There will also be elections and strategic planning discussions.

Please join us for this important opportunity to become involved in your community.

Mikal McCartney
President

To the Editor:

Just when many western Marylanders were warming up to Governor Glendening, because of some positive actions he has supported for Garrett and Allegany counties, he now threatens to alienate thousands of hunters and outdoorsmen by appointing E. Joseph Lamp, professor at Anne Arundel Community College and a member of 11 animal rights organizations, to the Maryland Wildlife Advisory Commission.

Most of the organizations to which Professor Lamp belongs and supports with his dues are radical, anti-hunting organizations, that are doing everything in their power to ban hunting in the state of Maryland.

I believe that God, in His wisdom, put all creatures on this earth for some useful purpose. Man has been able to domesticate some of God's creatures, and these same people who are trying to ban hunting have no qualms at all about eating a beef, chicken, or fish sandwich, and wearing leather shoes, belts, and coats. But this would provide material for a whole, new letter.

To some Garrett County families, bagging a deer may mean the difference between having meat on the table and going hungry.

I think Governor Glendening made a terrible mistake by appointing Professor Lamp to this Commission. Perhaps Governor Sauerbrey will remedy this situation in 1999.

Respectfully,
Edward DeWitt

To the Editor:

This letter is to try to explain why this lawsuit was filed in U.S. Court by me. I have taken this case as far as I feel I can go in the state of Maryland and still am unable to get any answers to anything. Through approximately 35 years of research, which I have done, I have found many, many great discrepancies in the land record which just simply are unexplainable, or at least I haven't found anyone yet who can explain them for me. The state of Maryland, and Garrett County in particular, has been involved with covering up many very shady dealings, and I would like to get them exposed in order to get them stopped. There will be many more lawsuits filed through the U.S. government as this thing progresses for me, but for right now, I am just trying to get some major issues sorted out.

The state and local governments have gotten away with their crooked politics long enough. It is time they are faced with having to come up with some answers to their wrongdoings. This clique we have locally operating must be stopped at some point; they are just taking things too far.

I have been, and still am, trying to find an attorney whom the state can not buy out from under me, as they have been able to do up to this point. Getting these people exposed is not, and has not, been an easy thing to do when they have the amount of power throughout our judicial system. All anyone can do is try to get them stopped before they corrupt the entire system altogether.

Thanks to The Republican for helping me get this lawsuit out where the public can maybe help play a part in getting these crooked politicians and government officials exposed.

A sincere, concerned citizen,
Donald G. Duckworth
Swanton

Editor's note: Mr. Duckworth has filed a civil lawsuit against the state of Maryland, and is seeking a total of $9,624,000 in damages. The 17 counts against the state include allegations that the state illegally removed coal and timber from property the plaintiff claims he owns, that the state used scare tactics and attempted to murder the plaintiff, that the state illegally destroyed various documents, that the state slandered the plaintiff and damaged his reputation, that the state illegally refused the plaintiff's request for a jury trial, and that the state deterred attorneys from representing the plaintiff, among other allegations. The case was filed in U.S. District Court for the District of Maryland, Baltimore, on January 15.

To the Editor:

The Public Notice issued by the Garrett Commissioners regarding a hearing they are holding January 27th should outrage all Garrett Countians. An important word was left out in the second sentence, and that word is the word "proposed," as in proposed amendments.

In Maryland, by law, certain public sewer and water utility construction projects, as well as any extension of public sewer

THE POWER GRID

For the past two weeks there have been daily reminders of the folks in Quebec, Canada, Maine, and elsewhere who have had to live for days and weeks without electrical power. There have been major power outages in the past, but this one was different.

This is the first time in my memory that there has been substantial damage to the infrastructure of the power grid. It is one thing for lines to go down or even for poles to snap. It is another thing altogether when the giant pylons which carry power from region to region are scrunched up like aluminum cans. The press has reported exactly that kind of destruction.

Hearing news like that should give pause to all of us who depend upon the grid in our daily lives. It ought to strike panic into the hearts of anyone owning an all-electric house.

The electrical power crisis comes as an appropriate warning at a time when the country heads down the potentially disastrous path of utility deregulation. When electrical power is generated regionally and consumed regionally, then when there is a crisis, it is a regional crisis.

When electrical power is generated in Canada and consumed in Maryland, Tennessee, and Arizona, then when there is a crisis, it is a national crisis, perhaps even a continental crisis. I have listened to experts explain why this scenario of disaster is invalid, but then they are the same experts who have been telling us all along we have had nothing to worry about.

The grid is a great thing, but is it a good thing? I am well aware of the benefits that being on the grid has conferred upon me and literally billions of others. I want to ask, however, at what price? I suggest that the price we have paid for convenience can be measured by the loss of independence and community.

In terms of independence, think of the devastation that could be wreaked upon us if a power plant were to be bombed. Of course, if it were only one power plant, the damage would be relatively short-lived. In a time of war, there would be more than one. Perhaps even a well-organized terrorist group could hurt us in that way.

As the crisis in Quebec and Maine have shown, the forces of nature can do as much damage as the more malevolent forces of an armed enemy. What if the storm they suffered were repeated in region after region? How many of us would be snug as a bug in a rug?

The grid has also undermined our communities. Without the grid, families might spend their evenings gathered around the fireplace, reading, sewing, playing checkers together. Without the grid, neighbors would help each other more, in economic and non-economic ways, in part because they would have to help each other in order to survive.

Of course, we can choose not to let the grid pull us into the danger zone of dependence or in the destruction of our communities. No one forces us to own televisions or satellite dishes or microwave ovens. We can choose to do things the old-fashioned way; but do we? With exceptions, our nation as a whole does not make such choices.

Calling the power company and having them cut us off would be a radical step, and one which few are willing to make. Each of us can take smaller steps to re-establish our independence and our relationships in the community.

If someone needs a new range, it may mean buying a gas range rather than an electric one. It may mean having a family night of playing board games rather than watching television. It may mean paying a call on a neighbor rather than phoning that person.

The crisis in Maine and Quebec is a crisis for all of us. It might be a useful exercise to sit in the dark and cold for a little while, and think about it.

Glendening Gives Address, Urges Support Of Education And Health

Maryland Governor Parris N. Glendening offered to the General Assembly his 1998 State of the State address this week, emphasizing that a surplus in the state's economy puts the legislative leadership in the position to "dramatically improve education, build and modernize classrooms, provide health care for thousands of children and pregnant women, and fight toxic pfiesteria."

The governor urged the legislators to "continue to work together to promote and protect liberty and opportunity for everyone by improving education, protecting the health and safety of our people, increasing economic prosperity, and preserving our environment. That is the historic Maryland agenda," he said, referring to the 1634 priorities of the first state lawmakers, "and it forms the foundation for the work we do today."

The governor noted that he was the first in his family to go to college.

"My family was poor," he said. "Education took me out of poverty. As a result, education has been the passion of my life. It has been, and continues to be, my top priority. As a teacher, and as a father, I have seen learning light up the face of a child. There is nothing more exciting."

Much of Glendening's speech focused on the package he intends to introduce to the General Assembly to improve water quality and fight the toxic microorganism pfiesteria that affected three Eastern Shore watersheds last summer. He said he wants a fair, comprehensive, and aggressive plan that fights pfiesteria and enhances water quality throughout the entire Bay watershed. He said the state will not make farmers solely responsible for reducing nutrient run-off and said he hopes to "significantly increase" the technical assistance available to farmers, chiefly in the area of alternative uses for manure.

Governor Glendening urged the General Assembly to capitalize on the state's "surging economy," referring to the reported $283.1 million surplus. Specifically, he asked for support for initiatives that would increase funding for school construction, provide targeted aid for public schools throughout the state, make quality health care available for children of working families and pregnant women who could not otherwise afford it, enhance programs to continue to reduce the crime rate, and provide the necessary funding to drastically reduce the waiting list for individuals with disabilities.

"Over the past three years we have improved the quality of our children's education," he said. "Statewide, we increased education spending for every child. We provided funding to build, update, or modernize 4,000 classrooms. And test scores are on the rise.

"Now we have a tremendous opportunity to allocate $222 million to build and modernize even more classrooms to reduce class size, and to greatly improve the quality of education for every student in this state," the governor said.

Glendening also pointed to the $181 million that he proposed in his fiscal year 1999 budget for education aid that would result in a total of more than a half-billion dollars in funding for public schools during the current four-year cycle.

"This is more money than ever before in the history of this state," he said, "money to be used for additional teachers, textbooks, and to support science and arts programs. We will require that each jurisdiction develop a plan which ensures this record-setting amount of money gets to where it needs to go — into classrooms to improve the education of our children."

Glendening also discussed his proposal to provide additional assistance to public libraries, to modernize school libraries, and to increase the state's investment in higher education. He discussed other key programs to be proposed during the 1998 legislative session, including a comprehensive children's health program that would provide medical coverage to 60,000 children who do not now have it. He also outlined his administration's plans that are to help continue to reduce the state's crime rate.

"Over the past three years, Lt. Governor Kathleen Kennedy Townsend has led our efforts to make our communities safer," the governor said. "As a result of our work together, property crime is town, violent crime is down, and murder is down. . . . We must continue our efforts until every child and every family is safe in every community."

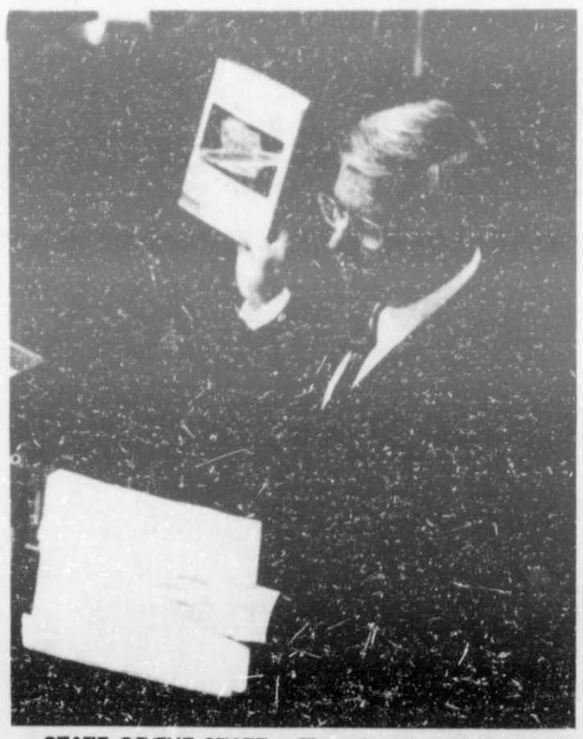
Glendening told the assembled lawmakers that he intends to construct another prison in Western Maryland to house violent offenders. The location of the facility has not been officially announced, although reports indicate it will be built in Allegany County.

The governor also announced commitment to add an additional $2.3 million to the volunteer fire and rescue fund to "continue to help ensure the safety of Maryland's citizens," he said.

Glendening highlighted his plans to expand job training programs; to use economic development funds to attract, create, and retain more jobs; and to use "technology and common sense" to make government services more business-friendly. He also re-affirmed his commitment to provide funds to reduce the waiting list for the more than 5,300 individuals with disabilities who require various state programs and services.

The Maryland Republican Party quickly issued a response to the governor's address, urging him to use the surplus funds to increase and speed up the tax cut. This is also a wish of Delegate George Edwards.

"The taxpayers have overpaid the state and we are due our refund," stated Joyce Lyons Terhes, chairperson of the Maryland GOP. Terhes also noted that Glendening's budget proposal increases spending by 5.1%, which, she reported, is over the 4.9% cap recommended by the Spending Affordability Committee.



STATE OF THE STATE -- The education of Maryland's children took center stage during Governor Parris N. Glendening's State of the State Address in Annapolis. Governor Glendening stressed the importance of education in moving Maryland forward into the 21st century.

Developmental Disabilities Subject Of $118 Million Funding Proposal

Agencies providing services to individuals with disabilities across Maryland, including Garrett County's own Appalachian Crossroads, could benefit from a $117.9 million dollar funding proposal announced by Governor Parris Glendening last week. A major goal of the five-year package, according to Glendening, is to facilitate the move toward a more independent lifestyle for individuals with developmental disabilities.

"These efforts will provide additional opportunities for employment, maximum independence, and support services for individuals and their families," the governor said. "It is my vision that working together with family members, advocates, and the provider community, we will achieve positive changes for all families who have a member with a developmental disability."

The highest amount of funding addresses one of the primary concerns for individuals with developmental disabilities — the waiting list for services from the Developmental Disabilities Administration. The proposal is aimed at increasing the number of individuals receiving day, residential, and support services, which in Garrett County are offered by agencies such as Appalachian Crossroads, the Association for Retarded Citizens (ARC) of Washington County, United Cerebal Palsy, and Goodwill Industries. Services provided by each of these agencies are coordinated in Garrett County through the Service Coordination Office, a branch of ARC, located in Oakland.

Bill Aspinall, executive director of Appalachian Crossroads, elaborated on the implications of the proposal for families who are caring for an adult family member with a developmental disablity. "Right now there are approximately 4,000 adults with developmental disabilities throughout the state on the waiting list for services," he explained. "A significant portion of these adult caregivers are 65 years old or older. Across western Maryland there are roughly 250 people on the waiting list, 15 of whom are Garrett County residents.

"While this proposal is great news," Aspinall continued, "we need to remember that the Developmental Disabilities Administration has often allocated funds to different regions in the state based on the population distribution; in other words, more funds often go to the heavily populated areas. We'll have to wait and see what Garrett County will get."

Still, Aspinall had high praise for the proposal. "This is a terrific thing," he said. "The human need is really there for the families who are caring for an adult member who is 50 years old and has a developmental disability. Parents in that situation could really be worrying about what will happen when they are no longer able to care for their child."

Scott Hollingsworth, director of day programs for Appalachian Crossroads, fully agrees that the proposal has great potential to benefit the the local population with disabilities that the agency strives to serve. "The neat thing about this announcement is that there are about 15 people with borderline disabilities who are on the waiting list for vocational day services, or folks living independently who need help in their daily activities," he said. "With this funding we will hopefully be able to help all 15 people find jobs and become more independent."

Hollingsworth added that members of Garrett County families who spend a great deal of time and energy caring for a loved one with a disability can expect to benefit from the funding package as well. "Right now we don't have too many people in the county looking for residential services who aren't getting them already.

"There are a number of families who are doing a tremendous job of providing full time care to an adult family member living at home," Hollingsworth continued, "but sometimes the family could use some respite, and/or the adult family member with a disability could use some recreation away from the home, such as going bowling or to the

AMISTAD

Rated R - Running time: 2:37

Just when you thought you had seen the best movie there is about a historic seagoing vessel, along comes Amistad. This may very well be the best movie of the year, but it may not be recognized as such because it is not about awesome special effects, which is what modern moviegoers crave. It's about acting. It's about a search for true justice that must be fought for against the prevailing ideologies of the time. It's about one of many tragic chapters etched indelibly into the history of this country.

In this largely unreported but true story, adapted for the screen by David Franzoni, a group of illegally obtained African human beings, led by a man named Cinqué (Djimon Hounsou), rose up against their captors in 1839 on board the slave ship La Amistad and took control. Although they tried to force the remaining crew to sail them back east, they finally were captured off the New England coast, where they were put back in chains and accused of murder and piracy. And from there, they underwent an incredible legal battle that took them to the highest court in this foreign land.

Although Stephen Spielberg is known for his special effects wizardry, this film shows that his Schindler's List was not a fluke: he is capable of real drama. There is some unsettling action footage about the transatlantic voyage, but most of the film is set in the courtroom. It is a very complex case, because there are several factions laying claim to La Amistad's valuable cargo, from the 11-year-old Queen Isabella II of Spain (Anna Paquin), who also ruled Cuba at the time, to the two Spaniards who survived the insurrection, to the Connecticut sailors who found the ship and now claim salvage rights. The issue of whether the Africans should be granted their freedom doesn't seem to be even under consideration. But that issue is what their self-appointed legal counsel, Roger Baldwin (Matthew McConaughey), must bring to light: If these were free people taken from their homes, then they had the right to rise up against their captors, and all the other claims are moot.

This movie is impeccably produced; every detail down to the most minute is carefully researched. The acting by Hounsou is superlative, touching to the very soul with Cinqué's emotional journey, that of one who has been put through torture and humiliation and still has the dignity to believe in himself and his people. Also impeccable is Anthony Hopkins, who plays then former president John Quincy Adams, the only president in history (so far) to return to service in the Congress after his presidency. Adams, a known abolitionist, is sought out by Baldwin for his clout and his knowledge of law, to help win this case. Hopkins, a British actor in his second role as an American president, has captured the essence of Adams late in life, a doddering old man, weary of politics, beaten down by his stormy session in the White House. Having lived his life in the shadow of his eminent father John Adams, architect of the nation, he is still sharp enough to know the difference between what we say as Americans and what we do. And still strong enough to fight for justice. "We have right at our side," he explains to the disheartened Cinqué, after the case has been won but appealed to the Supreme Court by president Martin Van Buren (Nigel Hawthorne), who is up for re-election and concerned about losing the southern vote. "We have righteousness at our side."

McConaughey's performance is also excellent, showing the difficulty of arguing a case when absolutely everyone in the room who understands, disagrees. His character, Baldwin, is actually not a trial lawyer, but one who specializes in the return of stolen goods, so he is not used to cases of this magnitude. His struggle with the law and the language barrier, with his sometimes unwilling witness and an unsympathetic populace, is shown in his face. But so is his knowledge of truth. And another face in whose that truth is particularly evident is that of Morgan Freeman, who plays Theodore Joadson, a freed slave and abolitionist who is looked upon by his African counterparts as at once a brother, a traitor, and a curiosity. When Freeman and Hounsou are face to face, their mutual undercurrent of conflicting feelings is powerfully evident.

Amistad is a moving work of art. It is not action-packed, but packed with emotion and good performances. It is every bit as good a work by Spielberg as Schindler's List, and as likely a portrayal of the drama of human suffering and triumph. ★★★★★

HARD RAIN

Rated R - Running time: 1:37

This is a wet movie. Everybody in it from the beginning to the end is completely soaked to the skin and standing (or swimming) in the pouring rain. In the case of some of the supporting cast, the water seems to dissolve their acting ability, but for the four principals, Christian Slater, Morgan Freeman. Minnie Driver, and Randy Quaid, their characterizations are waterproof. Also, director Mikael Salomon must be congratulated for pulling this off despite the incredible difficulties of filming in a huge, flooded airplane hangar where the set was reportedly built. One can imagine the problems and dangers that would arise from power cables, cameras and lighting equipment that will malfunction if they get wet, etc. Not to mention everyone in the cast and crew probably ended up with raisins for fingertips.

At the film's opening, a small town called Huntingburg, Indiana, is being flooded by constant rain and therefore evacuated by its sheriff (Quaid). But just as the evacuation is being completed, an armored truck with all the bank's money gets stuck in the rising water. When the driver, Charlie (Edward Asner), and his partner and nephew Tom (Slater) call for help on their radio, the transmission is intercepted by a band of looters headed by Jim (Morgan Freeman), who then slog into town to get the goods. Before you know it, Charlie's been shot, and Tom is swimming away into the darkness to hide the booty.

Meanwhile, a woman named Karen (Driver) is trying to save her recently restored stained-glass windows of the local church by attempting to pump the water out of the sandbagged churchyard. She meets Tom, who has come in out of the rain, but she thinks he's a looter so she clocks him on the head with a crucifix and takes him to the sheriff's office. After he is locked in the holding cell, he begins telling his story about the real looters. Soon all are involved in a soppy cat and mouse game, and it becomes unclear who is on whose side.

There are plenty of thrills and chills in this movie written by Graham Yost, and plenty of believable characters, too. Driver is not only a delightful actress, but her American accent is so flawless, one would have no idea she was British if one didn't know it from her other appearances. Slater and Freeman, at first enemies, are able to form a believable bond when they are presented with a common problem. Quaid is also good as the man depended on by so many he reaches the breaking point.

The effects are well-crafted, with the water constantly advancing, as inches turn to feet and then to tens of feet. As it approaches the tops of telephone poles, power lines are inundated, transformers begin to blow, and houses separate from their foundations. All this, to Salomon's credit, makes for a heightened sense of the desperation felt by the characters.

I'm not usually a fan of action/adventure movies, because they seem to consistently lack real characterization and plot. But this is one of the best I've seen lately, because it has plenty of both. ★★★★ that can carry multiple users or is considered a pressure system, must be included in the current Water and Sewer Plan (contained in the County Comprehensive Plan). If it is not included In the current Comprehensive Plan - Water and Sewer Planning Section, then a public hearing must be held before a proposed extension or facility is instated or adopted into the development plan. At this hearing the County Planning Commission must also certify that these extensions, and utility projects, are consistent with the Comprehensive Plan. This is required in our state's efforts to endorse planned development. A sensible concept we should be proud of, and fight to support.

Holding hearings on amendments that aren't proposed but installed and already a tax burden to all of us is a joke, a travesty of justice, and violates the constitutional rights of due process guaranteed to all of us. The county government and the sanitary district grant taps and extend lines and services, and the public is left out of the process in what in my opinion is a total and utter contempt and disregard for Maryland law. The money involved with these extensions and facilities is massive; just take a look at your water and sewer bill.

These laws exist to give the public an opportunity to provide input and question development proposals in a hearing setting before projects are allowed to proceed. These laws as well as other state policies are designed to fight cronyism and prevent the "good ol' boy" system from sending sewer and water lines indiscriminately out to the development projects of their friends and cronies, and foisting the financial burden of permanent maintenance on the public. When we are denied these rights, we are subjected to all the impacts of stupid development for eternity.

I urge anyone interested in learning more about these laws and the actions of our county government to attend the hearing at the Commissioners' Meeting Room at 11 a.m. on January 27. The planning and zoning department as well as the administrator and board of directors of the Garrett Sanitary District should know the laws and the processes that protect our rights to due process inside and out. Let's find out the answer to why they address development projects in a hearing setting only after they are approved and installed.

I wrote and asked Wendell Beitzel for hearing back in May. He wrote me back saying, "Your request for a hearing is denied." Mr. Beitzel even sent a copy of his hearing denial letter to John Nelson, the planning director. Now we are having a hearing, after the sewer extension is already installed. For our planning director and sanitary district to act with such arrogance (or ignorance) hurts us all, and damages us in ways that can never be rectified.

The public notice issued by the commissioners, in my opinion, is another effort to mislead and misrepresent what the process is all about. The mention of Friendsville without the mention of the fact that two particular amendment concerns the extension of service to the Funny Farm Gas Station also does not fulfill requirements of the law that specifically states that proposed amendments be detailed in the notice. Extension of service outside of the town boundary that requires connection to our plant with no available flow (as per the Department of Environment allocation tables released last month) is obviously not an improvement to the Friendsville system. Why did the commissioners not list this particular amendment for what it truly is about? The time of the meeting is also outrageous for a meeting as important as this. How can normal working people attend? Call the commissioners and ask them. Maybe they don't want you to attend.

I assume that some of the other amendments listed in the notice have also been installed without the lawful public hearing requirement being fulfilled before installation. What a shame that our future is in the hands of a county government that tells us what it's approving and installing without first bringing these matters up for public comment as is our lawful right.

Perhaps some of these other projects listed may still be in the proposed phase. Folks impacted by these projects might still have a chance to ask questions about them at this hearing. If they can get off work, that is.

Sincerely,
Crede Calhoun
Friendsville

First United Corp. Announces 1997 Earnings

First United Corporation, a one-bank holding company headquartered in Oakland, announced 1997 year-end earnings of $6.65 million or $1.05 per share. This figure is an increase over 1996 earnings of $6.48 million or $1.00 per share. Excluding the costs of the process improvement, corporation income in 1997 would have been approximately $7.21 million or 11.25% ahead of year-end 1996 results. The consolidated net income for the quarter ended December 31, 1997, totaled $1.924 million, which is $.468 million more than was recorded for the same time period of 1996. This translates into $.30 per share for the current period. For the same quarter of 1996, each share earned $.22.

"One of our major goals for 1997 was to position First United Corporation as an efficient provider of financial services to the people in the communities we serve. This prompted us to make significant changes throughout the company in our processes. We have modified our products, services, and the way in which we delivered these to our customers. Our earnings for 1997 were strong and we believe our commitment to continuous improvement will serve us well as we move into the future," stated William B. Grant, chairman of the board and chief executive officer.

First United Corporation's loan portfolio outperformed management projections in 1997, growing $58.16 million or 15.31%. The quality of the loan portfolio remains high and the corporation's non-performing loans and delinquency rates compare favorably with peers, Grant said. As of December 31, 1997, the corporation's loan portfolio totaled $441.39 million.

Deposits exhibited strong growth in 1997, increasing $47.52 million, or 10.50%, to a total of $500.06 million. Among the company's products are: Trust Services, PrimeVest Financial Services Inc., and Business Manager for its commercial customers. Income from these services grew 16.33% to $1.71 million as compared to $1.47 million for the same period last year.

First United Corporation (NASDAQ:FUNC) offers full-service banking through its banking subsidiary, First United National Bank & Trust. The bank operates a traditional network of offices throughout Garrett, Allegany, Washington, and Frederick counties in Maryland, as well as Mineral, Hardy, Hampshire, and Berkeley counties in West Virginia. As of December 31, 1997, the corporation posted assets of $569.03 million and had 6,259,586 shares outstanding.

and the rehabilitation of existing houses are now generating over $200,000 annually in real estate taxes. Young noted that GCCAC has received national recognition for these projects.

The commissioners readily agreed to give Yoder a letter of endorsement, which in part states that home ownership "has important economic and social benefits" and that it "builds assets and motivates people to take greater ownership in their communities."

Nicole Dilley weds David Butina In August Double-Ring Ceremony

Nicole Kathleen Dilley and David John Butina were united in marriage on August 23, 1997, in a double-ring wedding ceremony performed by Pastor David Snodgrass at the Crellin Assembly of God church.

The bride is the daughter of Ronald and Kitty Dilley of Oakland, and the groom is the son of Tom and Joan Butina of Latrobe, Pa.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted to the altar by her father, the bride chose a Dermetrios original of white satin covered with Venetian lace, sequins, and pearls from the halter neckline to the mermaid sheath style bottom. The bride accented the gown with venetian lace elbow-length gloves and a crown-style fingertip veil, each covered with pearls and sequins. As "something new," the bride wore diamond earrings given to her by the groom, and her "something borrowed" was a diamond watch which had belonged to her grandmother. The bride carried a crescent bouquet of dendrobium orchids, eucharis, and bridal roses of white with a touch of blush.

Attending the bride were matron of honor Beth Ann Miller, her cousin, and bridesmaids Shannon Germain, Amy DeWitt, Christy Eyler, Heather Savage, and Leslie Miller, all friends of the bride. The bridesmaids wore black crepe gowns accented with black chiffon scarves and white opera gloves. They each carried bouquets of fresh dendrobium orchids, with a single white rose accented with gold ribbon.

The groom wore a white evening tuxedo jacket with matching vest and black pants. The best man, Chad Butina, brother of the groom, and groomsmen Jason Dilley, brother of the bride, Dan Butina, and Tommy Butina, brothers of the groom, and Tom Smith and Darren Riley, friends of the groom, were all attired in black tuxedos with white rose boutonnieres.

The ringbearer was Austin Eyler, and the flowergirls were Taylor Germain and Lauren Butina.

The ceremony opened with Joe DiSimone, a family friend, singing the Ave Maria. During the traditional ceremony a reading was given by Heather Hinebaugh and a love song was sung by Karyn Seilhamer. Organ and piano music was performed by Elaine Bateman. The church was decorated in fresh flowers of white roses, greenery, and white and gold ribbon.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at Alpine Lake Resort in Terra Alta, W.Va. The cake was designed in a basket weave by Thelma DeWitt of Terra Alta. The cake consisted of four individual pedestal cakes covered and outlined with fresh flowers. Music was provided by Jonny Rock of McHenry.

A rehearsal dinner was held at Silver Tree Restaurant by the parents of the groom.

After honeymooning in Maui, Hawaii, the couple established residency in Mtn. Lake Park.

Sherbins Celebrate 30th Event

The Hon. and Mrs. James L. Sherbin, Hoyes, celebrated their 30th wedding anniversary on September 9, 1997. Judge Sherbin serves as judge of the Fourth Judicial Circuit of Maryland, Garrett County. Mrs. Sherbin is a practicing attorney with the firm of Stover and Sherbin in Oakland.

The couple was married in Sussex, N.J., in 1967 by Mrs. Sherbin's brother, the Rev. Harold Owens, a minister of the United Methodist church.

The Sherbins grew up in Sussex and were classmates in high school, college, and law school. They are the parents of two sons, John and James, and have two grandchildren, Kyle and Megan.

They celebrated the event with a family dinner and a trip to Acadia National Park in Maine.

Miss Weimer To Wed Mr. Savage

John and Debbie Weimer, Frostburg, announce the engagement of their daughter, Melissa Ann, to Timothy Ray Savage Jr., son of Tim and Cheryl Savage, White Rock.

Ms. Weimer is a senior at Frostburg State University, majoring in Spanish. She is a member of St. Ann's Catholic Church in Grantsville and is employed as a cake decorator at Food Lion in Frostburg.

Mr. Savage is attending Allegany College of Maryland, majoring in forestry. He is employed by Custer Logging.

The wedding will be held at St. Ann's Catholic Church, Grantsville, at 4 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 14. A reception will follow at St. Ann's Hall in Avilton.

Although invitations have been sent, all friends and family are welcome to attend.

National Talent Contest Seeks Rural Entries

National Public Radio's "A Prairie Home Companion," the long-running Saturday evening radio variety show, is seeking entries for its fourth annual Talent from Towns Under 2,000 Contest. Competitors are encouraged to submit their best (or most off-beat) comedy or musical performance, or a performance of any genre they choose.

The only rule for the contest is that all participants must currently live in a rural area, or a town, incorporated or unincorporated, with fewer than 2,000 people. By this standard, all Garrett County residents are eligible with the exception of those living in Mtn. Lake Park.

Entries may be made by leaving a three-minute performance on the Talent from Towns Under 2,000 answering machine at 612-290-1174. Instructions will be given at the beginning of the recording, and the machine will also ask callers for their name, hometown, and telephone number.

Entries can also be mailed in to the contest on a three-minute audiocassette, with the tape cued up to the song or routine submitted for judging. Mail entries are asked to include a photo and a short autobiographical description. Entries should be sent to 45 East Seventh Street, St. Paul, MN 55101-2274, with "T-TUTT" marked on the envelope.

The deadline for all entries is February 13. Professional musicians and talent scouts for "A Prairie Home Companion" will select the finalists, who will be flown to New York City to perform on a live broadcast of the radio show on April 4. The final champion will receive "the coveted Silver Watertower Trophy and a monetary prize," according to a contest publicity release.

Last year's winner was "Kirkmount," a Celtic music trio of teenage brothers from Woodland Hills, Utah (pop. 301). They took their group's name from the village in Nova Scotia where their grandparents lived. Kirkmount won the 1997 contest with an original song that debuted at a pet funeral.

Persons interested in further information may check A Prairie Home Companion's Internet website, which also includes recordings of randomly selected entries in this year's contest.

Earns Scholarship

Janel M. Hordubay, Frostburg, was awarded a William T. Fridinger, D.D.S., Scholarship for study at Allegany College, Cumberland, in the current 1997-98 academic year, the AC Foundation announced. She is pursuing an associate degree in dental hygiene.

Hordubay is a 1997 graduate of Northern High School, where she was a National Honor Society and Student Council member. She is the daughter of Elmer and Vickie Hordubay.

Returns Showing Capital Gains Being Delayed

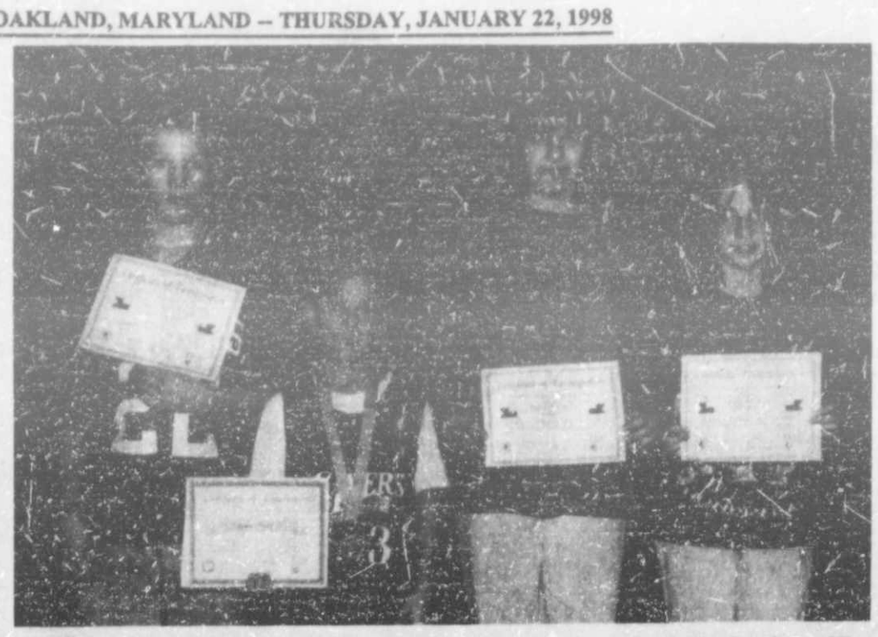
Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said that Maryland taxpayers reporting capital gains income should go ahead and file their Maryland returns, despite delays announced by IRS in processing federal income tax returns with capital gains. IRS is encouraging taxpayers with capital gains income to file their paper returns as soon as they are completed, although those returns will not be processed until mid-February because of necessary federal programming changes.

"Maryland taxpayers usually just have to transfer figures—such as income (including capital gains)—from their federal return directly to their Maryland return," Goldstein said. "We will be processing all returns as they are received, so there's no reason to wait. Once you've completed your Maryland return—don't delay, file today and we'll send your refund on its way."

Taxpayers who have questions about their Maryland returns should call 410-974-3981 from Central Maryland or 1-800-MD TAXES (1-800-638-2937) from elsewhere. "You can also contact us by e-mail any time of the day or night," Goldstein said. The e-mail address is taxhelp@comp.state.md.us.

"We'll also be happy to complete your Maryland return for you free of charge, as long as you bring a completed copy of your federal return and all W-2 statements to any of our taxpayer service offices," Goldstein said.

The comptroller's 20 taxpayer service offices located throughout the state provide free taxpayer assistance between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. The addresses and telephone numbers of the offices are listed on the back of the Maryland tax booklet and in most local telephone directories. Taxpayers can also get Maryland tax information and download state income tax forms from the comptroller's website at www.comp.state.md.us. Forms can also be obtained from the e-mail address at forms@www.comp.state.md.us.



GEOGRAPHY BEE WINNERS at Broad Ford Elementary School and Southern Middle School were named recently, and the school winners will advance to the state competition, slated for April 3. The event, which is sponsored by the National Geographic Society and Sylvan Learning Centers, was kicked off nationally last month, with thousands of schools around the nation and in the five U.S. territories participating. In the photo above, from left, are Broad Ford's Darwin Bennett, semi-finalist; Andrew Goad, winner; Allison Richter, finalist; and Emily Bowman, semi-finalist. The Broad Ford students were coached by teacher Sheila Russell. Pictured below with social studies teacher/bee coach Gary Thompson is sixth grader Casey Taylor, winner at Southern Middle School. State champions in the contest will be provided all-expenses-paid trips to Washington, D.C., to participate in the national championships, slated for May 19-20. Alex Trebek, host of television's "Jeopardy," will moderate the national finals, and the national winner will receive a $25,000 college scholarship.

Estimated Tax Packets Mailed By Comptroller

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said his office is mailing estimated income tax packets to 216,000 taxpayers. The payment vouchers reflect Maryland's state income tax reduction for 1998.

"The vouchers will include instructions to help self-employed taxpayers and others who are not subject to income tax withholding to take advantage of the income tax reduction enacted by the Maryland General Assembly for tax year 1998," Goldstein said.

The new estimated tax packet will contain four quarterly vouchers for tax year 1998, an instruction page, and a set of return envelopes. The calculations in the estimated tax packet have been changed to reflect Maryland's state income tax cut, which does not affect the local income tax.

"Fewer people may need to file and pay estimated taxes this year since the estimated tax liability threshold was raised from $250 to $500 for 1998," Goldstein said.

Taxpayers who are required to file a Maryland return, have income not subject to withholding, and are expected to have a tax liability of $500 or more must file and pay estimated taxes, using Form 502D—if they are filing for the first time—or a pre-printed payment voucher. Taxpayers who filed estimated returns in 1997 should automatically receive the vouchers for 1998. The first quarterly voucher for 1998 is due April 15, 1998.

To avoid interest charges, taxpayers must pay 90% of their current year income tax liability, or 100% of the previous year's tax liability, through estimated taxes or employer withholding.

Form 502D—Declaration of Estimated Maryland and Local Income Tax—is included in the Maryland tax booklet. It is also available by fax from the comptroller's Forms-by-Fax system by calling 410-974-FAXX (3299) any time 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Taxpayers can also download Form 502D from the comptroller's website at www.comp.state.md.us.

Taxpayers who have questions about estimated taxes can call 410-974-3981 from Central Maryland or 1-800-MD TAXES (1-800-638-2937) from elsewhere. "You can also contact us by e-mail any time of the day or night," Goldstein said. The e-mail address is taxhelp@comp.state.md.us.

The comptroller's 20 taxpayer service offices located throughout the state provide free taxpayer assistance between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. The addresses and telephone numbers of the offices are listed on the back of the Maryland tax booklet and in most local telephone directories.

Survivors include one daughter, Carolan Rephann, Grantsville; two sisters, Betty Miller, Accident, and Thelma Anello, Grantsville; five grandchildren; and one great-granddaughter.

Friends were received at the Newman Funeral Home, Grantsville, where a service was conducted at 2 p.m. today, Jan. 22, with the Rev. Raymond Brown officiating. Interment was in the Grantsville Cemetery.

THE OAKLAND FIRE HALL was made brighter during the Christmas holidays, thanks to the donation of a live Christmas tree by Forman's Tree Farm of Oakland. Pictured above are Stephanie Forman, whose parents John and Joyce own the tree farm, and Jamie Ashby, a lieutenant with the Oakland VFD. After the fire department's use of the tree, it was donated to the hospital and planted on the hospital grounds.

Funding Proposal

movies once a month, for example. Appalachian Crossroads provides such services already, and this funding could be used to expand those services," he said.

The expanded funding is seen as a step in the right direction by Aspinall, Hollingsworth and other providers and advocates for the disabled community. Joyce Lipman, ARC of Maryland president and the chairperson of the waiting list campaign, as well as a parent of an individual with a disability, spoke on behalf of many families when she said, "As families, we have asked, 'What will happen to our family members — our sons and daughters, brothers and sisters — when we die?' Now with this initiative, we can live to watch with pride and love as they take their first steps towards independence and an adult place in the community."

Other areas targeted by the multi-faceted initiative include enhancing personal assistance services offered through the Medical Assistance Personal Care program by doubling the amount providers receive by for caring for the most severely disabled citizens; eliminating the waiting list for the Attendant Care Program within the state's Department of Human Resources; and supporting those individuals who need attendant care through a consumer-directed model of services.

The funding package also seeks to increase employment services for those with disabilities by providing $1 million in increased funding to the Division of Rehabilitation Services, part of the state's Department of Education.

"This budget proposal has a good chance of passing in the state legislature," commented Bobette T. Watts of the state's Office for Individuals with Disabilities, "as it has good bipartisan support; however, people interested in ensuring its approval, especially families with a member who may have a developmental disability, should write letters to their state representatives."

In the meantime, Theresa Hagglund, service coordinator for Garrett County, encourages families and individuals who may need services to find out more about what is available and see how local progams may fit their particular situations. "The Service Coordination Office may be reached at 301-334-9505 in order to assist families with either an adult or a child family member with a disability. Interested persons may call our office for information or to receive assistance with the application process," Hagglund said. Aspinall added that "Appalachian Crossroads is ready to assist people who are in need of services, and may be reached at 301-334-8449."

To The People Of Accident

My Dad passed away in September 1993. Over the past four years Mom has lived by herself. My Mom is very lucky that she had the good fortune to live in the town of Accident. The wonderful people of the town have looked after her and helped her in any way they could.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank some of these people. Mary and Owen Bach checked on my Mom daily, took her shopping, to the doctor and fixed her hair; they are as close to her as any family. Ross and Virginia Glotfelty are good friends and Ross took care of Mom's trash, washed her windows and car. He did other odd jobs at her request. Raymond and Marie Coddington kept my Mom's yard looking great. They also kept Mom's refrigerator full from their garden. Janet and Larry McCord checked on Mom weekly, Janet on many days stopped by to chat. Russ and Edna Wright also checked on her daily and kept her in vegetables from their garden and Mom's favorite pudding from their stove. Sarah Alexander shared cakes, pies and cookies with Mom. Beverly James, a newcomer to town, came across the street periodically to visit with Mom and they had many conversations on the telephone. Leah Brenneman would visit and bring Mom delicious lunches. This was the love and care that the neighbors gave, but it didn't stop there.

Joan Manahan and Mike Thomas at the post office helped by making sure that Mom had stamps on letters and even helped her to wrap packages. Rick and Barbara Hartman at the Amoco station took care of Mom's car, pumped her gas, and did things around Mom's house as she requested. Don Fratz and Greg Oester at the hardware store were always willing to help Mom, even coming to the house to put batteries in her smoke detectors. Steve Fratz at the trailer sales sent men to work on her fans and to do other odd jobs Mom needed done. Mike Fratz kept her driveway clear of snow, which was not always easy, since Mom didn't want one flake on it. Barry Rush came every time Mom had a problem with her stove or furnace. Allen Fratz at the Accident Garage kept Mom's car running and made house calls when she couldn't get it started. The Flour Shop Bakery delivered cinnamon rolls two at a time. John Elliot, who delivered the paper, almost brought the paper in the house and when he or his wife didn't see Mom in the house, they would come to the door to check on her. Carol Miller, Cathy Patton and Sarah Stanton at the American Trust Bank helped Mom with her checkbook and made her feel she had some close friends at the bank. The IGA store folks were always good to Mom, cutting and slicing what she bought, and stocking things she requested, although she was the only one that bought that item. Dr. & Mrs. Naumann treated Mom when she was sick and were concerned with her well being and safety at all times.

There is no way that I can ever repay these good people. They are the best, kindest, and most caring you will find anywhere on this earth. I hope that they will accept a heartfelt Thank You from a very very grateful son.

Most sincerely,
Dan Garrett

Food For Thought

Chocolate is good for you—or so said the great French food writer and critic Brillat-Savarin in 1825. "People who habitually drink chocolate enjoy unvarying health and are least attacked by illness."

What a beautiful first course! On a bed of spinach leaves (get the easy-to-use prewashed package) and radicchio leaves, place thin-sliced pears and thin sliced red onion. For dressing, make a vinaigrette with sauteed pancetta or bacon and a shallot in it.

Ready-to-slice polenta is the easy way to a fast supper. Top broiled slices with sizzled and crumbled Italian sausage meat and sauteed onions, pressed garlic and red pepper slices.

Souffles will rise higher and taste lighter if you add and extra egg white to the recipe.

There's nothing ordinary about mashed potatoes that are cooked with celery root and garlic, then mashed with lots of butter and Italy's rich and creamy marscarpone cheese.

Rams Ram Huskies, Fall To Lions, Upset Bishop Walsh

A defeat by host Tucker County Saturday evening was sandwiched by a pair of big victories for the Southern High School boys' varsity basketball team, as the Rams posted a 70-53 win over cross-county rival Northern in Oakland Friday evening and then recorded a huge upset of visiting Bishop Walsh, the area's number-two ranked team, on Tuesday, 58-57. The 2-1 week left Coach Tom Bosley's team with an overall record of 7-6. The Rams are 5-2 in the Western Maryland Interscholastic League standings.

The first half of the clash with the Northern Huskies last Friday was just as most Southern-Northern encounters — close — as Southern led 17-15 at the end of the first quarter and was up by just one point at halftime, 32-31. But the Rams went on a 9-2 run in the opening min-utes of the third quarter be-hind a three-point bucket by Mike Pamepinto and two two-pointers by Mike Paesani. The Rams out-scored the Huskies in the period by an 18-9 margin to take a 50-40 advantage into the fi-nal quarter.

The Huskies did not quit, however, and cut Southern's lead to six points, 59-53, with about three minutes left in the game. But that was as close as they would get, as the Rams went on to score the final 11 points of the contest. The Huskies were forced to foul in the final period, and the Rams connected on 10 of 13 opportunities at the charity stripe.

Paesani led the Rams in scoring and on the boards, as he hit a personal season-high of 19 points and grabbed seven rebounds. John Andrews finished with 12 points, Nathan DiSimone provided a strong performance with 11 points, nine assists, and four steals, and Josh Helbig also reached double figures with 10 points.

Leading the Huskies in scoring were Scott Sisler and Dustin Long with 18 and 16 points, respectively, and Long also pulled down a game-high 12 rebounds and blocked five Ram shots. The loss dropped the Huskies to 3-8 overall and 1-4 in the WMIL.

The Southern junior varsity upped its perfect record to 7-0 by coasting to a 53-25 win in the preliminary game. Justin Liller led the Rams with 12 points, while Russell Lawson netted 10 for the Northern jayvees.

The undefeated Mountain Lions of Tucker County (6-0) were too much for the Rams Saturday night, as they took the lead early and slowly expanded it throughout the game. Tucker led 19-14 at the end of the first quarter, was up 37-28 by halftime, and held a 53-35 advantage after three periods.

Jim Aliff netted 24 points, Derrick Simmons hit 20, and Wes Lambert recorded 16 to lead Tucker County.

The Rams were paced in scoring by Paesani and Jayson Garland with 16 and 13 points, respectively. Andrews and Pamepinto each had nine.

The Southern jayvees also tasted defeat for the first time this season in the opening game, as the younger Rams were edged by a 62-59 margin, despite a 19-point effort by Nathaniel Panther. Brandon Corcoran led the Tucker junior varsity with 17 points.

It was an outstanding second half by the Rams that led to their big win over visiting Bishop Walsh Tuesday evening, a result which avenged an earlier defeat at the hands of the Spartans.

Southern trailed by nine, 20-11, at the end of the first quarter, and after pulling to within a couple points late in the second period, allowed the Spartans to go on a run just before intermission and take a 37-23 lead into the locker room.

The Rams slowly grabbed the momentum in the third quarter, however, and out-scored the Spartans in that period by a 20-9 margin to narrow the gap to three points, 46-43. With just under five minutes left in the game, the Rams took the lead for the first time.

The advantage changed hands several times, but the score was tied at 55-55 with just 11 seconds left. The Rams hit a free throw to take a 56-55 lead, after which Derek Everd stole the ball for the Rams when BW pulled the rebound on the second, and missed, foul shot.

Everd fired the ball to Jonathan Price, who was fouled, and Price hit both free throws to give the Rams a 58-55 lead. The Spartans attempted a three-point shot, but the ball bounced off the rim and into the hands of Spartan Travis Jessie, who put it up and in for two points at the buzzer.

Paesani set another personal scoring mark for the season, as he recorded 22 points, while Andrews finished with 13 and Pamepinto netted nine.

Leading Bishop Walsh (10-4) were Brett Blanco and Joe Rowan with 13 points apiece. Nelson Guerin finished with 12 points and Jason Ricker chipped in with nine.

The Southern junior varsity got back on track by mashing the BW jayvees in the preliminary game, 61-43, behind a 13-point performance by Nathaniel Panther. Tony Caporale and Dustin Freeze each scored 10 points for the Spartans.

The Rams will play another WMIL contest Friday night at home against Allegany, and will attempt to avenge an 84-61 loss to the Campers last week. They will travel to Keyser next Tuesday.

At right, Southern's Jayson Garland works his way inside for a pair of points. The Rams pulled off a 58-57 upset of the Spartans, who are the area's second-ranked team. The win gave Southern an 8-7 record. See story for details.

Condoerr Edges Deep Creek In Men's League

Because of a scheduling conflict, only one game was played Sunday in the Mountaintop Basketball League, but it was an exciting one, as Condoerr edged previously undefeated Deep Creek Ready Mix, 92-90.

The score was tight from the opening tipoff. Condoerr took a four-point lead with just 31 seconds left in the game when Pete Brosnihan hit a pair of free throws to make it 92-88. C.J. Getson cut the lead to two with a lay-up for Deep Creek, but those were the final two points of the game.

Poke Winters and Dennis Gibson led the winners in scoring with 25 and 23 points, respectively. Brosnihan was right behind with 20 points and Tom Stem added 10.

Getson led five DC Ready Mix players in double figures, as he pumped in 23. Greg Inglese and Jason Brenneman each recorded 20, Alan Selders hit 12, and Chad Reese netted 10.

This Sunday, Jan. 25, 219 Motors will face Custom Furnishings in the 3 p.m. game and Deep Creek Ready Mix will meet Preston Distributors in the 4 p.m. contest.

Huskies Topped By Sentinels After SHS Loss

The boys' varsity basketball team of Northern High School was handed a pair of defeats this past week, as Coach Mike Friend's Huskies were topped by visiting Southern on Friday, 70-53 (see separate story), and were then whipped Tuesday evening on the road at Fort Hill, 81-58. The pair of Western Maryland Interscholastic League defeats dropped the Huskies' league record to 1-5 and their overall mark to 3-9.

The Huskies fell behind Fort Hill early Tuesday evening and never made a serious run for the lead. The Sentinels jumped out to a 23-10 advantage by the end of the first quarter. Northern played evenly with the host team in the second stanza and trailed by 12, 42-30, at halftime. Fort Hill stretched its advantage to 56-38 by the end of the third period.

Jamie Kline and Josh Logsdon each scored 20 points to pace the Sentinels, who improved to 8-2 overall and 4-0 in the WMIL. Kline hit three of the Sentinels' game total of nine three-point goals. Also reaching double figures for Fort Hill were Jordan Hamilton with 14 points and Jared Fradiska with 10.

Netting 19 points to pace the Huskies was Dustin Long, while Scott Sisler and Rob Dozier each finished with 11.

The Northern junior varsity was defeated in the preliminary game, 49-33, as Jeremy Snyder hit a game-high 22 points for the Fort Hill jayvees and Eric Dudley chipped in with 10. Leading the Huskies' scoring was P.J. Workman with nine points.

The Huskies will play again this Friday at home against Hancock.

CELEBRATING OUR SEVENTH ANNIVERSARY

Lakers Upset Catonsville And Hagerstown In Three-Win Week

The Garrett Community College Lakers had an outstanding and exciting week on the basketball court, beginning with Saturday night when they upset nationally ranked Catonsville in McHenry, 83-79, then defeated Potomac State College in Keyser on Monday, 87-76, and finally recorded a big double overtime win last night at home over powerful Hagerstown Junior College, 116-101, behind a record-setting individual scoring performance by Jerome Adams.

Catonsville came to McHenry on Saturday ranked number three in the nation in the National Junior Collegiate Athletic Association's Division II standings, but Coach Dennis Gibson and the Lakers were obviously not intimidated by that fact, as they recorded by far their biggest victory of the season.

Jerome Adams ripped the nets for 24 points to lead the Lakers' scoring effort, with five of his nine field goals coming from three-point range. He also had three steals.

Michael Fields also had a solid night for the Lakers, as he finished with 21 points, while Rob Wheeler hit 17 points and Lionell Sewell recorded eight points, 10 rebounds, five assists, and three steals.

The Lakers took a 12-11 lead after just over five minutes of play, and then proceeded to go on an 11-4 scoring run that put them up by 10, 23-13. The Cardinals came back, however, to cut the Laker lead to just one point, 42-41, by intermission.

The second half remained close, but the Lakers were up by six, 82-76, with less than a minute to play. Omar Smith drained a three-pointer for Catonsville to cut the margin to 82-79, but those would be the final points of the evening for the visitors. Eric Papcun added an insurance point from the foul line for the Lakers with just seconds to play.

Catonsville's three-point shooting was even more impressive than the Lakers,' as they netted 11 baskets from that range. Owain States hit four of them and finished with 16 points. Smith and Magnus St. Ang each had three long-range goals and also finished with 16 points apiece, while Billy Epps recorded 14 points and Lamont Clark had 10 points and 13 rebounds.

The loss dropped the Cardinals to 13-3 on the season.

"This was a total team effort," stated an elated Coach Gibson. Adams, Wheeler, and Sewell really led our effort to wear down their guards."

Michael Fields was the big gun for the Lakers in the Dana G. Lough gymnasium in Keyser Monday night, as he hit a season-high 34 points and pulled down 15 rebounds, while Wheeler also had an outstanding night with 25 points and 17 rebounds.

The Lakers were ahead of the 3-12 Catamounts by six at halftime, 40-34, but found themselves behind by five, 57-52, with just under 12 minutes to play. Garrett quickly regained control, and the lead, by going ahead for good at 61-60 with 9:23 remaining.

Also reaching double figures for the Lakers was Tommy Pitcher with 10 points. He also had four assists, as did Fields, Adams, and Josh Bunnell.

Unlike the Lakers' previous game, all but one bucket scored was for two points, while the Catamounts finished with eight long-range shots. Samuel Veney led PSC's scoring with 20 points and also had four steals, Fred Jackson netted 15 points, Marritt Cassell, who hit four three-pointers, finished with 14, and Derrick Bush scored 11 points.

"The inside play of Michael and Rob was the real key for us," Coach Gibson said, "and Josh Bunnell came off the bench for Lionell Sewell (who was injured) and did a very good job inside against Fred Jackson.

"Potomac State played well, though, and we had all we could handle," he added.

Jerome Adams set a new Laker scoring record last night in Garrett's double overtime win over Hagerstown JC, as he poured in 45 points on 14 field goals, including six three-pointers, and 11 of 13 at the foul line. In both overtime periods, the Lakers overcame deficits near the end to keep themselves alive.

It was a three-pointer at the buzzer by Adams that sent the game into its first overtime period with the score knotted at 89-89.

Each team scored eight points in the first overtime period, and it was a dunk by Garrett's Rob Wheeler with 27 seconds remaining that tied the score at 97-97 and forced the second overtime.

As the margin of victory would indicate, the Lakers dominated the second overtime period to record their 14th win in 18 starts. A pair of free throws by Wheeler moments into the period gave GCC the lead for good at 99-97. Papcun followed with a lay-up to make it 101-97, and after James Fowler cut the lead back to two with a lay-up for the Hawks, the Lakers responded with an 8-0 burst to give them a 109-99 advantage with 2:17 remaining.

The 15-point spread at the end was the largest lead by the Lakers in the contest, which featured eight ties and 14 lead changes.

Adams broke the previous GCC single-game scoring mark of 44 points, set a number of years ago by Chuckie Moore in a triple-overtime game against Butler.

Also reaching double figures were Wheeler and Fields, who each netted 21 points. Wheeler also grabbed 15 rebounds, while Timmy Pitcher pulled down 11 and had five steals. Adams recorded six steals and Sewell was credited with five assists. The Lakers outrebounded the Hawks by a 61-52 margin.

Pacing the Hawks was Fowler, who finished with 25 points, 11 rebounds, and six assists. Lavar Robinson and Pamir Harbin each recorded 14 points, and Brian Samuels had six of Hagerstown's 22 steals.

"Jerome had a great night," stated Coach Gibson, "but we also had another strong effort as a team, which is essential in order to beat a team the caliber of Hagerstown."

Gibson also noted the strong defensive play of Ricky Berkeley off the bench.

The Lakers, who are currently 7-3 in the Maryland JUCO standings, will play at Cecil CC this Saturday and host Montgomery CC-Germantown next Wednesday night.

Laker Women Have Busy Week; Win Two, Lose Two In Overtime

A packed schedule for the Garrett Community College womens' basketball team saw the Lakers split four games for the week, trouncing Montgomery College-Rockville, dropping a heartbreaker in overtime to Anne Arundel Community College, dominating Montgomery College-Takoma Park, and falling short to Allegany College by just a basket in another overtime loss.

Chrissy Lambert and Andrea Barrick twinned for 19 points apiece, Mary Walters scored 18 points, Erica McBride added 14 points, and Marika Washington contributed 11 points as the Lakers mounted a balanced offensive attack in Friday's 96-42 rout over Montgomery-Rockville.

Fourteen rebounds by April Sisler and 10 rebounds apiece from Walters and Barrick's 10 helped GCC sweep the boards clean, while Washington dished out nine assists and Walters totaled eight assists. The Lakers dominated defensively as well, with McBride taking four steals, Barrick blocking four shots and Sisler blocking three shots. Rockville scoring was led by Sarah Blume's 22 points.

Against Anne Arundel on Saturday the Lakers overcame a 16-point deficit in the second half to tie the game with six seconds remaining in regulation, but then only managed to score two points in the overtime period in the face of a nine-point tally by the visitors.

There were eight ties and 11 lead changes in the course of the game, and GCC battled back from a 16-point deficit at 5:18 in the fourth quarter by going on a 13-0 run to pull within three points with 1:53 left. Lambert had a pair of field goals and a free throw in the run, Walters two free throws, Stephanie Quattro a pair of field goals, and Washington one field goal.

With six seconds remaining in regulation Walters hit the clutch three-pointer that sent the game into overtime with the score knotted at 75-75. The Lakers were dealt a mortal blow when they lost Walters, Lambert, and McBride to fouls by the game's end.

GCC stormed back in a big way at Takoma Park Monday night, as Walters tallied 32 points, seven assists, and five steals in leading the Lakers to a 80-60 victory. Walters's supporting cast included Keyshia Monroe, who added 14 points, and Barrick, who took down nine rebounds.

Palmore led Takoma Park with 20 points and 12 rebounds, Maddaris scored 15 points, and Dela Cruz scored 11 points.

Last night in McHenry the Lakers were edged in overtime by Allegany 72-70, as former Southern High standout forward Kerri Cannon returned to the mountaintop to lead the visitors over GCC.

Cannon, a freshman, put on a stellar performance as she scored 24 points and snagged 11 rebounds, making her family, friends, and former classmates justly proud of her accomplishments even though they came at the hands of the home team. She made eight field goals and connected on eight of 10 free throws for the night.

Cannon's efforts and Allegany's victory, number 300 for head coach Linda Mellon, overshadowed a 27-point tally by Walters, who had sunk four three-pointers, and Lambert's 15 points and team-high eight rebounds. Alison Searles scored 20 points for the Trojans, and Stacey Risch added 13 points and six assists.

The Lakers looked like they had the game in the bag when they were up by six points with a just a minute remaining, but Allegany connected for two foul shots, a three-point goal, and another foul shot to knot the score at 65-65. Searles scored all seven of the Trojans' overtime points, while Walters scored all five of GCC's overtime points, three of which came on a three-pointer at the buzzer.

The Lakers' record now stands at 6-7 overall and 5-7 in the Maryland JUCO. They stay at home on the McHenry court this week as they host Chesapeake Community College Sunday afternoon, then remain idle until another home game against Harford Community College on Saturday, Jan. 31.

Northern Girls Whip Sentinels And Aggies; Record Now 10-4

Two road trips led to two victories for Northern's girls' basketball team this week, as they downed both Fort Hill and Flintstone to keep a six-game winning streak alive. With a 10-4 record, the Huskies are poised for a home contest against Mt. Savage this coming Monday night, followed by a visit to Southern on Wednesday night.

The Huskies' week opened with a 14-point victory at Fort Hill, 44-30. The nip and tuck matchup was touch and go until the final quarter, when Northern blew the Sentinels off the court 24-12. Prior to that outburst the winds of fortune had seemed to be favoring Fort Hill ever so slightly, as the hosts led 7-5 at the end of the first period, stood within only one point at the half, and led at the opening of fourth quarter 21-18.

Northern forward Brooke Brenneman led the Huskies offense down low with 19 points while playmaker Jill Speicher pumped in 11 points from her guard slot. Fort Hill sent Brenneman to the foul line eight times in trying to thwart her dominating play, but the tactic backfired as she connected for seven free throws. Kim Gitt's eight points led Fort Hill's scoring, and she also added 11 rebounds to lead her team on the boards.

The Huskies' jayvee took its contest as well, 33-23. Heather Nugent's 17 points led Northern and Jessica Rowan had eight points for Fort Hill.

Last night's road trip to Flintstone gave the Huskies their sixth straight victory, as Brenneman scored 16 points, Heidi Frazee 13 points, and Kathy Arnold 10 points to lead Northern to a 58-40 win. Brandy Helmick led Flintstone scorers with 16 points.

In the junior varsity game, Nugent's 27 points powered the Huskies to a 44-40 victory. Flintstone's Corey Reed and Lacy McCuster each scored 12 points.

Southern Girls Top Spartans, Crush Beall, Fall To Allegany

A crushing defeat at the hands of undefeated Allegany ended what had been a fine week of play by the Southern girls' basketball team, as it had beaten Bishop Walsh by six points and then demolished Beall by 52 points going into last night's matchup with the Campers.

Free throws made the difference in Saturday's 51-45 victory at Bishop Walsh, as almost half of Southern's point production came from the penalty stripe. The Rams dropped in 24 points from the foul line to BW's five successful free throws. It was a hard-fought contest throughout the game, as Southern led by only one basket at the end of the first quarter, one point at the half, and was down by four to the Spartans at the opening of the final period. The Rams outscored BW in the final stanza 16-6 to come from behind and take the win.

Bridget Miller scored 16 points for the Rams, nine of which came from three-point range. Jessica Saturday added 12 points and nine rebounds, while Laura Friend contributed eight points, and Liz Paesani nabbed six steals. The Spartans' Lauren Zapf took game-high scoring honors in the losing effort with 25 points and six assists. Tiffini Wagner added eight points, 10 rebounds, and six steals.

The Rams' junior varsity edged BW by one point, 24-23. Charlena Reeves scored 10 points for Southern, while the Spartans' Desiree Duvall scored 13 points.

On Monday the Rams hosted Beall and sent the Mountaineers packing after a 73-21 shellacking. Southern dominated the contest at both ends of the court the entire evening, leading 25-3 at the opening of the second quarter, 38-9 at the half and 55-13 as the fourth quarter got underway.

Saturday and Paesani each posted a game-high 16 points for the Rams, and Jennifer Teagarden and Katelyne McBee also twinned for eight points each. Beall's Zi Johansen and Sarah Bittner matched each other's six points to lead the visitors.

The Rams' jayvee raced to a 31-17 victory behind Reeves's 21 points. Stephanie Race led Beall's scoring with 10.

Last night the Rams went up against undefeated Allegany but lost 57-32. Liz Paesani and Jessica Saturday each had eight points for Southern, but Alco's Tracey Little scored a game-high 18 points and Cassie Murray scored 13 points to lead the visitors to victory.

A quick 10-2 start by the Campers kept Southern out of striking distance, as the Rams trailed 23-13 at the half and 35-19 after three periods of play.

Allegany won the junior varsity game as well, 38-27, behind Stacy Walton's 14 points. Reeves scored 14 points for the Rams as well.

Southern's slate for the coming week brings visits by BW on Monday evening and the Northern Huskies on Wednesday evening.

Info Available On Treatment Of Sports Injuries

At the peak of ski season and ski injuries, physical therapists will "come to the rescue" with a free, two-day sports injuries hotline February 13-14, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Eastern Time. The hotline is sponsored by the American Physical Therapy Association (APTA) and the Section on Sports Physical Therapy. The toll-free number is 1-800-955-7848.

In addition to questions about treating and preventing twisted knees and other winter sports injuries, physical therapists will tackle topics such as tennis elbow, strained backs, and sprained ankles related to sports and fitness activities.

The hotline is offered as a public service to help educate consumers about the prevention and treatment of sports injuries. It is not recommended as a substitute for a visit to a physical therapist or other health care professional.

The APTA sponsors several hotlines a year on health topics, each generating hundreds of calls. Callers may receive free brochures on physical therapy topics such as knee injuries, back pain, neck pain, shoulder injuries, foot and ankle injuries, general fitness, and women's health.

The American Physical Therapy Association is a national professional organization representing more than 75,000 members. Its goals are to foster advancements in physical therapy practice, research, and education.

Husky Matmen Continue To Dominate; Win Three More

The wrestling team of Northern High School continues to dominate the area's mats, as the Huskies claimed three more victims during the past week to up their perfect regular meet record to 8-0. Early last week Coach Scott Stough's team embarrassed host Allegany, 69-3, then flattened Keyser, 62-10, at a tri-meet last Wednesday night at Southern and topped visiting Berlin last Saturday night, 37-30.

Recording pins in the team victory over Allegany were Paul Beitzel (125 pounds), Jimmy Warnick (130), Jimmy Green (145), Matt Kauffman (160), and Ryan Brenneman (189), while Blake Huber (103) and Ryan Savage (275) won on points. Getting forfeit wins for the Huskies were Brandon Stein (112), Seth Huber (119), Jesse Shimrock (135), Adam Brenneman (140), and Nate Kauffman (152).

The Campers' only points were earned by Naem Page, who just got by Northern's Josh Boyd (8-7) in the 171-pound clash.

In the victory over Keyser, recording pins for the Huskies were: Roy Holliday (103), Stein, Huber, Beitzel, Warnick, Shimrock, Green, Boyd, and Savage. Earning decisions were Nate and Matt Kauffman.

Keyser's Luke Hoover won via a pin in the 189-pound bout and Jim Brinkman (140) won by decision.

In Saturday's match at home against Berlin, the Huskies built a large lead and then held on while the Pennsylvania team won the final three matches on pins to pull to within seven points.

Shimrock, Nate Kauffman, and Boyd recorded pins for Northern, while teammates Stein, Beitzel, Warnick, and Green won on points. Holliday was awarded the only forfeit of the evening.

All of Berlin's points were earned on pins by Nick Lorson (119), Ed Woida (140), Brian Fisher (171), John Paxton (189), and Jesse Schroyer (heavyweight).

The Huskies will go after their ninth win this evening in Oakland when they are hosted by cross-county rival Southern. They will host North Hagerstown and Martinsburg in a tri-meet Saturday, and then entertain Meyersdale next Thursday night.

Ram Grapplers Edged By Keyser

The Southern High School wrestling team, coached by Kurt Lear, hosted a tri-match last Wednesday night and dropped a close contest to Keyser, 36-33. Northern was the other team in the event, and the Huskies rolled over Keyser, 62-10 (see separate story).

Recording pin victories for the Rams were Nick Sines in the 119-pound class, Nick Dolan, 152 pounds, John Hayhurst, 160, and Jeremy Hayhurst, 171. Eric Rexrode (140) and Tommy Sweitzer (145) won on decisions.

Earning pins for the Golden Tornado were Brad Faulk (112), Tyson Swick (125), and Jamie DeLauder (135). P.J. DeMasi (130) and Luke Hoover (180) were winners on points, Brian Michaels won via injury default in the heavyweight division, and Trent Thorn (103) was awarded a forfeit.

The loss dropped the Rams to 4-3 in regular meets. They will wrestle again this evening at home against the undefeated Northern Huskies, then compete against University High and Petersburg next Wednesday in Morgantown.

The Rams were slated to participate in the Winners' Choice Tournament and in a match with Lewis County this past week, but no details of those events were reported.

Southern Mat Club Competes In Two Events

Members of the Southern Mat Club youth wrestling team had another busy weekend by participating in a tournament in Clarksburg, W.Va., Saturday and one in Fairmont, W.Va., Sunday.

Capturing two championships for the weekend was Nick Tressler, who won all four of his matches in the age 7-8, 45-pound division on pins, one of which was a rematch against an opponent he had lost to in a title bout two weeks ago.

Also winning first place at the Clarksburg tourney was Jason Weeks (11-12/90 pounds), as he dominated in all three of his matches en route to his second straight championship and third title in four tournaments.

Other first-place winners at Fairmont were Nathan Sines (9-10/75 pounds), who won both of his matches by pin, including a come-from-behind victory in his final bout.

A second-place winner for the local club at both Clarksburg and Fairmont Scott Wildesen (9-10/70 pounds). Tyler Gregory (4 and under/40 pounds) placed second at the Clarksburg tourney.

Winning a third place at Clarksburg was Brad Palmer (13-15/190), while Justin Ratliff (7-8/55 pounds) finished fourth. Also competing for the Southern club were David Ratliff (9-10/70), Mitchell Tasker (7-8/55), and Geoff Tressler (13-15/110).

Club members will travel tournaments in Taylor County, W.Va., and Waynesburg, Pa., this weekend. The local team will host its own tournament on Saturday, Jan. 31, at Southern High School.

Ram Freshmen Fall To Preston, Crush Spartans

The Southern ninth grade boys' basketball team split its games last week, opening with a 41-35 loss to South Preston but then rebounding to crush Bishop Walsh 68-22. The frosh record stands at 8-3.

Against South Preston the Rams led at the end of the first three quarters and held a seven point advantage with five minutes to go. Hot foul shooting took the victory out of Southern's hands, however, as Preston outscored the Rams 19-5 from the free throw line even though Southern led in field goals, 15-7. "Our free throw shooting was terrible, said coach Jon Hegeman. "We made only five of our 18 attempts while they hit 19 for 36. We must shoot better if we are to win on the road." Jamie Bosley scored 11 points while Ryan Ewing and Keith Steyer combined for 14 points. Justin Disimone and Mike Saturday led the defense.

The Rams got back on the winning track in an impressive 68-22 win against Bishop Walsh on Monday. The defense, led by Josh Sharon and Bryan Panther, held the Spartans to only five field goals for the contest, while all 12 Southern players scored. Bosley, Steyer, and Steve Elswert combined for 33 points. "Our team defense and pressure took Bishop Walsh out of their game plan," stated Hegeman.

The next game for the Southern frosh is at home against Westmar on Saturday afternoon.

Husky Freshmen Lose To Wildcats And Sentinels

Northern's freshman boys' basketball team had a tough week, losing to Westmar 42-34 and Fort Hill 52-38. The frosh record now stands at 2-3.

Westmar scored the first 15 points of the game and held on for the win Monday at Northern. The Huskies battled to within two points with 2:30 left in the final quarter, but Westmar made five foul shots to secure the win. Charlie Hartman scored 19 points to lead Westmar, while A.J. Thomas scored 11 points and Jeremey Frazee scored 10 points for Northern.

Huskies' coach Brad Frantz stated, "We just didn't come out ready to play early and we dug too deep of a hole. I was pleased with our effort, especially in coming back and giving ourselves a chance to win," he said. "We didn't execute well at all to start the game, and I hope we learned that we have to execute or our effort is wasted. We simply don't have the ability or the depth to physically dominate many teams on our schedule."

The next Northern outing saw Fort Hill avenge an earlier loss, as Josh Van Meter scored 15 points for the Sentinels, aided by Josh Marsh's 11 points. The Huskies were led by Jeremy Frazee's 11 points and Danny Thorp's nine points.

"Fort Hill shot the ball much better from outside than they did in the first game," said coach Frantz, "and they are much bigger than we are. They've improved a great deal since the start of the season."

Northern's freshmen travel to Frankfort tonight.

Preliminary Deer Harvest Totals Show Increase

Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Secretary John R. Griffin announced recently that preliminary results indicate deer hunters took an estimated 35,945 deer during Maryland's recent two week deer firearms hunting season. This was a 3 percent increase above the 1996 harvest of 34,766 deer.

Garrett County registered the third-highest harvest total of Maryland's counties, with 3,067 deer, following leader Allegany County's 3,335 deer, and Washington County's 3,163 deer.

Firearm deer hunting is the most popular type of deer hunting in Maryland. During the 1996-97 deer season firearm hunters accounted for 63 percent of the state's total deer harvest. Approximately 85 percent of all deer harvested during the firearms season are taken off private lands. Hunters using rifles account for about 54 percent of the deer taken during the firearms season, while shotgun hunters account for about 45 percent of firearms-harvested deer.

The three categories of deer hunting — firearms, muzzleloader, and archery are used as a wildlife management tool to regulate deer populations at levels compatible with available habitat. "Through the use of regulated hunting," said Griffin, "biologists strive to maintain deer populations at desirable levels or to adjust them in accordance with local biological and/or social needs. They do this by manipulating the size and sex composition of the harvest; the length, timing, and type of season called for; the number of permits; and land access policies," the DNR secretary said.

Griffin added that "DNR supports hunting as a valuable outdoor recreational acivity."

TROPICAL FISHING TIME

Just because winter, as mild as it has been, has settled into Garrett County and limited fishing opportunities, there are places on the continent where the fishing is simply great. Fishing these spots requires a plane ride and the time to do it. But, if you have the time and the means, there are places that make for an ideal family vacation, as well as a dream trip for an avid angler.

The Bahama Islands have been a mecca of sorts for U.S. anglers looking to bag the saltwater flats grand slam of a bonefish, a permit, and a tarpon. The best known spots have been around Andros Island and Bimini, but anglers looking for less in the way of fishing pressure may want to consider the island of Abaco in the Bahamas. Access is easy transferring through North Palm Beach, Ft. Lauderdale, Orlando, or Miami to land at Marsh Harbor. Families will find Marsh Harbor rich with accommodations and recreational opportunities. More focused anglers should consider the Great Abaco Bonefish Club close to the great fishing of the Cherokee Flats and the Marls.

Information on Marsh Harbor is available from your travel agent and information on the Great Abaco Bonefish Club at 809-366-2150. Their mailing address is P.O. Box AB-20092, Marsh Harbor, Abaco, Bahamas.

FLY TYING CLASSES

For those of you not heading for the Bahamas, but still wanting to hang in there with fishing activity, why not sign up now for the fly tying classes being offered at Garrett County Community College? The first class was held this past Tuesday, Jan. 20, but, if you get right to it, they will probably get you registered. Contact Mike Logsdon, director of Adventuresports at the college, 301-387-3032; or Allen Noland at Spring Creek Outfitters 301-334-6409.

The class in session now is for beginning tiers and will be followed immediately by an intermediate level group. Material covered will take a novice from the basics to the ability to tie just about anything desired. Necessary materials are included in the course.

As an aside, Allen offers that the rivers of Garrett County remain fishable through the winter months, particularly with the extended periods of relatively mild weather we've experienced. The mitigating condition is high water.

NEW DAM IN AREA

Beavers have been busy with a dam building project on Pawn Run, just where it enters Deep Creek Lake. Dr. Andy Joseph, resident of the Penn Cove area, reports that the waters have been backing up toward the bridge that enters the development off Penn Point Road. Eventually, this dam will have to be breached to avoid flooding, so anyone who wants to see it better get out there quickly.

ARCHERY LEAGUE REPORTS

Indoor archery leagues opened earlier this month at both the AMC and D & B Sport Shops. As the leagues progress, we'll post results here. If anyone is interested and would like to get into either league, give the shops a call and see if they can fit you in.

DNR LOOKING FOR VOLUNTEERS

The DNR is seeking individuals willing to donate talents and expertise with a broad range of activities from trail building and teaching children to planting seedlings and assessing water quality. Some of the areas where volunteers are making a difference are: (1) The Maryland Natural Resources Police Reserve Officer Program, where volunteers perform non-law enforcement duties (if interested, call Cpl. Harry Rhule at 301-888-1601); (2) TREEMENDOUS Maryland, where volunteers help reforest the state by planting seedlings (if interested, call Terry Galloway at 410-260-8510); and (3) the Volunteer Ranger Program, where people 18 years or older assist regular rangers in state parks and forests (call 410-260-8161 or the state park where you wish to volunteer).

TROUT UNLIMITED ON THE NET

Trout Unlimited now has a web site at www.tu.org. Information is available on TU's work on coldwater fisheries along with a plethora of miscellaneous information, including how to win prizes and other special offers.

WHAT ARE YOUR OUTDOOR INTERESTS?

Garrett County is blessed with so many opportunities for outdoor recreation. We would like to know what our readers' particular interests are so that we can include them in our coverage. Would you like to see more coverage on some particular type of fishing, shooting sport, water sport, or other outdoor activity? Drop us a note and let us know. We'll make an attempt to address it and even pass the information along to the folks developing adventure sports as an industry here.

THIS IS YOUR FORUM

This column, Garrett County Outdoors, can be a forum for distributing information of interest to sporting men and women. If you have something you would like discussed or a question or comment about any pertinent subject matter send it to Garrett County Outdoors, P.O. Box 326, Oakland, MD 21550.

Entries Sought For Duck Stamp Design Contest

This year marks the 25th anniversary of the Maryland Migratory Waterfowl Stamp Design Contest, and area artists are encouraged to submit their entries in time for the statewide competition's March 15 deadline.

"Of the many fine initiatives the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) launches to promote appreciation of the state's wildlife, this event is one of my favorites," said DNR Secretary John R. Griffin. "The level of quality, creativity and detail the artists bring to this contest each year is truly inspiring and acts as a constant reminder of why wise management of our natural resources is so important."

The stamp is widely collected and is required to be affixed to waterfowl hunting licenses. An acrylic by Perry Hall resident Jim Taylor, titled "Return to the Chesapeake," depicting two canvasback ducks gliding in over the bay, beat out more than 50 competitors as it was named the winner of the 1997-98 contest.

Proceeds from the sale of the stamps go to the Wildlife Management and Protection Fund. The funds are used in waterfowl habitat conservation efforts, including the construction and placement of over 1,000 wood duck nesting boxes, 700 acres of new wetlands construction projects, repair and maintenance activities on more than 7,000 acres of existing impounded wetlands, control of more than 3,000 acres of phragmites, live trapping and relocation of over 100 beavers to a place where their pond activities would create habitat for wood ducks, and leasing of more than 1,000 acres of standing corn and green forage crops for wintering Canada geese.

Contest entry forms and guidelines are available by calling 301-292-8331 or 410-260-8012. Judging will occur on March 28 at Fort Washington in Prince George's County.

Kathy G. Savage Earns Scholarship

Kathy G. Savage, Cumberland, was awarded a LaVale Century Club Scholarship for study at Allegany College, Cumberland, in the current 1997-98 academic year, the AC Foundation announced. Formerly employed as an insurance executive and small-business manager, Savage is earning an associate degree in nursing. She was named to the dean's list, and has maintained a 4.0 grade point average.

A 1971 graduate of Southern High School, she has three adult children: Jay Savage, Jaime Burnett, and Johni McGoldrick.

On Dean's List, Earns 4.0 GPA

Megan Danielle Stanton, Grantsville, has been named to the dean's list at Frostburg State University for outstanding academic achievement for the fall 1997 semester. In addition, she earned a perfect 4.0 grade point average.

To be eligible for the dean's list, a student must undertake a minimum of 12 credit hours and earn a cumulative semester grade point average of at least 3.4 on a 4.0 scale.

Stanton is the daughter of Guy and Linda Stanton.

1099G Forms Are Mailed By Comp. Goldstein

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said that, while taxpayers should already have their 1997 income tax forms, now is the time to watch the mail for W-2 statements and 1099 forms.

The Comptroller's Office is now mailing more than 958,000 Form 1099Gs to Maryland taxpayers who itemized deductions last year and received a refund from the state.

"We're required by federal law to send the Form 1099G to remind taxpayers that the state income tax refund they received last year must be reported as income on their 1997 federal tax return," Goldstein said. The comptroller reminded taxpayers that they do not need to attach the 1099G to their federal or state income tax forms.

"Do not send back the 1099G's return postcard unless your address is incorrect and needs to be changed," Goldstein said.

Form 1099G also shows if any or all of the taxpayer's refund was applied to estimated taxes, donated to the Chesapeake Bay and Endangered Species Trust Fund or Fair Campaign Financing Fund, or used for some other purpose, such as to pay child support or delinquent taxes. Taxpayers should read the information on their 1099G carefully and check their records before calling the State Comptroller's Office.

"Most questions about the 1099Gs come from taxpayers who don't remember getting a refund check," Goldstein said. "In fact, taxpayers may not have actually received a check last year if their refund was applied to 1997 estimated taxes or used to offset an existing bill. However, even if a taxpayer's refund was applied to something else, federal law maintains that taxpayers did receive the benefit of a refund and must report it as income."

Additionally, the 1099G reflects all Maryland refunds credited to the taxpayer during 1997. This may include the original tax refund for 1996, and refunds from any 1995 or prior year amended returns.

Taxpayers who still have questions about the 1099G forms should call 410-974-3981 from Central Maryland or 1-800-MD TAXES (1-800-638-2937) from elsewhere. "You can also contact us by e-mail any time of the day or night," Goldstein said. The e-mail address is taxhelp@comp.state.md.us.

The comptroller's 20 taxpayer service offices located throughout the state provide free taxpayer assistance between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. The addresses and telephone numbers of the offices are listed on the back of the Maryland tax booklet and in most local telephone directories. Taxpayers can also get Maryland tax information and download state income tax forms from the comptroller's website at www.comp.state.md.us. Forms can also be obtained from the e-mail address at forms@www.comp.state.md.us.

AmeriCorps Staff Hard At Work In Local Communities

by Kendra Todd
Garrett County
Health Department

AmeriCorps at the Garrett County Health Department (GCHD) is well into its fourth year of programs designed to strengthen communities and to help improve the lives of the people who live in them. Involved with the AmeriCorps program since 1994, GCHD now has four new members and two second-year members who help Garrett County residents take steps toward improving their health and safety.

Sharon Catino is a new AmeriCorps member and a 1997 college graduate, who came to the health department from Massachusetts. With a degree in environmental science, Catino fit right into the AmeriCorps position with the Environmental Health Division. She is already busy doing water testing, septic system inspections, rabies investigations, and well groutings under the direction of the staff at Environmental Health.

"It's really important to know if your drinking water is safe," said Catino. "By monitoring where septic systems are installed and wells are drilled, the chance for contamination is decreased. By testing the wells for bacteria and E.Coli, we are able to prevent many people from getting sick." In addition, Catino is working on an ongoing research project to determine if there is a link between radon levels and rock type.

Steve Folk, a Garrett County native and Grantsville resident, is coordinating the Victory Garden project, in its fourth year of existence. The project is designed to help families or groups of five or more establish a garden in order to provide their homes with more vegetables at a lower cost. Over 600 Garrett County residents have benefited from this program over the past three years. The goal is to serve another 150 this year. "It's one thing for us to advocate people eating healthy, but this way we can also ensure that more Garrett County residents have the means to do so," says Folk.

The Teen Health Theater group, Pandora's Box, is under the direction of another first year AmeriCorps member, Jill Holler. As the director, she works with 12-15 students from Northern and Southern high schools to present health messages to school and community groups. In conjunction with Red Ribbon Week, Pandora's Box performed alcohol and tobacco prevention skits for southern Garrett County elementary schools. December was a busy month for Pandora's Box as members performed for a Parents of Teens group, a World AIDS Day event in Washington County, and a repeat performance for the World AIDS Day event at Garrett Community College.

THE 1997-98 CLASS OF THE LOCAL AMERICORPS PROGRAM is working in, for, and with Garrett County communities to help improve life on the mountaintop for everyone. In the left in the first row is Sharon Catino, who works in Environmental Health, and Kendra Todd, community health educator for the Garrett County Health Department and the department's supervisor of this year's AmeriCorps program. In the second row are Jill Holler, director of Pandora's Box, Karen Frankhouser, tutoring coordinator for an after-school program at Southern Middle School, and Sandy Sutton, coordinator of the overall SMS after-school program. In the third row are Michael Gibbons, resource person to several community groups, and Steve Folk, a Garrett County native, who is coordinating the Victory Garden project.

"Pandora's Box is such a unique concept," explains Holler. "Audiences really respond to the teens presenting the skits and the most exciting thing is that they respond to the positive messages that are being presented. It is also impressive to witness the dedication and commitment that the teen actors show to making a difference in our community!"

First-year member Karen Frankhouser has assumed the role of tutoring coordinator for a comprehensive after-school program at Southern Middle School which operates three afternoons per week from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. and has already served over 85 students. In addition to tutoring, the program offers recreation, service learning, and drug and alcohol prevention activities. Said Frankhouser, "Children often need encouragement to improve their academic performance. The after-school pro-gram offers this encouragement and support in a safe, fun atmosphere."

Sandy Sutton, overall coordinator of the SMS after-school program, added that "the AmeriCorps staff commits much time and energy helping the students in the program to increase their knowledge and expand their existing skills, believing that these youth are the future of the community." Sutton, a second-year member, will be assisting with all aspects of the comprehensive after-school program as well as leading the recreation component. She will also be planning community fitness activities to be offered at worksites and schools.

"The worksite wellness program is beginning its second year," explained Sutton. "It's a motivational program which focuses on successful exercise, nutrition, and behavior modification techniques offered in a fun, competitive format. I look forward to assisting the Community Health team of the health department in educating others about the benefits of a healthy lifestyle."

Michael Gibbons, second year member at the health department, will be acting as a resource person to community planning groups which are funded by mini-grants from the health department's prevention program. "People often say, 'There's nothing for kids to do and that's why they get into trouble,'" said Gibbons. "I agree, and I think that the community planning groups are a way to provide fun, safe alternative activities for both the young and old."

In his role as an AmeriCorps member, Gibbons assists the groups in planning fun activities which support the prevention of drug and alcohol use and also provides support to the volunteers who comprise the groups. Gibbons' responsibilities during his first year were to conduct home safety assessments for Garrett County residents. He will continue to offer this service on a limited basis, with more focus on group presentations about safety-related issues.

The AmeriCorps team at the health department is dedicated to getting things done on a national, state, and local level, having already participated in a National Launch for AmeriCorps, and an InterCorps Council made up of appointed Maryland AmeriCorps members convened to set the pace for AmeriCorps members across the state.

"This AmeriCorps team is top notch," stated Kendra Todd, community health educator and supervisor of the AmeriCorps program at GCHD. "They are committed to fulfilling their objectives and thereby providing valuable public health services with a personal, yet professional delivery. We feel very fortunate to have such a dedicated volunteer corps at the health department," she said.

AmeriCorps at the Garrett County Health Department is housed in the Buchmann Building at 2008 Maryland Highway, Mtn. Lake Park. For more information about the GCHD AmeriCorps program or to access its services, interested persons may call 301-334-8122.

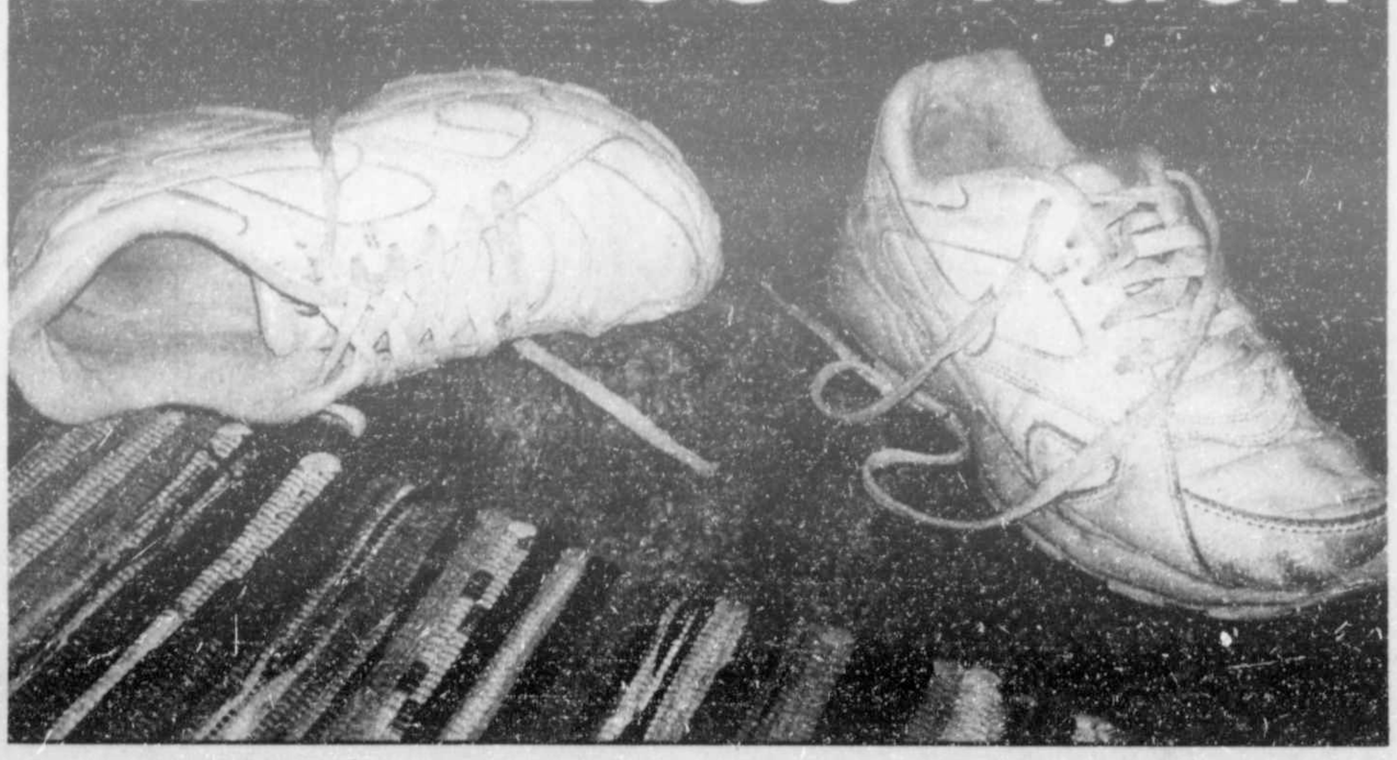
Don't Lose Track



"How many times do I have to tell you not to toss your sneakers around? If you don't keep track of them, they'll be lost. Make a little more effort, take a few more steps, and put them in their proper place."

Sound familiar? Probably. It just seems easier to toss things aside when we are tired or in a hurry or preoccupied. In the long run we may be causing ourselves an inconvenience.

The same can be said of our spiritual side. We need it constantly to support us as we jump the hurdles in life. What do we do with our spiritual side when we return from weekly worship? Do we toss it aside and lose track of it or do we devote the few extra minutes a day to care for it through daily prayer and devotions...to put it in the proper place in our lives so it is readily available at a moments notice?

This week, carry your spiritual side a few steps further. Keep it in its proper place in your life. Don't lose track.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WHAT KIND OF CROWN?
January 25, 1998

Background Scripture:
1 Peter 5:1-11
Devotional Reading:
Romans 12:9-21

Several years ago, as part of the promotion of a book I was asked to review, I was sent a cap by the publisher. On it in bold letters was the caption: "I AM THE C.E.O. IN THIS HOUSE." I have never worn it.

It occurred to me that people have long used crowns or hats to denote their authority and vocation. There is the tall white chef's hat that tells us who is the boss in the kitchen. There is the policeman's visored cap, more a symbol of authority than a practical head covering. The sailor's round cap clearly distinguishes him from any soldier. Even if we don't wear a distinctive head covering we still may use it as an analogy and remark that a particular person "wears several hats," meaning that person fills several different roles.

Whenever we are in a position of power—at home, at work, in the community—even if we do not actually wear a distinctive hat, we will likely unconsciously choose a figurative 'crown' that defines how we conceive of our role. Some people bear their position of responsibility and power with a crown of self-importance. Whenever I stand in line at a customs check-point in an airport, I try to pick out the customs agent who appears least likely to have to demonstrate that he or she has the authority to be picky and petty.

TRAINED TO BE RUDE

Others wear the crowns of officiousness, arbitrariness, arrogance and hostility. For me, the worst of these were the border guards that controlled access through the former Iron Curtain. These people, it seemed, were trained to be obnoxious. But you don't have to go that far to find that kind of people—you can experience them at the local tax office, the corner store, a downtown parking lot or even in your church. Sometimes we clergy choose the wrong hats to wear as pastors or ecclesiastical officials.

The writer of 1 Peter is very much aware of this problem. He advises pastors of the early church to "Tend the flock of God that is your charge, not by constraint but willingly, not for shameful gain but eagerly, not as domineering over those in your charge but being examples to the flock" (5:2,3—italics mine). He goes on to say, "Clothe yourselves, all of you [he is no longer speaking to just the clergy], with humility toward one another, for 'God opposes the proud, but gives grace to the humble' " (5:5).

Humility does not seem to be very valued in our society today, nor, it seems to me, in the church either. Perhaps that is because we have the wrong idea of what Christian humility means. There are eight different meanings to the word "humble" in my Random House Dictionary of the English Language. The first of these is the one most often used in the Bible: "not proud or arrogant; modest." My Bible dictionary says the most frequent use of the word 'humble' in the Bible is to denote the "opposite to pride, arrogance and violence."

THE YAWNING GAP

Now I cite that because I have a suspicion that many Christians think of 'humble' as "having a feeling of insignificance, inferiority, subservience." A humble Christian is not one who thinks of himself or herself as "worthless." Humility consists of recognizing the yawning gap between where we are and where God has created us to be.

So, when Peter says, "Clothe yourselves...with humility toward one another," he is not saying that we are to clothe ourselves with feelings of inferiority. Nor, when he quotes Proverbs 3:34, he is not saying that God gives grace to the worthless. God gives grace, not to the domineering, the arrogant, the officious, the practitioners of petty power and privilege, but to those who realize that in the presence of God they cannot be arrogant or self-serving. The One who made them worthy calls for them to be worthier still.

All of us want and need a certain amount of praise and pride. We need to remember, however, that it is only the approval of God that means anything in the long run. "Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that in due time he may exalt you."

Humble now; the crown of glory later.

Do You Have Enough Energy?

Although the world is experiencing an energy crisis and it has imposed difficulties in the way most of us lead our everyday lives, there are still a few areas where energy should be plentiful. Do you wake up each morning with that personal "get-up and go," "I'm ready to face the day? " Or do you feel tired out before you start?

Sometimes a lack of energy can possibly be due to certain deficiencies in your system. Your physician can usually determine what it is and recommend a vitamin preparation or tonic to help you overcome it. We always have on hand a very large supply of these products.

Solomon men score big in post-Bowl 3rd Rock

By John Crook
©TVData Features Syndicate

Irina Panteeva and John Lithgow

Eccentric extraterrestrials Tom, Dick and Harry Solomon (Joseph Gordon-Levitt, John Lithgow, French Stewart) suddenly discover they are chick magnets in a special hourlong 3rd Rock From the Sun, airing Sunday, Jan. 25.

Supermodels Cindy Crawford, Angie Everhart and Irina Pantaeva guest star in "36! 24! 36! Dick!" as the Solomon men all end up with some out-of-this-world babes on their arms.

Of course, this makes perfect sense to the guys, but Sally (Kristen Johnston) realizes something is desperately wrong. Soon, she uncovers the truth: Tom, Dick and Harry aren't from Mars, but these women are from Venus. What's more, these Venusian vixens have – naturally – an evil plot to steal all of Earth's "pretty stuff" via a potent subliminal signal to be broadcast during the Super Bowl, while men are at their weakest intellectually.

As in last season's critically acclaimed dream episode, "A Nightmare on Dick Street," Sunday's episode gives the Rock creative team more free rein than usual, with sendups of such classic sci-fi films as Invasion of the Body Snatchers and some tongue-in-cheek riffing on James Bond movies.

The studio audience at the filming of the first half especially went nuts over the stunning guests, who proved themselves good sports, say Bonnie and Terry Turner, executive producers and co-creators of 3rd Rock.

"Apart from a Russian translator who helped Irina with some of her jokes, they all came alone without any entourages," Terry says.

"Everyone was just so high after the Tuesday night filming," Bonnie adds. "Cindy was loving it, and Angie was like, 'You do this every week?' "

This high-profile special episode comes at a time when, the Turners admit, the cast and crew have been battling unhappiness over their Wednesday time slot, with a lead-in by two bombs (The Tony Danza Show and Built to Last, both already canceled) against a very aggressive ABC lineup that includes direct competition from The Drew Carey Show.

"People say we're up against Drew, but we're up against Wednesday (on ABC)," says Terry. "Spin City, Dharma & Greg, Drew Carey and Ellen ... those are all strong shows."

"NBC never has indicated that they do not value the show," Bonnie explains. "But they tried to tent pole the night with nothing else around us. Not even Seinfeld could sit on Wednesday night at 9 o'clock with no lead-in.

"It's not so much feeling disenfranchised or disrespected on Wednesday night as much as it's feeling not nurtured."

Most TV critics still consider 3rd Rock near the top of its form, and NBC executives have confirmed that the sitcom could well take over the crucial Thursday time slot of the departing Seinfeld next season.

"I think if (NBC brass) mean what they say when they tell us how much they love us and how strong the show is, then I hope we can be the Marines in the Seinfeld situation," Bonnie says.

"But we've been out here on the beach for a while with no air support, and it's getting kind of tough," Terry adds dryly. "We need some air cover, and we need it now."

IN FOCUS

Personal reflections on the amazing evolution of the sport of women's figure skating during the past 100 years are the highlight of Reflections on Ice: A Diary of Ladies Figure Skating.

Susan Saint James narrates the hourlong retrospective documentary, which airs Tuesday, Jan. 27, on HBO.

Home movies, vintage video clips and interviews recall the contributions of several champions, including Sonja Henie, Peggy Fleming, Dorothy Hamill and JoJo Starbuck.

Drew Carey hosts American Music Awards

By John Crook
©TVData Features Syndicate

Drew Carey, the man who opens his own Wednesday ABC sitcom with a lavish song and dance number, hosts The American Music Awards on ABC Monday, Jan. 26.

Twenty awards, as voted by the public in balloting by National Family Opinion Inc., will be presented to artists in such categories as pop/rock, country and soul.

Additionally, a special Award of Merit will go to a music industry member for "outstanding contributions to the musical entertainment of the American public."

Previous recipients of this award include Bing Crosby, Ella Fitzgerald, Perry Como, Stevie Wonder, Elvis Presley, Loretta Lynn and last year's winner, Little Richard.

In the competitive categories, Puff Daddy leads the field with five nods: favorite male pop/rock artist, favorite male soul artist, favorite rap/hip-hop artist, favorite soul album (No Way Out) and favorite new soul artist.

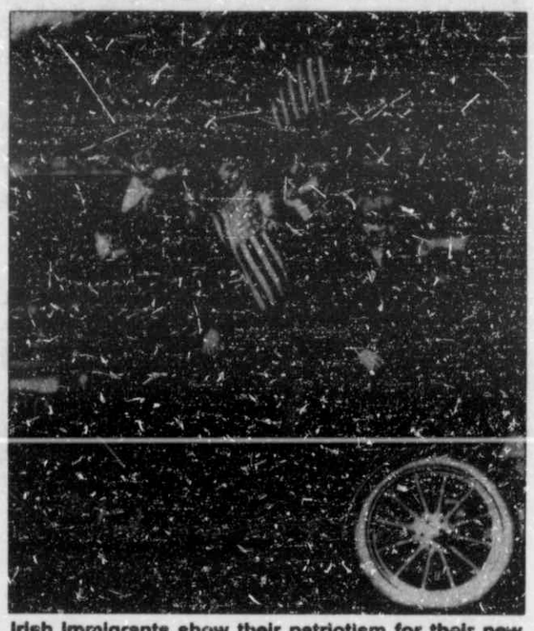
In other pop/rock nominations, Babyface and Beck also are up for favorite male artist, while Toni Braxton, Celine Dion and Jewel vie for favorite female artist.

Although critically scorned, the Spice Girls copped nominations for favorite band, duo or group against U2 and the Wallflowers, favorite new artist against Matchbox 20 and the Wallflowers, and favorite album for Spice, which competes with Jewel's Pieces of You, Matchbox 20's Yourself or Someone Like You and Bringing Down the Horse by the Wallflowers.

The ceremonies will be held at the Shrine Civic Auditorium in Los Angeles.

Drew Carey brings his brand of comedy to the stage as the host of The American Music Awards, airing Monday on ABC. The show will air live in most areas.

MONDAY



Irish immigrants show their patriotism for their new land in The Irish in America: A Long Journey Home, premiering Monday on PBS (check local listings).

TRIVIA

Butler Mr. French (Sebastian Cabot) of TV's Family Affair occasionally was aided by maid Emily (Nancy Walker).

TRIVIA

The Enemies List of President Richard Nixon included Leonard Bernstein, Joe Namath and George Wallace.
